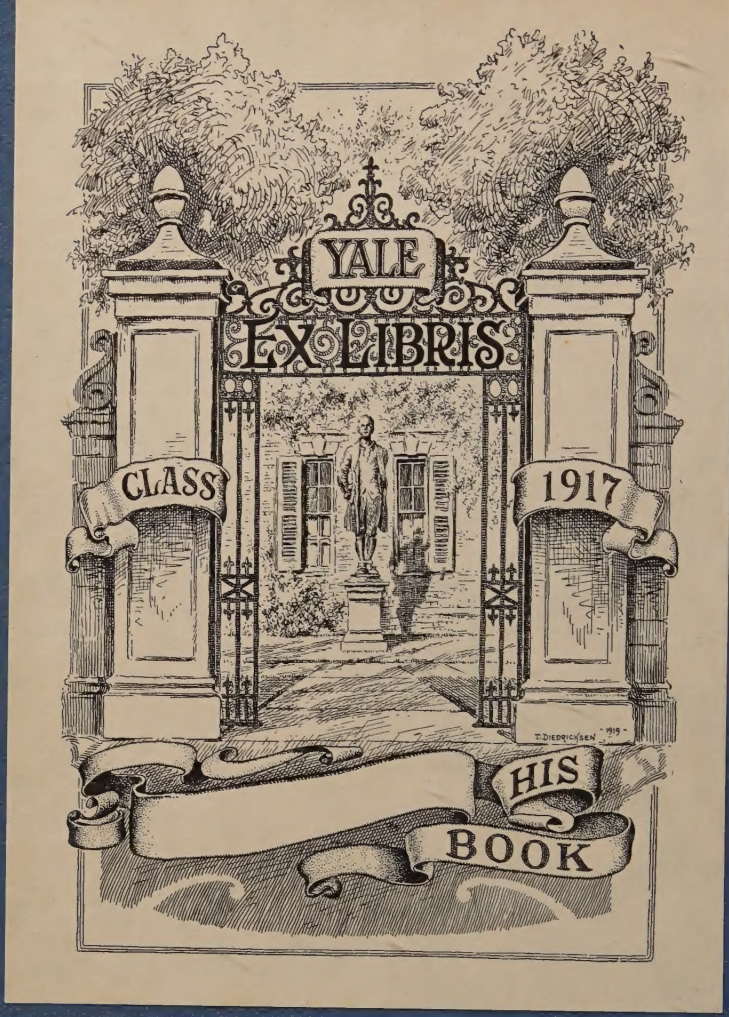
HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF NINETEEN SEVENTEEN YALE COLLEGE

WAR RECORD



YALE
EX LIBRIS
CLASS
1917
T. DIEDRICKSEN 1919
HIS BOOK

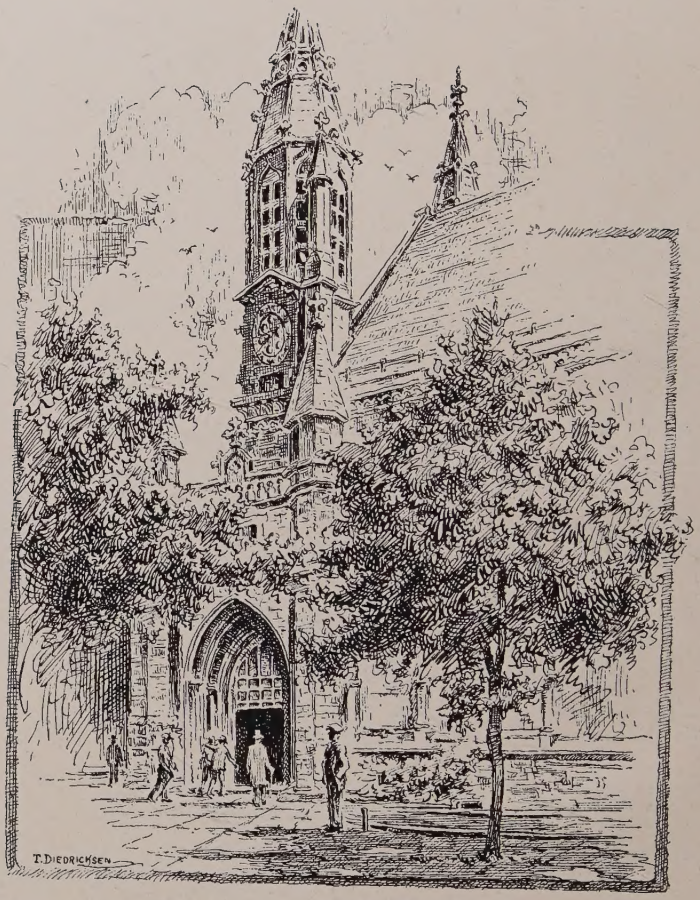
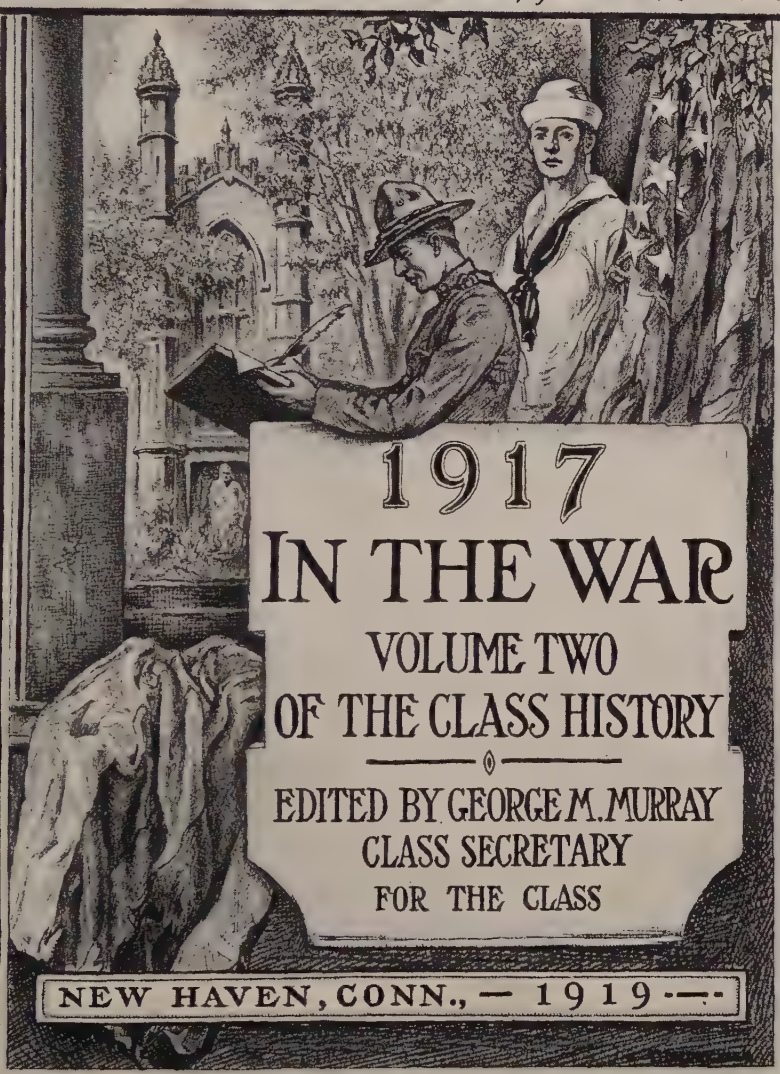
NINETEEN SEVENTEEN IN THE WAR



T. DIEDRICHSEN

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF 1917, YALE COLLEGE



1917
IN THE WAR

VOLUME TWO OF THE CLASS HISTORY

EDITED BY GEORGE M. MURRAY
CLASS SECRETARY FOR THE CLASS

NEW HAVEN, CONN., — 1919 —

THE Class of 1917 was just finishing its college course when America entered the war. On that Class more than any other fell the burden of showing what college men could do. They stood in the front rank. Their record shows how fully they accepted the burden, and how bravely they conducted themselves in the post of honor. Never has it fallen to the lot of a Yale class to write so much history in a single year.

New Haven, November 27, 1918.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
Roll of Honor	9
War Record	49
Epilogue	177
Death and Burial of Oliver B. Cunningham	179
Death of Cleveland C. Frost	180
Death of Roswell Hayes Fuller	181
Death of John McHenry	182
John Overton's Funeral	183
The Death of John F. Richards	184
Death and Funeral of Dumaresq Spencer	185
Death of William Noble Wallace	187
St. Mihiel from the General Headquarters Point of View	188
From a French School Girl	190
When General Pershing was Decorated	190
Bierwirth's Example Helps Loan Drive	191
The Real Russia	192
Dodging Bullets and Cooties	197
A Prisoner of War in Germany	198
From Dumaresq Spencer to His Mother	199
Ballade of the Disappointed Voyageur	201
Advancing with the Indomitable Doughboy	202
First American in Longwy	205
Roswell Fuller Pictures an Air Battle	205
Cramming It down Their Throats	206
The Thick of the Fighting	207
What the Germans Left Behind	210
Rondeau	211
How It All Ended	212
How the Huns Retreated	212
Armistice Day at the Front	213

THE ROLL
OF HONOR

TO have met death fearlessly is to have lived abundantly. Such an end of earthly life, however cruelly premature, brings with it a conviction of achievement, a glory radiant through eternity. Our classmates met the supreme test without flinching, and we are quickened to a sense of renewed pride in them. We honor their memory with all the devotion we possess.

But pride cannot temper the grief with which we mourn the personal loss each one of us has sustained. These men of our Class are gone from us, and, though they went as they themselves would have chosen, we would call them back. All the promises of friendships, begun so eagerly in college, hopes of comradeship in future joys and disappointments, now seem vain. Where we would reach out and grasp the familiar hand, we find only emptiness.

Yet we do reach out, and realize in full the magnitude of our heritage. Ours is a priceless fellowship to preserve. Remembering all they meant to us, aware always of their unselfishness, we, the Class of 1917, shall ever cherish, in a very positive way, our happy intimacy with them.

In them we have our deepest pride and our most heartfelt sorrow.

G. M. M.

Sidney Alvord Beardslee

SIDNEY ALVORD BEARDSLEE, Second Lieutenant, Infantry, died of pneumonia, November 23, 1918, in Base Hospital No. 82, near Toul, France.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, Yale Batteries, Tobyhanna; waived exemption as student in Hartford Theological Seminary; drafted April 30, 1918; at Fort Slocum, May 1 to May 4; transferred to Camp McClellan; sent overseas June 15, as Private, Company L, 114th Infantry, 29th Division; attached to Battalion Headquarters for Intelligence work in July; at the front with his company, opposite Mülhausen in August; sent to Officers' Training School at Langres, the only private to be recommended from his battalion; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, November 2; rejoined his regiment at the front, November 9; assigned to Company G, 47th Infantry; died of pneumonia, November 23, 1918, in Base Hospital No. 82; buried in the American cemetery about two miles outside of Toul.

Louis Bennett, Jr.

LOUIS BENNETT, JR., First Lieutenant, Royal Air Forces, shot down in action at the front, August 24, 1918, over the German lines.

Battery C, Yale Batteries, Tobyhanna, 1916; in April, 1917, organized the West Virginia Flying Corps, of which he was made Captain; organization disbanded as the U. S. Government could not accept state units; enlisted September 27, 1917, as a Cadet, Royal Flying Forces; trained at Camp Borden, Canada, and at Fort Worth, Texas; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps, January, 1918; sailed for further training in England in February; took course in aerial fighting at Marshe, England; promoted to First Lieutenant, March, 1918; flew the "Dolphin," the British 200 horse power plane with four guns, and registered as pilot for this in France, but, few being ready, exchanged to an E-5, when, at his urgent request, sent to France ahead of his squadron in July, 1918; attached to the 40th Squadron; between August 15 and August 24 had record of three enemy machines and nine balloons (four in one day) to his credit; mentioned in dispatches and recommended for the Distinguished Flying Cross; after destroying two enemy observation balloons, shot down by anti-aircraft guns, August 24, 1918; rescued alive from the flames of his machine; died shortly afterwards from severe burns, a broken leg, and other injuries, in the German Field Hospital at Wavrin, France, where he was buried with military honors; a memorial church, the first one in the devastated regions, his mother's gift in his honor, dedicated at Wavrin, August 24, 1919.

Mortimer Park Crane

MORTIMER PARK CRANE, First Lieutenant, Royal Flying Corps, killed May 15, 1918, in an airplane accident in England.

Enlisted in the spring of 1917, with appointment as Cadet in the Royal Flying Corps at Toronto; trained in Ontario at Camp Long Branch, Toronto University, Deseronto, and Camp Borden; sent to Fort Worth, Texas, in December, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant in Toronto later in December; sailed for England in January, 1918; trained in the Central Flying School at Upavon, Wiltshire, the oldest aviation school in England; took part in defense of England against enemy air raids; promoted to First Lieutenant just prior to his death; killed in an accident, May 15, 1918, while taking part in air maneuvers with a number of machines in close battle formation; burial from North Otterington Church, England.

Oliver Baty Cunningham

OLIVER BATY CUNNINGHAM, Captain, Field Artillery, killed in action by shell fire, September 17, 1918, near Thiaucourt, France.

Battery C, Yale Batteries, Tobyhanna, 1916; first Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan, Ill.; commissioned Provisional Second Lieutenant, U. S. A.; assigned to the 16th Field Artillery, a regiment of Horse Artillery, Camp Robinson; sent overseas December 12, 1917, with the 15th Field Artillery; promoted to First Lieutenant; in training at Besançon; in action in the Second Battle of the Marne and at Château-Thierry; assigned as Regimental and Operations Officer until at his own request stationed as Liaison Officer, September 2; promoted to Captain, September 11; killed by a shell near Thiaucourt, September 17, 1918, while in liaison with an infantry unit, in operation to reduce the St. Mihiel Sector; awarded Distinguished Service Cross.

Henry Thomas Donahoe

HENRY THOMAS DONAHOE, First Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, died of pneumonia, February 28, 1919, in New York City.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, The Presidio of San Francisco; enlisted as a Private (1st Class), in Quartermaster Corps, October 9, 1917, at Seattle; advanced to Sergeant, December 6, 1917, and assigned to duty as a Drill Instructor in the 48th Receiving Company, Camp Joseph E. Johnston; detailed to Officers' Training Camp at Camp Johnston; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, July 22, 1918, and assigned to duty in Office of Quartermaster-General, New York City; acted as Officer in Charge, Supplies and Transportation Section; appointed Property Officer when the office was converted into the Office of the Director of Purchase and Storage; promoted to First Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, November 7, 1918; on duty in Office of Director of Purchase and Storage, New York City; discharged February 20, 1919; became ill with influenza on that day; died of pneumonia eight days later at Hotel Wolcott, New York City; burial in Mount Calvary Cemetery, Seattle, Wash.

Franklin Crumbie Fairchild

FRANKLIN CRUMBIE FAIRCHILD, Cadet, Air Service, killed February 23, 1918, in an airplane accident in Texas.

First Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; transferred to aviation; graduated at the U. S. Army School of Military Aeronautics, Princeton University, January 19, 1918; stationed at Love Field, Dallas, Texas, February 1, for instruction in flying; soon transferred to receive instruction with the Royal Flying Corps, Taliaferro Field No. 2, Fort Worth, Texas; killed February 23, in a fall of eight hundred feet at Everman Field, Fort Worth; burial with military honors in Woodlawn Cemetery, New York City, March 1, 1918.

Cleveland Cady Frost

CLEVELAND CADY FROST, First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, killed in submarine attack, September 30, 1918, in war zone.

First Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison, May, 1917; discharged because of physical disability, July 2; underwent operation in Battle Creek, Mich.; entered second Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison, August 27; commissioned First Lieutenant, November 27; reported for duty, December 15, with the 89th Division, Camp Funston, attached to 341st Field Artillery; Instructor in the Yale R. O. T. C. in New Haven for a month in the summer of 1918; Instructor in the 1st Provisional R. O. T. C. Battery, Camp Jackson; rewarded for excellent work by being placed in command of an overseas battery "which was the most complete in equipment and records of any battery that had passed through the port" (Newport News); embarked on the Ticonderoga (formerly the German steamship Camilla Riskmers), a freighter heavily loaded with 5,000 tons of horses besides the troops (defective engines caused her to drop behind the convoy and she was torpedoed by a submarine 1,700 miles from shore; only three officers and a few men saved); Frost, standing on the upper deck, was killed by one of the first shots, which struck him in the chest.

Roswell Hayes Fuller

ROSWELL HAYES FULLER, First Lieutenant, Aviation, killed in aerial combat, September 29, 1918, near Verdun, France.

Enlisted in Naval Aviation, April 17, 1917; served on a training ship on the Hudson River, and at Bay Shore, Long Island; discharged from the Navy to enter the U. S. Aviation Service, June 15, 1917; received ground school training at Champaign, Ill.; flying instruction at Wilbur Wright Field; commissioned First Lieutenant, Aviation Section, Signal Corps, U. S. R., in November; attached to the 20th Aero Squadron, serving first as Assistant Supply Officer, and later as Adjutant, 4th Provisional Wing, Signal Corps Concentration Depot, Garden City, Long Island; sent overseas in December, 1917; spent several months in England and Scotland; Instructor in acrobatic flying for six months in Issoudun, France; sent to the front just before the fall drive; attached to 93d Aero Squadron, 3d Pursuit Group; many narrow escapes; at one time engaged in a running fight for many miles with an overheated motor which prevented his rising out of range of anti-aircraft guns; last seen September 29, 1918, chasing three enemy planes and fighting gloriously far over the German lines, having set out from Ligny-en-Barrois, near Verdun, and been officially credited with two planes already that day; shot down near Metz, Germany, and buried with full military honors in the cemetery at Brandeville, France, September 30, 1918.

Kenneth Brown Hay

KENNETH BROWN HAY, Private (1st Class), Medical Reserve Corps, died of appendicitis, November 29, 1917, near Cambrai, France.

Enlisted May 7, 1917, as a Private, Medical Reserve Corps; assigned as Orderly to Pennsylvania Base Hospital Unit No. 10; sailed for overseas duty, May 18; trained for several weeks at Blackpool, England; June 10, reached France, where Pennsylvania Base Hospital No. 10 took charge of British Hospital No. 16; advanced to Private (1st Class); died on the morning of Thanksgiving Day, November 29, 1917, following an unsuccessful operation for appendicitis; buried with full military honors in a little French cemetery.

John McHenry, Jr.

JOHN McHENRY, JR., First Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, killed in action, October 3, 1918, near Somme-Py, France.

Enlisted in May, 1917, in the Naval Reserves, and served on board the converted yacht Kanawha; commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, in June, 1918; assigned to the Officers' Training School, Marine Barracks, Quantico; assigned to duty with the Mobile Artillery Force, 10th Regiment; transferred at his own request, in May, 1918, to a replacement battalion; sent overseas that same month with 78th Company, 2d Battalion, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marines; active service in Belleau Wood during June and July; wounded in the Second Battle of the Marne, July 19, 1918; American Red Cross Hospital No. 1, at Neuilly; returned to duty at the front, September 26; killed instantly on the morning of October 3, 1918, by a machine gun bullet through the head, when leading his men in the first wave of an attack against Mont Blanc Ridge, just north of Somme-Py in the Champagne Sector; buried where he fell; commission as First Lieutenant dated July 1, 1919.

Danforth Montague

DANFORTH MONTAGUE, Captain, Field Artillery, died of pneumonia, November 7, 1918, in France.

In the summer of 1916 at Tobyhanna with the Yale Batteries; attended first Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, at its close; assigned to Camp Upton; promoted to First Lieutenant, 305th Field Artillery, and sent overseas with the 77th Division in May, 1918; assigned to Headquarters Company and made one of Colonel Frederick C. Doyle's staff; detailed as Observer for the artillery; had remarkable escape from serious injury when his machine was shot down 7,500 feet, killing the pilot; twice wounded as Liaison Officer in hand-to-hand conflict; taken ill in Paris and died of pneumonia, November 7, 1918; notified just before his death that he was promoted to Captain.

Jarvis Jenness Offutt

JARVIS JENNESS OFFUTT, First Lieutenant, Aviation, killed August 13, 1918, in an accident at the front.

Entered Officers' Training Camp, Fort Snelling, in May, 1917; transferred to Aviation Service a month later, being one of three hundred men sent from the United States to Camp Borden, Canada, to train with the United States Detachment of the Canadian Royal Flying Corps; transferred at his own request to the United States service; assigned to the 22d Aero Squadron, Fort Worth, Texas; commissioned First Lieutenant, Aviation Section, Signal Corps, November 8, 1917; sent to complete training in England in January, 1918; assigned to special duty as Ferry Pilot in the Royal Air Forces, taking new machines from factories across the channel to camps in France, and returning with old ones for repair; transferred at own request to a fighting division two weeks before his death; killed instantaneously in an accident, August 13, 1918; buried in a British cemetery at Bagneux, just outside Gézaincourt, near Doullens, France.

John Williams Overton

JOHN WILLIAMS OVERTON, First Lieutenant, U. S. Marines, killed in action, July 19, 1918, in an attack near Soissons, France.

Headquarters Company, Yale Batteries, Tobyhanna, 1916; commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, May 21, 1917, in the Brooklyn Navy Yard; called into active service, June 20; Marine Officers' School, Quantico, July 20 to October 20; assigned to 119th Company, 1st Replacement Battalion, November 10, 1917; sailed for France, February 3, 1918; on duty at the Marine Training Area, Châtillon-sur-Cher, during March and April; took course at 1st Army Corps School at Gondrecourt in May; ten days' observation work with 42d French Chasseurs in Vosges Sector; upon request transferred to the front; assigned to 80th Company, 6th Marines, June 14; in active service at Belleau Wood and around Château-Thierry until July 16; in the Second Battle of the Marne, the first attack of the great offensive under General Mangin, 10th French Army, near Soissons, July 18; led the 80th Company over the top in the first wave of the attack east of Vierzy, south of Soissons, the morning of July 19; instantly killed in the first few minutes of the attack when a fragment of a high explosive shell struck him in the heart; buried on the field where he fell; after the Armistice body removed to a cemetery near Parcy-et-Tigny; body removed to the permanent American cemetery near Missy-aux-Bois, May 16, 1919.

John Francisco Richards

JOHN FRANCISCO RICHARDS, First Lieutenant, Aviation, killed in action, September 26, 1918, in the Argonne Drive, France.

Enlisted in Aviation, May 22, 1917; ground school training at the Texas State University; one of ten chosen to be sent to Rantoul Flying Field; after two days ordered to New York City; sailed for France, July 21, 1917; instruction in flying at schools in Tours, Avord, and Issoudun; commissioned First Lieutenant, Aviation Section, Signal Corps, November 28, 1917; assigned to 1st Aero Squadron, January, 1918; sent to the Toul front in the spring; absent on leave when squadron engaged in Château-Thierry engagement; active service in St. Mihiel Drive, September 12 to 18; killed by a shrapnel shell, September 26, 1918, in the Argonne Sector, while on artillery reconnaissance mission over the lines; body found after advance of American troops; buried with full military honors on a little ridge near the place where he fell.

Russell Slocum

RUSSELL SLOCUM, First Lieutenant, Infantry, died of pneumonia, January 24, 1919, at Camp Jackson, S. C.

Enlisted May 12, 1917; first Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, Regular Army, August 15, 1917; assigned to Company M, 48th Infantry, Newport News; promoted to First Lieutenant, October 26, 1917, while stationed at Lee Hall, Va.; appointed Officer of the Summary Court; transferred to Camp Sevier in September, 1918; transferred to Camp Jackson in December; died of pneumonia, January 24, 1919, in the hospital at Camp Jackson.

Dumaresq Spencer

DUMARESQ SPENCER, Ensign, U. S. Naval Aviation Service, killed January 22, 1918, near Belfort, France.

Battery C, Yale Batteries, Tobyhanna, 1916; 1st Battery, New York Naval Militia, Aero Division; sailed for France, June 20, 1917; joined the Lafayette Flying Corps, French Army, with rank of Sergeant; received pilot's brevet, October 22, 1917, at Tours; killed in practice maneuvers with Lafayette Flying Corps Unit No. 150, January 22, 1918, near Belfort; commissioned Ensign, U. S. Naval Aviation, to date from January 20, 1918; buried with full military honors, as an officer, though killed before commission arrived; awarded the Croix de Guerre with bronze star, posthumously, February 5, 1918.

William Noble Wallace

WILLIAM NOBLE WALLACE, First Lieutenant, Marines, killed in action, October 9, 1918, in the attack on Soissons, France.

June to November, 1916, in the American Field Ambulance Service at Verdun with French Army; returned to the United States in December to complete college course; enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps after graduation; Officers' Training School, Marine Barracks, Quantico; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Marine Corps, August 27, 1917; assigned to 3d Battalion, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marines; transferred to the 34th Company, 1st Replacement Battalion, November, 1917; sent overseas in January, 1918; graduated at the French school at Meusne in March; graduated at the head of his class, 1st Army Corps School, in April; served as Adjutant to Major R. P. Williams, 3d Replacement Battalion, until June 11; promoted to First Lieutenant, July 1; assigned to 83d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marines; active service at Château-Thierry and in Belleau Wood, June 12 to July 16; company awarded the Croix de Guerre with palm; wounded by shrapnel, July 19, in the attack on Vierzy, Soissons Sector; Base Hospital No. 43; rejoined regiment October 7; killed by a high explosive shell, October 9, 1918, near St. Etienne, while returning with his map from a reconnaissance of the Boche front line in the attack on Soissons; buried where he fell.

Reginald Stanley Young

REGINALD STANLEY YOUNG, Second Lieutenant, Infantry, killed in action, October 9, 1918, in the Argonne Forest, France.

Commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, August, 1917, at Madison Barracks; stationed at Camp Dix; transferred to 3d Company, Machine Gun Battalion, 16th Infantry, at Syracuse; sailed for France, November, 1917, in the 1st Division, American Army; in action in the following battles: Toul Defensive, January 15 to April 3, 1918; Montdidier-Noyon Defensive, April 25 to July 7; Cantigny Offensive, May 28 to May 30; Aisne-Marne Offensive, July 18 to July 22; St. Mihiel Offensive, September 12 to 13; Meuse-Argonne Offensive, October 1 to October 9, 1918; all other officers being killed or wounded, took command and led company for five days; killed instantly by a machine gun bullet, October 9, 1918, while leading his men up Hill 240 in the desperate Battle of the Argonne; buried with military honors in the American cemetery near Exermont, France, about half a mile from where he fell.

WAR RECORD

T. DIEDRICHSEN

TRACY ACOSTA, Box 71, Jacksonville, Fla.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort McPherson; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery F, 321st Field Artillery, Camp Gordon; attended School of Fire, Fort Sill, February to April, 1918; went overseas with 157th Field Artillery Brigade in May; in camp at Winchester, England; attended French School of Gas; promoted to Captain, July 1, 1918; rejoined regiment at Toul in September; ordered to the United States; promoted to Captain, Field Artillery; assigned to Battery F, 37th Field Artillery, Camp Lewis.

CHARLES JOSEPH ADAMEC, Foxen, East Haven, Conn.

Enlisted as a Private, Infantry, May 23, 1918, in Branford, Conn.; transferred to the Medical Department, August 1; transferred to the Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor, September, 1918; advanced to Corporal, Field Artillery; received discharge November 28, 1918.

NORMAN ILSLEY ADAMS, JR., 22 Eliot Road, Lexington, Mass.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Harvard Camp at Cambridge and Barre, Mass., June 26 to August 15, 1917; second Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, U. S. R., November 27, 1917; assigned to Headquarters Company, 315th Infantry, Camp Meade, December 15; transferred at own request, March 11, 1918, to first-formed tank unit, 301st Heavy Battalion, U. S. Tank Corps; sailed for England, March 27; at Training Camp, Bovington, England, July, 1918; sent to France, August 23, and into field service early in September, operating with British forces in the Somme district, and being almost continuously in action during October, in the battles of the Hindenburg line and beyond; sent to British Hospital at Trouville, October 24, for recuperation; returned to front, November 9; at Rouen, November 11; rejoined unit, November 19; transferred to Tank Center near Langres (area of American General Headquarters) as Instructor in reconnaissance work, November 24, 1918; discharged March 24, 1919.

WILLIAM ADAMS, JR., Lawrence, Long Island, N. Y.

Yale Naval Training Unit; enlisted December 5, 1917, in Brooklyn, N. Y., as Hospital Apprentice (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F.; on leave to study medicine at Cornell Medical College, October to December, 1917; called to active duty in the office of the Superintending Constructor, May 1, 1918, as Machinist's Mate (2d Class); promoted to Chief Machinist's Mate, June 1; commissioned Ensign, October 5, 1918; discharged January 7, 1919.

GEORGE LOCKWOOD AIKEN, 220 Sherman Avenue, New Haven, Conn.

June, 1917, to March, 1919, engaged in various capacities in the general offices of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, New Haven.

ROGER WILLIS ALLING, 91 West Fifth Street, Atlanta, Ga.

Joined the National Guard of Georgia, May 5, 1916; June 20, 1916, went into mobilization camp at Macon; from November, 1916, to February, 1917, in El Paso, Texas, on Mexican border; in recruiting office, Atlanta, Ga., during the summer; First Sergeant, Company L, 122d Infantry, Camp Wheeler; transferred in May, 1918, to Field Artillery Officers' Training Camp, Camp Wheeler; transferred to Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor, in July; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, September 1, 1918; assigned to 25th Field Artillery, Camp McClellan, Ala.; discharged at Camp Zachary Taylor, February 13, 1919.

MAXWELL RITTER AMSEL, 712 Hallett Street, Bridgeport, Conn.

Enlisted as a Private in the Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps, U. S. A.; was detailed to the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City.

HARRY GRAY ANDERSON, JR., Hotel Elton, Waterbury, Conn.

Enlisted as Seaman, U. S. N. R. F., in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, April 4, 1917; called into active service, April 5; promoted to Gunner's Mate (3d Class) in May, to Boatswain's Mate (1st Class) in July, and to Ensign, September 19, 1917; attended the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, October 11, 1917, to February 1, 1918; appointed Ensign (T), U. S. N., February 1, 1918; ordered to American Destroyer Forces in European waters, February 10; on board the U. S. S. Buncros, February 24 to March 25; on continuous duty on board the U. S. S. Lamson, April 1 to December 11, 1918; on sub-hunting duty in the Irish Sea and convoy duty off the French coast; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), August 15, 1918; U. S. Naval Port Office, Nantes, France, December 18, 1918, to February 26, 1919; U. S. Nucleus Crew No. 1, Pauillac, Gironde, March 1 to April 3, 1919; U. S. S. Kaiserin Auguste Victoria (transport), April 4 to June 26, 1919; resignation accepted, June 26, 1919.

EDWARD WILLIAMSON ANDREWS, 1116 Spring Street, Seattle, Wash.

Enlisted in Aviation Service, July 6, 1917; called into service, September 3, at U. S. School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; sent to Mineola, October 27; transferred to Lake Charles, La., December 17, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Air Service, Military Aviator, at Lake Charles, February 5, 1918, and placed in active service same date; from March 6 to September 5, at San Diego, as Dual Instructor, Acrobatic Instructor, Gunnery Instructor, and Officer in Charge of Flying of Aerial Gunnery School, successively; arrived in France, October 1; trained at Issoudun for pursuit pilot; ordered to 25th Aero Squadron, 4th Pursuit Group at Toul, December 3, 1918; ordered to the United States, February 3, and discharged at Garden City, April 4, 1919.

DWIGHT LUDDEN ARMSTRONG, 300 Lexington Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Enlisted April 28, 1917, as Coxswain, U. S. N. R. F., at Newport, R. I.; advanced to Gunner's Mate (1st Class), December 1, and to Ensign, December 26, 1917; ordered to U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, January 11, 1918, for reserve officers' course; commissioned Ensign (T), U. S. N., June 9, 1918; retained as Duty Officer, U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis; ordered to U. S. S. George Washington as Junior Watch and Division Officer, September 15, 1918; discharged February 12, 1919.

JULIAN ARNOLD, 251 West Ninety-second Street, New York City.

Entered service as Private, January 1, 1918, at Fort Slocum; attached to the Arsenal in Augusta, Ga., for three months; attended Ordnance Supply School, Camp Hancock, for three months; assigned to Ordnance Depot Company, Camp Upton, June to October, 1918; transferred to Camp Dix; appointment to Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor, canceled because of Armistice; discharged December 19, 1918.

ROSCOE GEORGE ASHLEY, 1095 Westover Road, Portland, Ore.

Entered service July 22, 1917, as a Private, Infantry (Machine Gun Company); appointed Regimental Supply Sergeant, 162d Infantry, 81st Brigade, and sent to France in December, 1917; stationed at Nevers, Contras, and Aignan; returned to the United States, January 31, 1919; discharged March 18, 1919.

JOHN JEREMIAH BACHMAN, 175 Elm Street, New Haven, Conn.

Second Lieutenant, Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned as Instructor to second Officers' Training Camp at same post; promoted to Captain, November 27, and assigned to the 326th Field Artillery, Camp Zachary Taylor, December 5, 1917; Instructor, Field Artillery Training School for Officers, 84th Division, December 25, 1917, to April 20, 1918; transferred from 326th Field Artillery to 159th Field Artillery Brigade, Headquarters, January 27, 1918; graduate, special course, Gas, Flame, and Smoke School, 84th Division, March 3, 1918; student, School of Fire for Field Artillery, Fort Sill, April 25 to July 3; graduated on that date with special qualifications in gunnery and reconnaissance; Instructor, School of Fire for Field Artillery, July 3, 1918, to February 23, 1919; commissioned Major, Field Artillery, U. S. A., October 24, 1918; detailed to Yale University as Assistant Professor, Military Tactics and Science, February 27, 1919; assigned to duty with General Staff Corps, Washington, D. C., June 1, 1919; temporary duty at Camp Devens R. O. T. C. Infantry Camp, June 26 to August 2; assigned to Yale University as Assistant Professor of Military Science and Tactics, August 2, 1919.

LEONARD WOOLSEY BACON, JR., 113 Whitney Avenue, New Haven, Conn.

Battalion Supply Sergeant, 5th Training Regiment, Plattsburg, 1916; Regimental Supply Sergeant, 8th Training Regiment, Plattsburg, August, 1916; Battalion Sergeant Major and Drill Master, 2d Battalion, Officers' Training Camp, Columbia University, April, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, November 6, 1916; ordered to active duty, May 8, 1917; promoted to First Lieutenant, August 15; assigned to Headquarters Company, 307th Infantry, Camp Upton, September 6; landed in Liverpool with this organization, April 19, and in Calais, France, April 20, 1918; Commandant, 77th Division, 37 mm. School at Leulinghem, in May and June, 1918; assumed command of Headquarters Company, 307th Infantry, in June, and served with it in Lorraine, on the Vesle, in the Oise-Aisne Offensive, and in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive; promoted to Captain, October 3, 1918; attended 1st Army School for Care of Animals in January, 1919; attended University of Lyons, France, March 12 to June 30, 1919; discharged in August, 1919.

DWIGHT VAN ATTA BALDWIN, 405 Bank of Hawaii Building, Honolulu, H. T.

Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, August 15, 1917; assigned to Company L, 302d Infantry, Camp Devens.

PETER BALL, 27 West Tenth Street, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; student at the ammunition plant of the Bartlett-Hayward Company, Baltimore, June to August, 1917; Civil Service employee of the Ordnance Department with the same company, September to December, 1917; enlisted January 12, 1918, in Harrison, N. J., as Second Lieutenant, Ordnance Department; Army Inspector of Ordnance, January, 1918, to July, 1919, in charge of inspection of government contracts.

THEODORE HOWARD BANKS, JR., 17 East Sixty-first Street, New York City.

Enlisted April 13, 1917, as Seaman (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F., at Newport, R. I.; stationed at Newport, April 18, 1917; three months' service, July 10 to October 20, 1917, in Block Island section on U. S. S. Enaj; transferred to Third Naval District, New York, October 20, and assigned to U. S. S. Madawaska; commissioned Ensign, November 11, and assigned to U. S. S. Mohican; transferred to U. S. S. North Carolina, December 5, 1917; to Asiatic Fleet, May 21, 1918; executive officer, U. S. S. Samar, Asiatic Fleet, gunboat stationed on the Yang-tse-kiang River; commanding officer on U. S. S. Samar from March 9 to March 31, 1919; relieved of command and ordered to inactive duty, March 31; arrived home May 11, 1919.

EDWARD RANDOLPH BARTLETT, 1 Bartlett Street, Malden, Mass.

Enlisted as Private, Army Medical Corps, June 27, 1917, in New Haven; sailed for overseas duty, August 22, 1917, with the Yale Mobile Hospital, which became Mobile Hospital No. 39; seven months at Limoges, France; April, 1918, sent to the Toul Sector for six months; made Sergeant, November 3, 1918; near St. Mihiel until after the Armistice; returned to the United States, January 22, and received discharge, January 28, 1919, at Camp Devens.

RUSSELL STURGIS BARTLETT, 660 Park Avenue, New York City.

Enlisted as Quartermaster (3d Class), U. S. N. R. F., at Newport, R. I., March 27, 1917; promoted to Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., September 15; attended Reserve Officers' Class at Annapolis, October 17, 1917, to February 1, 1918; appointed Ensign (T), U. S. N.; stationed at the Submarine Base, New London, February 1 to July 1, 1918; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), U. S. N., July 1, 1918; stationed on the U. S. S. K-3, Key West, July, 1918, to April, 1919; commanding U. S. S. K-4, at Philadelphia, April to June 6, 1919, when resignation of commission was accepted.

ALFRED ELLIOTT BATES, Pondfield Road, Bronxville, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted June 9, 1917, in Section 585, U. S. Army Ambulance, at New Haven; trained at Allentown, Pa., June 21 to August 7, 1917; went overseas, August, 1917; severely wounded while rescuing the wounded on June 10, 1918; sent to U. S. Red Cross Military Hospital No. 1, Neuilly; returned to the United States, October 1; assigned to U. S. General Hospital No. 1, Williams Bridge, N. Y.; left hand paralyzed and partial amputation of one foot; discharged December 22, 1918; Section 585 as a unit was decorated with the Croix de Guerre on June 27, and Bates received a Croix de Guerre with a divisional citation (silver star).

ALFRED RAYMOND BELLINGER, 1902 West Genesee Street, Syracuse, N. Y.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, Tobyhanna, 1916; with the Council of National Defense, Washington, D. C., May to September, 1917; enlisted in the Air Service; sent to Ground Officers' Training School, Kelly Field No. 2; in November, 1917, ordered to Garden City, Long Island, commissioned First Lieutenant, and appointed Adjutant to Captain Charles M. Fleischmann, 1903 S., 101st Aero Squadron; sailed on S. S. Northland, December 4; reached Havre, December 27, 1917, and was ordered to Concentration Camp at St. Maixent; ordered to Issoudun in command of 101st Aero Squadron, February 20, 1918; transferred to the command of the 33d Aero Squadron, May 15; sent to Army Schools at Langres; sent to the British Intelligence School at Harrow-on-the-Hill, England, June 14; returned to France in July; attached to British Aero Squadron No. 2; ordered to General Headquarters, Chaumont, for Intelligence work, August 1; ordered to Headquarters of the 2d Army at Toul, October 10; officially attached to the 85th Aero Squadron, November 10; at 2d Army Headquarters at Toul early in December; at Treves, on his way to Coblenz, December 14; at Nice on leave, December 25; at Tours, January 14, 1919.

HIRAM WRENSHALL BENNET, 2400 Sixteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry Reserve Corps, August 15, 1917; assigned to 317th Infantry, 80th Division, August 27; assigned to Headquarters Company, 317th Infantry, and placed in command of three-inch Stokes Mortar Platoon; promoted to First Lieutenant, Infantry, National Army, December 31, and placed in command of 37 mm. Gun Platoon; graduated at Infantry School of Arms, Fort Sill, March 22, 1918, as Assistant Division Instructor, 37 mm. gun; arrived in France, June 8; trained with the New Zealand Division, British Army, from July 6 to August 19, in the Gaumicourt and Hébuterne sectors, Somme; took part in the St. Mihiel Offensive, September 12 to 15, as Corps Reserve; in the attacking échelon, Argonne-Meuse Offensive, September 26 to 30, jumping off at Béthincourt; attacked with his brigade in front of Montfaucon, October 4; gassed near Nantillois, October 6; rejoined regiment from hospital, December 12, 1918; in command of Headquarters Company, 317th Infantry, 80th Division, stationed at Jully-les-Forges, Yonne, France.

RICHARD BENTLEY, 1505 Astor Street, Chicago, Ill.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, August 15, 1917; assigned to 343d Infantry, August 29; promoted to First Lieutenant, December 31, 1917; promoted to Captain, August 1, 1918; assigned to Machine Gun Company, 85th Infantry, Camp Travis, September 5 to December 22, 1918, when discharged.

MAX BERMAN, 29 Park Street, Port Chester, N. Y.

LOUIS GOETTER BERNHEIMER, 138 East Seventy-second Street, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; first Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; left Plattsburg to join Air Service in June, 1917; sent overseas as Cadet, November 14, 1917; commissioned First Lieutenant, Air Service, at Issoudun, France, January 12, 1918; Flight Commander, 88th Aero Squadron, February 22 to November 11, 1918; in active service in the Toul Sector in May and June, 1918, and in the Château-Thierry, St. Mihiel, and Argonne-Meuse offensives; at Fismes, on August 11, 1918, was the leader of a photographing expedition of four planes attacked by fourteen German airplanes, but he, as Pilot, by maneuvering for position, made it possible to concentrate a steady machine gun fire which routed the enemy; awarded the Distinguished Service Cross at Fismes, August 11; cited by Pershing for gallantry in action at Dun-sur-Meuse, October 20, entitling him to wear a star on the Distinguished Service Cross; recommended for Captaincy in October, but not promoted because of the Armistice; at Tailly, on November 2, 1918, he and Lieutenant Bagby, Observer, on their own initiative went on a reconnaissance mission, flying fifteen kilometers behind the German lines in rain and fog, securing valuable information on the condition of the bridges across the Meuse River and enemy activity in the back areas, and harassing enemy troops and airdrome; awarded oak leaf to be worn on Distinguished Service Cross same date; returned to the United States on the S. S. Virginian, January 5, 1919; discharged January 11; made Chevalier, Belgian Order of the Crown, in March, 1919.

ARTHUR MARINUS BERTINE, 63 Fletcher Avenue, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

Enlisted in the Ordnance Department, March 13, 1918, at Fort Slocum; transferred to Aberdeen Proving Ground, March 23; transferred to Central Officers' Training Camp, Infantry Branch, Camp Lee, September 13; discharged November 23, 1918.

JOHN EDWARD BIERWIRTH, 253 Henry Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to 308th Field Artillery, 78th Division, 153d Field Artillery Brigade, Camp Dix, August 29; promoted to First Lieutenant soon after; went overseas May 6; stationed at Camp Meucon, Vannes, until the Division went into action August 16; took part in St. Mihiel Offensive; transferred to the Argonne and took part in attack on Grand-Pré; ordered to take part in drive on Metz when the Armistice was declared; still in France in March, 1919; discharged May 17, 1919, at Camp Dix.

EMERSON BIGELOW, Rye, N. Y.

Enlisted as Quartermaster (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F., in Newport, R. I., March 29, 1917; at Pelham Bay Training Station, April 12 to May 25, 1918; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., May 25; attended the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, June 12 to September 18; commissioned Ensign (T), U. S. N. (R), September 18; discharged December 24, 1918.

WILEY BLAIR, JR., care of Blair & Hughes Company, Dallas, Texas.

Enlisted June 15, 1917, in Dallas, Texas; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 5, 1917; assigned to Battery C, 133d Field Artillery, Camp Bowie; promoted to Captain, April 3, 1918; made Regimental Adjutant, June 19; sent overseas with the 133d Field Artillery, July 31; returned to the United States March 20, and received discharge April 4, 1919.

WOLCOTT BLAIR, 720 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill.

LIVINGSTON BLAUVELT, 103 McGraw Place, Ithaca, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; rejected for various forms of active service because of defective hearing; studying for an M.S. degree in agriculture at Cornell; worked on a farm during summer of 1918.

DONALD McKELVEY BLODGET, The Yale Club, 50 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery C, 301st Field Artillery, 76th Division, Camp Devens, August 29; promoted to First Lieutenant, March, 1918; sent overseas July 15, 1918; returned to the United States with the 301st Field Artillery; discharged January, 1919.

FRANCIS REYNOLDS BLOSSOM, 955 Green Bay Road, Hubbard Woods, Ill.

Norton-Harjes Corps, American Red Cross Ambulance, in 1917; resigned from this organization and returned to the United States about November 1, 1917; enlisted as Seaman (3d Class), U. S. Auxiliary Reserve; assigned to the Intelligence Department, New York City, March 15, 1918; discharged December 11, 1918.

LOUIS BLUMBERG, Charity Hospital, New Orleans, La.

Enlisted January 9, 1918, as Private, Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps; placed on detached service to complete course at Yale School of Medicine.

ROBERT GUSTAV BLUMENTHAL, 11 East Forty-fifth Street, New York City.

Enlisted July 9, 1917, as Seaman (2d Class), U. S. N. R. F.; six weeks' training at Base No. 6, Bensonhurst; transferred to U. S. S. Ocoee (Scout Patrol No. 1208); appointed Assistant Paymaster with rank of Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., March 21, 1918; detailed to Naval Pay Officers' School at Washington; assigned to Supply Department, Navy Yard, New York, May 6; in charge of Stock Upkeep Section, Supply Department, New York Navy Yard.

FRANCIS BOTTOME, 73 Chestnut Street, Springfield, Mass.

Enlisted as a Private, Infantry, in Springfield, Mass., May 27, 1918; transferred to the Chemical Warfare Service, Nela Park, Cleveland, in July; Corporal, Sergeant (1st Class), and Master Engineer in the Adjutant's office of the Development Division, Chemical Warfare Service, Cleveland; received discharge April 21, 1919.

WILLIAM NETTLETON BOURNE, 73 Mansfield Street, New Haven, Conn.

Enlisted April 16, 1917, at New Haven, as Seaman (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F.; after training at New Haven and at Pelham Bay, assigned to office of the Aide for Information, New York City, December 6, 1917; promoted to Yeoman (1st Class), February 1, 1918; transferred from office of the Aide for Information (formerly under District Communication Superintendent), New York, August 28, 1918, to Naval Training Station, Pelham Bay Park; released from active duty December 19, 1918.

SAMUEL ROBERT BOVARD, 17 Lincoln Avenue, Greenwich, Conn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; entered service March 28, 1918, at Pelham Bay as Seaman (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F.; stationed at Pelham Bay until June 26; served aboard the U. S. S. Adams, July 1 to October 1, 1918, having been advanced to Quartermaster (3d Class), August 1, and to Quartermaster (2d Class), October 1; transferred to the destroyer U. S. S. Lea; arrived in foreign waters in December, 1918; advanced to Quartermaster (1st Class), February 1, 1919; returned from duty in foreign waters August 1; discharged September 1, 1919.

ARTHUR ROOSEVELT THOMAS BOWERS, 24 Mount Prospect Place, Newark, N. J.

Attempted to enlist in the 8th Coast Defense Command of New York; rejected for physical disability; same result with the Signal Corps, Aviation; enlisted in December, 1917, in the Coast Artillery; sent to Fort Howard as a Private; transferred to Fort Monroe in April, 1918, as a Candidate; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Coast Artillery, June 26, and assigned to Fort Hamilton; assigned to the 37th Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps, Fort Hancock, September 23; sent to Camp Eustis with the same regiment; transferred from Battery C to Headquarters Company, and appointed Assistant Personnel Adjutant; moved to Camp Stuart, November 2; embarked November 15, 1918, on U. S. S. Pocahontas; landed in New York, November 16; sent to Fort Hancock; discharged December 14, 1918.

EDWARD DYE BOYD, Auburn, Nebr.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted as Private, Medical Department, June 27, 1917, at New York City, in Base Hospital No. 1; sent overseas February 25, 1918; transferred to Headquarters Company, and made Corporal, September 10; advanced to Sergeant, November 1; advanced to Sergeant (1st Class), January 1, 1919; released from active duty May 8; returned to the United States, June 9; discharged June 14, 1919.

HOWARD BURPEE BREEDING, 56 Willow Street, Waterbury, Conn.

Left college May 15, 1917, and farmed for three months; entered Officers' Training Camp, Fort Monroe, August 27, 1917; commissioned First Lieutenant, Coast Artillery Reserve Corps, November 27; went overseas December 10, 1917; attended Artillery School, Mailly; attended Gas School, Chaumont; Instructor in machine guns for six weeks; assigned to Battery D, 52d Artillery, for three months; commanded Battery B, 42d Artillery (Heavy), 1st Army, July to November 11, 1918; promoted to Captain in September, 1918; returned to the United States, November 29; discharged December 11, 1918.

OSCAR BRENNER, 832 State Street, New Haven, Conn.
Medical Corps of the S. A. T. C. at Yale, 1918.

RAY CLAFLIN BRIDGMAN, Lake Forest, Ill.

Went to France in May, 1916; in French Aviation School, August, 1916, to April, 1917; in Lafayette Escadrille at many points of front; commissioned Captain, U. S. A., in February, 1918; assigned as Commander, Aero Squadron No. 22, which took active part in the American fighting at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne, and had forty-two official victories over German planes to its credit; received Croix de Guerre, October 30, 1917; twice cited for bravery since then; holds American record for flight hours over the German lines, something over six hundred; four official and four unofficial victories (one more official victory would have made him an ace); recommended for commission as Major, but appointment not made because of Armistice; returned home December 25, 1918; received discharge January 13, 1919.

FRANCIS CULLEN BROPHY, care of William H. Brophy, Bisbee, Ariz.

Lance Corporal, Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, The Presidio of San Francisco, May, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery F, 346th Field Artillery, Camp Lewis; promoted to First Lieutenant, May 20, 1918; completed three weeks' training with the Twenty-first Class at the School of Fire, Fort Sill, and ordered overseas July, 1918; completed course at Artillery Training School, Camp de Souge, France; ordered to Fréville (near Neufchâteau) to join regiment which arrived at the front November 7, 1918, but did not get into action; returned to the United States, January 15, 1919; discharged February 7, 1919.

GEORGE LAWSON SEYMOUR BROWN, Holt Averell Farm, Cooperstown, N. Y.

Enlisted as a Gunner's Mate at Newport, R. I., April 14, 1917; stationed at Newport; transferred to New London as a member of the crew of Scout Patrol 529, U. S. S. Kestrel II, July 28 to October 15, 1917; transferred to the Atlantic Mine Force and returned to Newport; temporary member of the crew of the U. S. S. Baltimore, which, during the winter of 1917-1918, made short cruises and practiced laying mines in Narragansett Bay; March 7, 1918, transferred to the Norfolk Navy Yard for duty in connection with mine planting, and for work in the Mine Building; took examinations for the Officer Material School, Naval Base, Hampton Roads, April 29; between May 15 and July 15, a member of the supernumerary crew of the U. S. S. Pamlico; admitted to the Officer Material School, July 15; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., December 15; released from active service December 24, 1918.

WILLIAM ADAMS BROWN, JR., 49 East Eightieth Street, New York City.

Refused admittance to the Army and Navy because of deficient eyesight; went to Russia in October, 1917, as Y. M. C. A. secretary; after four months transferred to the service of the Committee on Public Information; was one of the few Americans who remained in Petrograd when Ambassador Francis and the Red Cross moved out; in May, 1918, went to Peking from Irkutsk with M. W. Davis, 1911, across Mongolia and Gobi Desert; worked in Siberia for a year under the Committee on Public Information, stationed first at Harbin and later in Ekaterinburg; returned to the United States about April 15, 1919.

DAVID AUGUSTINE BUCKLEY, JR., 112 Hungerford Street, Hartford, Conn.

Rejected for active service; deputy collector of Internal Revenue, Treasury Department, detailed to the Third Massachusetts District, until November 1, 1918.

STANLEY WILLIAMS BURKE, 15 Broad Street, New York City.

Enlisted and commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, May 25, 1917; stationed at Winthrop, Md., June 20 to July 17, 1917; trained at Quantico, July 17 to October 1; stationed at Quantico with the 34th Company, 1st Replacement Battalion, October 1, 1917, to February 5, 1918; sent overseas February 5; with same assignment until June 1; transferred to 15th Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, and served with it until August 8; active service near Château-Thierry and Bois de Belleau, June 10 to June 30; promoted to First Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, July 1, and to Captain, U. S. Marine Corps, July 2; in support till July 14, then in the engagement south of Soissons, July 18 to July 23; transferred to the 97th Company, 3d Battalion, 6th Regiment, August 8; at St. Mihiel, September 16; from October 7, 1918, to January 20, 1919, stationed at the Army General Staff College at Langres, France; returned to the United States, March 7, and received discharge March 31, 1919.

CALVIN CARR BURNES, Burnes National Bank, St. Joseph, Mo.

Five months in the Motor Transport Corps, engaged in delivering new trucks manufactured at Detroit to the port for shipment, or to Baltimore, Md.; three months in charge of a finance office outside of Newport News; Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor.

MARSTON BURNHAM, 3563 Seventh Street, San Diego, Calif.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted in December, 1917, as Chief Quartermaster, U. S. N. R. F., Naval Aviation; took training at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, April 1 to July 1, 1918; commissioned Ensign, Naval Aviation, September 22; on active duty at Coco Solo, Canal Zone, November 1 to December 12, 1918; released from active duty February 10, 1919.

PRESCOTT SHELDON BUSH, care Simmons Hardware Company, St. Louis, Mo.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916, but transferred to Battery A, Tobyhanna; Yale R. O. T. C.; first Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison; commissioned Captain, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned as Instructor to second Officers' Training Camp at same post; attached to 322d Field Artillery, in command of Battery D, Camp Sherman, November 30, 1917; ordered to School of Fire, Fort Sill, about March 14, graduating May 24, 1918; went overseas June 14, assigned to Headquarters, 158th Field Artillery Brigade, as Intelligence Officer on General Fleming's staff; in August ordered to Verdun for special training in connection with the Intelligence Service, and assigned for period of three weeks to a staff of French officers; 158th Brigade, 32d Division, ordered to the front about September 15, serving continuously in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive until the Armistice; November 16, transferred to Headquarters, 7th Corps, serving as Operations and Intelligence Officer in march to the Rhine; transferred to the 132d Field Artillery, January, 1919; returned to the United States, March 25, and received discharge April 4, 1919.

HOWARD TORREY BYLES, Central Village, Conn.

Corporal, Battery B, Tobyhanna; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Captain, Field Artillery, August 17, 1917; assigned to Battery C, 302d Field Artillery, Camp Devens; detailed to School of Fire, Fort Sill, Third Class, graduating in February, 1918; sent overseas in July, 1918, by way of Halifax, Liverpool, Winchester, Southampton, and La Havre; three weeks at Camp de-la-Maye, five miles out of Bordeaux; training camp at de Souge; to Verdun in October, 1918; Boudee-Wadonville Sector with 2d Colonial Corps, November 3 to 11; made Commanding Officer of two batteries since the Armistice; attending the Université de Bordeaux, France, in July, 1919; discharged August 20, 1919.

ROBERT HORATIO BYRNE, Hotel Alvord, East Orange, N. J.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted as Able Seaman on converted yacht Taniwha, May 12, 1917; assigned to scout patrol duty at Bath Beach, N. Y.; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., September 19; attached to U. S. Submarine Chaser No. 223; went abroad in September, 1918; stationed at Gibraltar in the Mediterranean with a fleet of chasers; placed in command of Submarine Chaser No. 223 in October, 1918.

WILLIAM JOSEPH BYRNE, 29 West Sixty-first Street, New York City.

GEORGE WILLIAMS CALHOUN, care of the Frankfort Elevator Coal Company, Frankfort, Ky.

Farming at Port Royal and crop reporter for Beaufort County, S. C., at the request of the Department of Agriculture; since the winter of 1917-1918 has been fighting the battle of the coal yard.

ARTHUR THOMAS CAMPBELL, 120 Washington Street, Middletown, Conn.

Entered service as a Private in the Medical Department, September, 1917; in Ambulance Company 20, Fort Oglethorpe, October, 1917, to January, 1918; transferred to Ambulance Company 22; made Sergeant, March 15; sent overseas April 6, with the 38th Infantry, Medical Department; in attack on Château-Thierry, July 15; advanced across Marne with 38th Infantry until wounded over the left eye with shrapnel and gassed, July 28, 1918, at Jaulgonne; one month in Base Hospital No. 9, Châteauroux; Base Hospital No. 17, September 1 to November 25, in Dijon, where he worked in the dressing room until the Armistice was signed; returned to the United States in January, 1919; discharged February 14, 1919, at Camp Dix.

HENRY CARTER, Williamstown, Mass.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to 303d Field Artillery, Camp Devens, with detail as Battalion Adjutant from August 25; promoted to First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, N. A., January, 1918; sent to Fort Sill for training as Aerial Observer; transferred in March to Camp Dick; transferred July 10 to Camp Jackson; arrived in France in September, 1918; assigned to Isolation Detachment, Headquarters Company, Field Artillery Replacement Regiment at Le Courneau; sent to 2d Corps Aviation School in October; completed training in November, 1918; attached to 354th Aero Squadron, as an Aerial Observer, near Saizerais, France; stationed at Headquarters, Air Service, 2d Army, Toul, France, in January, 1919; temporary duty with 9th Air Service Casual Company at Colombey-les-Belles in May; detailed to committee of Inter-Allied Games at Paris, June and July; returned to the United States, August 18; demobilized at Garden City, Long Island, September, 1919.

LAWRENCE JOSEPH CASEY, 17 Turner Street, Willimantic, Conn.

Group II, Yale R. O. T. C.; rejected for Plattsburg Training Camp; employed by the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, New Haven, from June, 1917, to July, 1918; drafted by the local board in Willimantic, Conn., July, 1918; reported at Camp Devens, July 26, 1918; honorably discharged after one week; sent by local Draft Board to Fort Slocum, and again discharged after three weeks; since September, 1918, in the Engineering Division of the Ordnance Department at Bridgeport, Conn., in charge of research work.

DOMINIC WILLIAM CELOTTO, 109 Wallace Street, New Haven, Conn.

Enlisted as Private at Fort Slocum, April 19, 1918; transferred to Edgewood Arsenal, Edgewood, Md.; discharged from the Chemical Warfare Service, February 28, 1919.

KENNETH HADDOW CHALMERS, Scarsdale, N. Y.

Corporal, Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks, May 12 to August 15, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, and assigned to Battery A, 308th Field Artillery, Camp Dix; promoted to First Lieutenant, December 31, and assigned to Battery E, 308th Field Artillery, Camp Dix, until March, 1918; sent to England May 25; went into action September 1, and fought through the St. Mihiel, Suippes-Moselle, and Meuse-Argonne offensives; was in the attack on Grand-Pré; was within a few miles of Sedan when the Armistice was signed; billeted at Haudainville, four miles south of Verdun, after the Armistice; returned to the United States, and received discharge May 17, 1919.

ROBERT AUGUSTUS CHAMBERS, 55 Liberty Street, New York City.

Second Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Coast Artillery Reserve Corps; assigned to 1st Training Company, Coast Artillery Corps, Fort Monroe; transferred to Fort Totten, December 15, 1917; commissioned in the Regular Army, May 1, 1918; assigned to Battery A, 74th Regiment, Coast Artillery Corps, June 1, at Fort Schuyler; promoted to First Lieutenant about September 1; ordered overseas September 23, 1918; stationed near Bordeaux, France, in January, 1919, on embarkation duty; attending Magdalen College, Oxford University, England, in May, 1919.

EDWARD NORTHROP CHAPMAN, 917 Ocean Avenue, New London, Conn.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; enlisted in U. S. N. R. F., December 11, 1917; on leave to study medicine at Harvard.

THOMAS JACKSON CHARLTON, JR., 220 Oglethorpe Avenue, East, Savannah, Ga.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Riley; 1st Battery, Officers' Training Camp, Camp Devens; Second Lieutenant, Battery C, 49th Field Artillery, Camp Bowie.

LEE-TING TSIN-TSING CHEN, 2023 Kalorama Road, Washington, D. C.

Overseas in April, 1918, for Y. M. C. A. work with the Chinese Labor Corps in the British Expeditionary Force; stationed in the army area around Calais and Dunkirk; still in service in March, 1919.

WILLIAM EDWIN CHILTON, JR., 1222 Virginia Street, Charleston, W. Va.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison; received waiver for defective vision and enlisted as Seaman (2d Class), U. S. N. R. Flying Corps, January 22, 1918; assigned to Company 19, Naval Aviation Detachment Ground School, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; attended flying schools at Key West, Miami, and Pensacola; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. Flying Corps, September 16, 1918; served with convoys at North Sydney, Nova Scotia, for several months; ordered to Naval Air Station, Miami, Fla.; released from active duty March 3, 1919.

RALPH WESTON CHISOLM, 1718 Colfax Avenue, South, Minneapolis, Minn.

Battery D, Tobyhanna, 1916; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Snelling; enlisted as Private, January, 1918; assigned to Battery E, 338th Field Artillery, Camp Dodge; received a non-commissioned officer's warrant in the spring; transferred to Officers' Training School, Camp Dodge, May 15; transferred to Camp Zachary Taylor; commissioned Second Lieutenant, September 25; assigned to Battery B, 2d Regiment, 1st Brigade, Camp Jackson; sent to School of Fire, Fort Sill; discharged December 12, 1918.

HEYLIGER CHURCH, 1608 Twentieth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted as Sergeant, Aviation Section, Signal Enlisted Reserve Corps, May 1, 1917, at Newport News; attended School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; sent overseas August 13, 1917; commissioned First Lieutenant, Air Service, November 23, at Foggia, Italy; retained as Instructor at Foggia, November, 1917, to May, 1918; assigned to 95th Aero Squadron, 1st Pursuit Group, September, 1918; served in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive; returned to the United States, February 12, and received discharge February 15, 1919, at Mineola.

JOSEPH ANTHONY CISTERO, 80 Elm Street, Danbury, Conn.

Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. A., and reported for duty at Camp Stuart early in 1917; promoted to First Lieutenant; sent overseas about six weeks later; appointed acting town Major in a small French village for about two months; rejoined his regiment, the 4th Infantry, at the front; wounded in the hand, July 18, 1918, in the Second Battle of the Marne; spent two months in a hospital; assigned to court-martial duty; rejoined his command November 1; promoted to the rank of Captain, November 6, 1918.

EDGAR RAYMOND CLARK, 2633 Adams Mill Road, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Assistant Chemist in charge of military textile chemistry laboratory, U. S. Bureau of Standards, June 1, 1917, to July, 1919; throughout the war and reconstruction period engaged in research in coöperation with the General Staff, Council of National Defense, National Advisory Commission for Aeronautics, Office of the Quartermaster-General, Office of the Chief of Ordnance, and other organizations of the War and Navy departments.

EUGENE CLINTON CLARK, JR., care of C. V. Benton, Odell Avenue, Yonkers, N. Y.

Enlisted as Private, Infantry, July 15, 1917, in New York City; assigned to Headquarters Company, 107th Infantry, Camp Wadsworth; transferred to Supply Company, 107th Infantry; made Corporal; promoted to Wagoner; sent overseas May, 1918; Deckebusch Sector, Belgium, in August; Hindenburg line, Bellicourt, September 29 to October 2; Selle River and Saint-Souplet, October 4 to October 22, 1918; returned to the United States in March, 1919; received discharge April 5, 1919.

ROBERT LORENZO CLARK, JR., Princeton, N. J.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Princeton R. O. T. C., while a student at Princeton Theological Seminary.

WALTER BOONE CLARK, 113 Franklin Avenue, Salem, Ohio.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison; commissioned First Lieutenant, Infantry, August 15, 1917; assigned to Camp Sherman, August 29, 1917; Battalion Adjutant, 7th Training Battalion, 158th Depot Brigade, to March 1, 1918; assigned to 30th Company, 8th Training Battalion, 158th Depot Brigade, March 1, 1918, to January 3, 1919; promoted to Captain, Infantry, U. S. A., September 4, 1918; discharged January 3, 1919.

HAMILTON PHELPS CLAWSON, 1109 Delaware Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

Enlisted as Private, Signal Corps, Regular Army, December 8, 1917, at Mineola, Long Island; assigned to 15th Aero Squadron, then to 358th Aero Squadron, and finally to 26th Construction Company at Mineola; made Corporal, Aviation Section, Signal Corps, August, 1918; Sergeant, Air Service, Aeronautics, November, 1918; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Air Service, Aeronautics; discharged January 29, 1919.

STUART HOLMES CLEMENT, 786 Delaware Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted April 20, 1918, at Fort Monroe in the Coast (Heavy) Artillery Corps; entered fifth Officers' Training Camp, July 6, 1918; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Coast Artillery, September 25; reported for duty at Fort Story, Va., October 11; acted as Post Personnel Officer, Quartermaster and Ordnance Officer, and Company Officer, 41st Regiment, Coast Artillery Corps, Railway Artillery; regiment reported filled up and equipped for overseas service November 10, 1918; ready to sail at the time that all shipments of troops were stopped; discharged December 11, 1918, at Camp Upton.

WILLIAM HALE CLEWLEY, 131 Pleasant Street, Woburn, Mass.

Enlisted as Private, Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps, December 10, 1917, for four years; during 1918 on call duty at Boston Barracks, Mass.; during height of influenza epidemic on duty for a short time to assist at Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston; discharged from active duty, but not from the service, in November, 1918.

HENRY EUGENE COE, JR., 5 East Tenth Street, New York City.

Enlisted as Seaman (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F., May 16, 1917; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., September 18, 1917; commissioned Ensign (T), U. S. N., February 1, 1918, at U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), U. S. N., August 15, 1918; incapacitated for other than shore duty due to fact that right arm became paralyzed while in training at Annapolis; Instructor of Ordnance, Officer Material School, Great Lakes, Ill.; U. S. Receiving Ship New York, May 5 to June 28, 1919, when placed on retired list.

STANLEY WELLES COLT, 144 Hinsdale Avenue, Winsted, Conn.

Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; entered Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg, August 27, 1917; discharged November 26, 1917; entered service at Camp Greenleaf, Medical Corps, in the draft call of August 26, 1918; transferred to U. S. General Hospital No. 10, Boston, Mass., December 11, 1918.

JOHN MUNSON COMLEY, 179 Beechwood Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

Accepted for limited service only by Draft Board; voluntarily inducted as a Private, July 15, 1918, and accepted for service in Quartermaster Corps, Camp Meigs; appointed Instructor in the Training Division, August 25; advanced to Sergeant, November 5, 1918; discharged February 25, 1919.

HENRY AUGUSTINE CONWAY, Sycaway Villa, Troy, N. Y.

Enlisted June 27, 1917, in the U. S. N. R. F., at Newport, R. I.; transferred to State Pier, New London, July 16; assigned to Mine Force, Shore Patrol, and Guard Duty; detached to Department of Justice from October to the last of November, 1917; transferred to S. S. Daraga, January, 1918; transferred to the Naval Intelligence Department, July 8, 1918; placed on inactive duty December 17, 1918.

THEOBALD EUGENE CONWAY, 75 Hillside Avenue, Waterbury, Conn.

Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; second Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, November 26, 1917; assigned to 303d Field Artillery, Camp Devens; Field Artillery Replacement Depot, Camp Jackson, May, 1918; course in Aerial Observation, Post Field, Fort Sill, June to August; Aerial Gunnery, Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens, with Aerial Observer's rating in September, 1918; Artillery Observation work, Camp McClellan, September to December, 1918.

FRANCIS BROWNE COOLEY, 31 Woodland Street, Hartford, Conn.

HENRY SAGE FENIMORE COOPER, Cooperstown, N. Y.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916, but transferred to Battery C, Tobyhanna; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; ordered to Fort Oglethorpe as Instructor; promoted November 27 to Captain; ordered to Camp Dix, in command of Battery D, 308th Field Artillery, 78th Division; reported at School of Fire, Fort Sill, March 9, 1918; ordered to rejoin regiment at Camp Dix, May 17, commanding Battery B, 308th Field Artillery, 78th Division, 153d Field Artillery Brigade; sent overseas May 26; at Camp Meucon, Vannes, until sent to the front August 16; took part in St. Mihiel Drive, fighting four days and nights in attack on machine gun nests, which were wiped out; battery congratulated by the Major and General in command on its shooting, as was also the battalion; transferred to the Argonne; took part in attack on Grand-Pré, following retreating Germans with infantry through Le Morthomme, Briquenay, Authe, and Brieulles; on way to take part in drive on Metz received news of Armistice; sent to rest camp at Haudainville, near Verdun, and then to place near Dijon; returned to the United States and was discharged May 27, 1919.

WALLACE GRAHAM CORWIN, 247 St. Ronan Street, New Haven, Conn.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916, but transferred to Battery A, Tobyhanna; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan, Ill.; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. A., August 15, 1917; promoted to First Lieutenant, October 26; assigned to Headquarters Company, 16th Field Artillery; trained at Camp Robinson, Plattsburg, and Camp Greene, August 29 to December 14; transferred to the 76th Field Artillery, assigned first to Headquarters Company and later to Battery A, Camp Shelby; sent overseas February 26, 1918, in advance of his regiment, for special training; saw active service as Artillery Liaison Officer in the Marne Defensive, July 14 to July 18; in the Marne Offensive, July 18 to August 2; in the St. Mihiel Offensive, September 12 to September 15; in the Argonne-Meuse Offensive, September 26 to October 23; gassed near Romagne, October 23; evacuated to Base Hospital No. 14, Beau Desert, near Bordeaux, with pneumonia, bronchitis, and sinus; returned to the United States, February 28, 1919; Casual Company 1207, le Mans to Newport News, January to March, 1919; assigned as assistant in the office of the Third Assistant Secretary of War, Washington, D. C., March, 1919; received discharge July 1, 1919, in Washington, D. C.

KENT RANSOM COSTIKYAN, 49 Melrose Place, Montclair, N. J.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916, but transferred to Battery A, Tobyhanna, as Corporal; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; ordered to France to a Field Artillery School of Instruction; assigned to 5th Field Artillery on arrival there; served with the 5th Field Artillery; ordered home for assignment to a new division; promoted to First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, July 30, 1918; assigned to 39th Field Artillery, Camp Lewis, upon arrival in the United States; served with that organization until discharged January 29, 1919.

FRANKLIN LINDLEY COUCH, Dalton, Mass.

Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Headquarters Company, 303d Field Artillery, Camp Devens; went overseas July 15, 1918, with 76th Division; in France the 303d Field Artillery was transferred to the 33d Division; billeted in Clermont-Ferrand for three months; appointed Intelligence Officer and Regimental Gas Officer, with three battalion gas officers, twenty noncommissioned officers, and seventeen hundred men under him; sent to the front with the 303d Field Artillery in October, 1918, in sector between Verdun and St. Mihiel; regiment destroyed several towns and Boche batteries under hot fire but escaped without casualties; all officers and men commended by the Regimental Commander for zeal and efficiency, and the regiment mentioned in orders; returned to the United States, April 26, 1919, on the U. S. S. Santa Rosa; discharged in May, 1919.

DAVID SMITH COWLES, Powder House Hill, Brunswick, Maine.

Rejected for active service because of inability to pass physical examination; August 1, 1917, to April, 1919, in employ of United States Steel Products Company, working on contracts for supplies for the American Expeditionary Forces and the governments of the Allies.

THOMAS HOOKER COWLES, 1130 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, Ill.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan, Ill.; commissioned Captain, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery F, 333d Field Artillery, Camp Grant; sent overseas in the 86th Division.

CAMPBELL ROBERTS COXE, 1155 Park Avenue, New York City.

Sworn in as Second Lieutenant (Class 4), U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, July 7, 1917; ordered to Marine Officers' School, Marine Barracks, Quantico, July 28, 1917; assigned to Company 13, 1st (later 10th) Regiment, Mobile Artillery Force, August 29; appointed First Lieutenant (to take rank from July 1, 1918), September 6, 1918; resignation accepted January 2, 1919.

JAMES COZZOLINO, 55 Collis Street, New Haven, Conn.

ALEXANDER McCOOK CRAIGHEAD, 217 West Monument Avenue, Dayton, Ohio.

Yale R. O. T. C.; first Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison, May 11 to August 15, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Officers' Reserve Corps, August 15, 1917; assigned to 45th Infantry, Fort Benjamin Harrison; commissioned Provisional Second Lieutenant, Regular Army, and assigned to 45th Infantry, October 26, 1917; same date commissioned Provisional First Lieutenant, Infantry, Regular Army; assigned to 26th U. S. Machine Gun Battalion, Camp Zachary Taylor, December 29, 1917; until February 11, 1919, on duty with this battalion at Camp Zachary Taylor, at Camp Gordon, and at Camp Sheridan; reassigned to 45th U. S. Infantry at Camp Gordon, February 11, 1919; detailed as student at the Infantry School of Arms, Camp Benning, March 15, 1919; same detail still in June, 1919.

WILLIAM WILLIAMS CREHORE, JR., 421 Kimball Avenue, Westfield, N. J.

Enlisted June 5, 1917, as Sergeant, Aviation Section, Signal Enlisted Reserve Corps, in New York City; in Company A, 1st Balloon Squadron at Fort Omaha and Fort Sill, August 17, 1917, to February 16, 1918; commissioned First Lieutenant, Aviation Section, Signal Corps, October 3, 1917; Commanding Officer of the 25th Balloon Company at Fort Sill, and at Morrison, Va., February 16 to June 29, 1918; sent overseas June 29, 1918, with same assignment; stationed at Brest, la Courtine, Hattonchâtel, and Villers-le-Sec, France; promoted to Captain, Air Service, October 15, 1918; returned to the United States, February 2, and received discharge February 11, 1919, at Garden City; one of the first eight men to enter the American Balloon Service, the other seven also being Yale men.

ARTHUR UBERTO CROSBY, St. Martin's, Philadelphia, Pa.

Sailed September 25, 1917, as Assistant Section Director, American Field Service; assigned to Section Sanitaire Unit 631, Convois Automobiles; awarded Croix de Guerre, February 2, 1918, for service under fire at Verdun, where his car was shot up three times and finally shattered; also in the Argonne, St. Mihiel, and Oise offensives; although in the United States Army, drove an ambulance for French wounded only; second citation on August 26, 1918, in the Somme Offensive; returned to the United States and was discharged April 4, 1919.

EDGAR GIBSON CROSSMAN, 74 Carpenter Street, Manchester, N. H.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916, but transferred to Battery C, Tobyhanna, as Corporal; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. A., August 15, 1917; assigned to 76th Field Artillery, Fort Ethan Allen; promoted to First Lieutenant, October 26; transferred to 4th Field Artillery, Camp Shelby, December 8, 1917; took command of Battery C, 4th Field Artillery, June 6, 1918, at Camp Shelby; in command of this battery also at Camp Logan and at Corpus Christi, Texas, until January 4, 1919; recommended for promotion to Captain, October 27, 1918, but appointment not made because of Armistice; at Field Artillery School of Fire, Fort Sill, January 9 to March 21, 1919; in June, at Camp Stanley, Texas, with the 4th Field Artillery; resignation from army accepted June 11, 1919.

THOMAS IRVING CROWELL, JR., 512 Park Street, Upper Montclair, N. J.

Yale R. O. T. C.; entered Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer, May 14, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15; assigned to Headquarters Company, 313th Field Artillery, 80th Division, Camp Lee, as Telephone Officer, 1st Battalion; promoted to First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, February 14, 1918; sailed from Newport News, May 26, and arrived in France, June 10; received specialist's instruction at Camp Coëtquidan, June 20 to July 28; Artillery School, Camp Meucon, August 13 to September 13; in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive (Verdun front), September 26 to November 11, 1918, as First Battalion Telephone Officer; returned to the United States on May 28, and received discharge June 6, 1919.

MORGAN BICKNELL CUSHING, 48 Wall Street, New York City.

Enlisted March 23, 1917, at New Haven, as Seaman, U. S. N. R. F.; promoted to Quartermaster (3d Class), in April, 1917; at the New Haven Training Station, May 17 to July 8; assigned as Quartermaster to the U. S. S. Seneca, Scout Patrol 427, Mine Sweeping Division, Third Naval District, July, 1917, to January, 1918; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F. (Class 4 for 2), January 21, 1918; detailed for communication duty, Office of Chief of Naval Operations, Washington, D. C., from February, 1918, until released from service January 21, 1919.

STANLEY DAGGETT, 284 Orange Street, New Haven, Conn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted June 28, 1917, as Private, Mobile Hospital No. 39 (Yale Mobile Unit); went overseas August 23, 1917; appointed Sergeant, November 3, 1918; returned to the United States, January 22, 1919; discharged January 28, 1919.

EDWARD LAWRENCE DAVIS, 8204 Seminole Avenue, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pa.

Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Niagara; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; acting Junior First Lieutenant, Battery C, 312th Field Artillery, Camp Meade; promoted to First Lieutenant, 312th Field Artillery, N. A., January 24, 1918; School of Fire, Fort Sill, March 9, 1918; overseas with 312th Field Artillery, July 13, 1918, to March 26, 1919; discharged April 23, 1919.

JOHN LANDON DAVIS, 201 Mercantile Library Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Battery D, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery E, 323d Field Artillery, Camp Sherman; Advance Detachment, 158th Field Artillery Brigade; sent overseas June 11, 1918; September 15 to September 29 assigned to the 308th Ammunition Train; in first, second, and third phases of the Meuse-Argonne Offensive, September 20 to November 11, operating as Liaison Officer for the 32d Division Headquarters as far west as Châtel Cherbourg and as far east as Perevilters; November 18, 1918, to April 14, 1919, with 3d Army Headquarters, as Billeting Officer in Luxembourg, on the march to the Rhine and in Coblenz, Germany; with the 158th Field Artillery Brigade Headquarters at Ringsdorf, Germany, and on trip home; discharged June 7, 1919.

CLIVE CAMERON DAY, 109 Woodland Avenue, Summit, N. J.

Second Lieutenant, Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; commissioned First Lieutenant, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned as Assistant Instructor, second Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; promoted to Captain, November 27; attached to 310th Field Artillery, Camp Meade; assigned to 311th Field Artillery; Instructor, third and fourth Officers' Training School, Camp Meade; sailed for France, June 30, 1918; attended Artillery School at la Courtine, France; in Verdun Sector as part of the reserve Army of Occupation, with the 79th Division; reported at Benoite-Vaux in February, 1919; Battalion Adjutant, Headquarters Company, 6th Field Artillery, stationed at Rausbach, Germany, June 4 to August 18, 1919.

JOSEPH GODFREY DEERING, 371 Main Street, Saco, Maine.

Yale Naval Training Unit; enlisted April 28, 1917, as Seaman, U. S. N. R. F., at Portland, Maine; called to service July 5, 1917; promoted to Chief Boatswain's Mate and assigned to Officer Material School, Cambridge, Mass., September 17; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., February 11, 1918; served from February 22 to June 14 as Junior Officer, U. S. S. Connecticut; made Assistant Instructor, Officer Material School, Cambridge, June 14, 1918; commissioned Lieutenant (j. g.), September 21, 1918; released from active duty April 30, 1919.

FRANK COMBS DELANEY, 403 West 115th Street, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks, May 11 to August 15, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to 21st Field Artillery, Leon Springs; promoted to Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, Regular Army, and to First Lieutenant (temporary), October 26, 1917; sent overseas in February, 1918; attended the Artillery Training Camp at Valdahon, France, with the 5th Field Artillery Brigade Advance School Detachment (the 21st Field Artillery was part of the 5th Division, which was cited for its work along the Meuse, and near Brieulles and Brandeville, where it was seriously engaged under shell, rifle, and machine gun fire for twenty-seven days preceding the Armistice); in the St. Mihiel Drive, September 12, 1918; occupying original position at Pont-de-Metz, advancing to vicinity of Thiaucourt; in active operations served as Orienting Officer and Battalion Adjutant; after the Armistice served as Personnel Adjutant, 21st Field Artillery, and Trial Judge Advocate of General Court Martial in Dudelange, Luxembourg, with the Army of Occupation, December 4, 1918, to March 18, 1919; returned to the United States in April, and resigned from the Regular Army, May 10, 1919.

JOHN CORNELIUS DEMPSEY, 551 Purcell Avenue, Price Hill, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Failed of admission to both officers' training camps in 1917 because of defective eyesight; enlisted January, 1918, at Columbus Barracks; stationed there until February 21, 1918; assigned to the Ordnance Corps and sent to the Army Stores School at the University of Michigan; in April, 1918, sent to Camp Hancock and assigned to the Ordnance Supply School for training in Ordnance Field Administration; transferred to the Explosives Section, Inspection Division of the Ordnance, June 10, and sent to the Technological School for Chemists, Carneys Point, N. J.; in August, 1918, certified as eligible for commission in the Ordnance; assigned to the Government Powder Plant, Old Hickory, Nashville, Tenn., as Army Chemist and Inspector of Ordnance, August 14; from November, 1918, on, also served as Personnel Manager; received commission as Second Lieutenant, Ordnance Corps, January 15, 1919; furloughed to the Reserve, February 28, 1919.

ADOLPH MOLLENHAUER DICK, 20 East Fifty-third Street, New York City.

Ensign, U. S. N. R. F.; attended Officers' Training School at Annapolis.

IRA BROWN DICKINSON, care of Hadley Falls Trust Company, Holyoke, Mass.

FREDERICK BRERETON DIEHL, 510 Myrtle Street, Erie, Pa.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted November 22, 1917, in the Coast Artillery Recruit Band as a trombone player; assigned to the 9th Field Artillery Band, Fort Sill; transferred to Camp Vail, attached to the Signal Corps of the Intelligence Department; after Armistice was signed, sent overseas as a German-speaking telephone operator; in July, 1919, reported still in Coblenz, Germany.

CLIVE LYON DILL, care DuPont Fabrikoid Company, Fairfield, Conn.

With the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, June 22 to August 17, 1917; with the Remington Arms Company, August 22 to September 27; drafted October 3 at New Haven; stationed at Camp Devens, 11th Company, 3d Provisional Training Battalion, Depot Brigade; discharged October 15 for physical disability; worked as timekeeper at the Lake Torpedo Boat Company, Bridgeport, Conn., October 19, 1917, to March 23, 1918, under the Emergency Fleet Classification; from March 25 with the DuPont Fabrikoid Company at Fairfield, Conn., under a government contract to supply gas protective clothing from October 28, 1918, to November 12, 1918.

RAYMOND CLARK DIMON, Box 502, Putnam, Conn.

Tobyhanna, 1916; second Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, and attached to Battery F, in January, 1918; ordered to Field Artillery Replacement Depot, Camp Jackson, in April; executive, Battery B, 11th Battalion; in the first group of forty-two officers sent out to fill up the 55th Artillery Brigade at Greenville, S. C.; assigned to the 114th Field Artillery and ordered overseas; as a result of the overseas examination ordered to the Base Hospital, May 16, 1918; after three months' treatment sent to Fort Bayard, N. Mex., where he was discharged February 28, 1919.

EDWIN SAUNDERS DIXON, JR., "Thorncroft," Ardmore, Pa.

Corporal, Battery A, 10th Field Artillery, Connecticut National Guard, Yale Battery, November, 1915, to November, 1916; Acting Stable Sergeant, Tobyhanna; passed examination and received certificate for Second Lieutenant, Connecticut National Guard, June, 1916; Instructor Lieutenant, Yale R. O. T. C.; applied for second Officers' Training Camp, but was not accepted; enlisted in Regular Army, September 22, 1917; transferred by request to National Army; appointed acting First Sergeant, September 26, and permanent First Sergeant, Battery D, 302d Field Artillery, Camp Devens, October 1; detailed on detached service to third Officers' Training School, Camp Devens, January 5, 1918; returned to Battery D as Senior Duty Sergeant, March 4; detailed on detached service to fourth Officers' Training School, May 15; appointed Candidate Instructor in Matériel, Gun Drill, and Battery Commander's Detail in 2d Battery, fourth Officers' Training School; transferred to Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor, June 29; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 17; reported to 50th Field Artillery, Camp Bowie, Texas, August 23; assigned to Battery C; appointed Regimental Instructor in Matériel and Gun Drill, Noncommissioned Officers' School; Battery Commander, October 17 to November 7; transferred to Field Artillery Brigade Firing Center, Camp Doniphan, Fort Sill, with regiment, October 29; made Regimental Machine Gun Officer, and Machine Gun Instructor at Field Artillery Brigade Firing Center, November 8; discharged December 18, 1918.

JOHN HAGGERTY DRAPER, Fishkill, N. Y.

Enlisted July, 1917, as Quartermaster (2d Class), U. S. N. R. F., at Newport, R. I.; released September 29, 1917, and joined Royal Flying Corps; owing to the law barring Americans from enlistment in the Allied forces, returned from Canada, and enlisted January 8, 1918, in the Aviation Section, Signal Enlisted Reserve Corps; disqualified because of defective eyesight in August, 1918, after eight weeks at ground school; drafted into Machine Gun Training Center, Camp Hancock; released November 11, 1918.

JOSEPH WILLIAM DRAPER, 430 Beach Street, West Haven, Conn.

Student, Yale School of Medicine, Class of 1920.

PHIL SHERIDAN DUFF, Nebraska City, Nebr.

Officers' Training Camp, Fort Snelling; commissioned Second

Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, August 15, 1917; stationed as assistant to the Base Hospital Quartermaster, Camp Dodge; ordered to Camp Johnston, November 1, 1917, for three months' course in the Quartermaster School; March 7, 1918, ordered to New York City as assistant to the Depot Quartermaster, Subsistence Division, Procurement Branch; promoted to First Lieutenant, October 30, 1918; discharged February 1, 1919.

FRANK MONTGOMERY DUNBAUGH, JR., 177 Summit Avenue, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; enlisted August 16, 1917, at Plattsburg, with rank of Sergeant; assigned to Battery A, 305th Field Artillery, Camp Upton; on special duty as assistant to General Bell's Secretary; overseas; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, National Army, after course at Saumur Artillery School ending June 23, 1918; assigned to 160th Field Artillery Brigade; in August, 1918, assigned to 328th Field Artillery; near Sedan engaged in heavy fighting when the Armistice was signed; at Pont-à-Mousson, near Metz, with the 328th Field Artillery; in March, 1919, reported at the University of Toulouse, France.

AUSTIN DUNHAM, 1030 Asylum Avenue, Hartford, Conn.

Assistant to the Secretary, Connecticut State Council of Defense, 1917; tried to enlist in everything, but was not accepted; August 1 to October 1, 1918, civilian in Office of Quartermaster-General, Statistical Branch, Clothing and Equipage Division; transferred to the office in Washington, D. C., October 1, and worked there until December 14, 1918.

LEON GREGORY DUNNE, Cedar Villa, Richmond, Staten Island, N. Y.

SAMUEL SLOAN DURYEE, Garrison-on-Hudson, N. Y.

Second Lieutenant, Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Captain, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery A, 302d Field Artillery, Camp Devens; at Fort Sill in February, 1918; sent overseas July 17, 1918; was reported in Bordeaux in February, 1919; returned to the United States on May 3, and was discharged May 8, 1919.

JOSEPH THEODORE EAGAN, 457 Ferry Street, New Haven, Conn.

Private, Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps (later S. A. T. C.), on detached service to complete course at Yale School of Medicine.

EVERETT ALLAN EARLING, 1400 North State Parkway, Chicago, Ill.

Yale R. O. T. C.

STUART HUNGERFORD EATON, 17 Hillside Avenue, Winsted, Conn.

Enlisted July 27, 1917, at Newport, R. I., in the U. S. N. R. F.; reported for duty October 1, 1917.

EDWARD BALL ELDREDGE, 17 Orchard Street, Auburn, N. Y.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks, May 15 to August 15, 1917; Seaman (2d Class), 3d Training Regiment, Pelham Bay, April 25 to December 24, 1918; released from active duty with rating of Seaman (1st Class), December 24, 1918.

WILLIAM NEWBOLD ELY, JR., 614 West 113th Street, New York City.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Niagara; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery C, 311th Field Artillery, Camp Meade; attended School for Aerial Observers, Fort Sill, May, 1918; School for Aerial Gunnery, Selfridge Field, August, 1918; attached to Air Service; discharged in December, 1918.

N. FRED ESSIG, JR., 9 Altadena Apartments, Spokane, Wash.

Officers' Training Camp, The Presidio of San Francisco; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, August 15, 1917; transferred to Aviation in October, 1917; trained at San Diego, classified as Instructor and Pursuit Pilot; took Brooks Field Course; Instructor at Souther Field, with rank of Second Lieutenant, Reserve Military Aviator, Air Service.

CHARLES WILLIAM ESTILL, 308 College Street, East, Fayetteville, Tenn.

Officers' Training Camp, Fort Oglethorpe; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Cavalry; stationed for four months at Camp Jackson; served for several months with the Artillery at Camp Beauregard; went overseas October 13, 1918, with Supply Company, 141st Field Artillery, 39th Division; assigned to the Army of Occupation.

THEODORE SCHLOSSER EVANS, Stockbridge, Mass.

Plattsburg, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted as Private, Medical Corps, January 12, 1918; stationed at Governor's Island, N. Y.

JEREMIAH MAXWELL EVARTS, Windsor, Vt.

First and second Officers' Training camps, Plattsburg; commissioned First Lieutenant, Infantry, U. S. R., November 27, 1917; sent overseas January 15, 1918, on U. S. S. Mongolia; attended 2d Corps School at Châtillon-sur-Seine, February 6 to March 6; attached to the 86th Regiment of French Infantry at Vauquois-en-Argonne for instruction, for two weeks; assigned to 4th Platoon, Company E, 18th Infantry, 1st Division, at Gondrecourt, March 24; served through the occupation of Villers-Tournelle and the taking of Cantigny, April 23 to June 1; evacuated for gas, June 1; joined up June 14, at Grivesnes, and served through the Battle of Soissons, July 18 to July 23; served as Captain of Company E, July 19 to August 15; after Soissons the Division moved to Toul and relieved the 2d Moroccan Division at Pont-à-Mousson; sailed from Brest in August, and arrived at Newport News, September 10; commissioned Captain (to date from July 30), October 1; ordered to Camp Dix; ordered to Camp Shelby, November 1; assigned to organize 146th Engineers while waiting for the 101st Division to organize; neither ever organized; discharged December 1, 1918.

ROGER SHERMAN EVARTS, Windsor, Vt.

Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; entered Class of 1921, U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., June 14, 1917; graduated November 1, 1918, with a commission as Second Lieutenant, U. S. Army, unassigned; December 2, 1918, reported again at West Point for graduate course to end June 11, 1919.

HENRY WALCOTT FARNAM, JR., 43 Hillhouse Avenue, New Haven, Conn.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1915; enlisted in Connecticut National Guard in October, 1915; Second Lieutenant, Battery B, 10th Field Artillery, Connecticut National Guard, Tobyhanna, 1916; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer, May, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. A., June 16; attached as Assistant Instructor, Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; from August to October, 1917, Second and then First Lieutenant, 10th Infantry, Fort Benjamin Harrison; transferred to 4th Field Artillery, in Pine Camp, Camp Shelby, Camp Logan, and Corpus Christi; promoted to Captain, July 5, 1918, commanding Battery D and 2d Battalion, 4th Field Artillery, Camp Stanley, Texas; resigned from the army in March, 1919.

HARRY PETER FAULKNER, 19 Copley Street, Cambridge, Mass.

IRVING KOHRS FEARN, 211 West Fifty-sixth Street, New York City.

Second Lieutenant, Battery B, 10th Field Artillery, Connecticut National Guard, January 26 to June 15, 1916; First Lieutenant, Battery B, 10th Field Artillery, Connecticut National Guard, June 15, 1916, to June 6, 1917; enlisted as Private (1st Class), Aviation Section, Signal Enlisted Reserve Corps,

June 8, 1917; attended the U. S. School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University, June 8 to July 14; sent overseas July 23 in the 135th Air Squadron; in Paris from April 15 to March 15, 1918, having been promoted to First Lieutenant, Signal Reserve Corps, Air Service, September 29, 1917; in England from March 15 to May 25; transferred to First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, May 25, and assigned to Headquarters Company, 121st Field Artillery, 32d Division, in France; on Alsace front, June 8 to July 23; in Château-Thierry-Vesle Offensive, July 23 to August 24; in Juvigny-Terny-Sorny Offensive, August 24 to September 9; in Meuse-Argonne Offensive, first and second phases, September 26 to November 10; in Evacuation Hospital No. 6, November 10 to November 12, and in Base Hospital No. 84, November 13, 1918, to January 15, 1919; Junior Commanding Officer, Replacement Depot, January 15 to February 25; in Company E, 102d Ammunition Transport, February 25 to April 3; returned to the United States on March 11, and received discharge on April 3, 1919.

ARMIN WILLIAM FINGER, 177 Thirty-fourth Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Enrolled for Plattsburg in 1916, but transferred to Battery B, Tobyhanna; discharged from Battery B, Connecticut National Guard, in December, 1916; enlisted as Seaman (2d Class), U. S. N. R. F., May 24, 1918, at Third Naval District Headquarters, New York City; reported for active duty at Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, July 15; assigned to Petty Officers' School, Pelham Bay, August 29; transferred to Naval Aviation Detachment, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass., with rating of Chief Quartermaster (Aviation), September 4; released from active duty November 21, 1918.

HAROLD DANIEL FINLEY, Crescent Farm, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to 21st Field Artillery, Camp Stanley; promoted to First Lieutenant, Regular Army, October 26, 1917; sent overseas in February, 1918; promoted to Captain, October 15, 1918; the 5th Division, of which the 21st Field Artillery was a part, was cited for its work along the Meuse during the twenty-seven days preceding the Armistice; with the Army of Occupation; returned to the United States in October, 1919; still in service.

JOHN FITZMAURICE FITZGERALD, 451 Clarkson Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Rejected for Aviation Service, Naval Aviation, Marines, Naval Auxiliary Reserve, and Officers' Training Camp; in November, 1917, made Purchasing Agent of the Rome Wire Company, which at that time was running 80 per cent on government work; rejected by the Draft Board; in May, 1918, received a Civil Service appointment as assistant production superintendent at the Naval Aircraft Factory, League Island Navy Yard, Philadelphia; entered upon duties June 1; flying experience in some of the small planes, such as the R-6, and also in the large F-5-L flying boats; rejected again for Aviation, for the Tank Corps, and for Artillery; resigned from the Aircraft Factory about three weeks after the Armistice was signed.

DONALD SHORES FUNK, care Songomo Electric Company, Springfield, Ill.

Enlisted March 26, 1917, in U. S. N. R. F.; honorably discharged because of defective eyesight in June, 1917; inducted into Coast Artillery Corps as a Private and sent to Jefferson Barracks, March 11, 1918; detailed to Battery A, 61st Regiment, Coast Artillery Corps; Fort Moultrie, March 21; advanced to Corporal, March 28; transferred to Camp Eustis, June 15; sent overseas July 31; detailed to Saumur Artillery School, France, August 29; released from Army, November 16, 1918, to receive commission in Coast Artillery Corps, but owing to Armistice, commission was not granted by War Department; detailed at own request to Automobile Detachment, Organization and Training Center No. 4, Angers, France, November 28, 1918; returned to the United States April 15, and received discharge May 13, 1919, at Camp Grant.

FRANCIS SCHLEITER GAINES, 175 Elm Street, New Haven, Conn.

Entered service September 15, 1917; sent to Ground Officers' Training School, Kelly Field No. 2; commissioned First Lieutenant, Air Service, November 20, 1917; reported at Rich Field, where he was Ccmmandant of Cadets, Officer in charge of Cadet Ground Instruction, Engineer Officer, and Assistant Adjutant, December 7; made acting Post Adjutant, June 11, 1918, and Post Adjutant, August 12; completed the course of flying training provided for non-flying officers in the Air Service; promoted to Captain, September 17, 1918; discharged January 16, 1919.

ASA ORAN GALLUP, JR., Rockland Avenue, Yonkers, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; connected with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York; went to Washington in the autumn of 1917 to assist the Fuel Administrator.

JOHN GALT, Hawaiian Trust Company, Honolulu, H. T.

Enlisted in Company A, 32d Infantry, at Schofield Barracks, Hawaiian Territory, May 14, 1918; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, August 26; ordered to Camp Grant, September 25; served as Bayonet Instructor in the Infantry Replacement Division until discharged December 5, 1918.

CALVIN WESLEY GAMBLE, 265 Paddock Street, Watertown, N. Y.

Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery B, 307th Field Artillery, August 29, at Camp Dix; promoted to Captain, Field Artillery, December 31, 1917; School of Fire, Fort Sill, February 20 to May 3, 1918; returned to Camp Dix; sailed May 27, and was in command of Battery B until June 25, when he was made Adjutant of the 2d Battalion, 307th Field Artillery; attended Officers' School of Reconnaissance and Orientation at Camp de Meucon, where his regiment trained; went to the Toul Sector with the Artillery about August 20, and participated in the defense of the Saziers Sector, August 26 to September 11; in the St. Mihiel Offensive, September 11 to September 16; in the defense of the Puvenelle Sector, September 16 to October 4; in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive, October 4 to November 11, 1918; returned to the United States, May 14, and received discharge May 16, 1919.

DALTON VALDEMAR GARSTIN, Box 334, Redlands, Calif.

Mechanic, Section Sanitaire Unit 67; Sergeant, Section Sanitaire Unit 624, Convois Automobiles; served with the French since June, 1917, in nearly every sector of the western front.

ISAAC COLLIER GIFFORD, Gifford Place, Hudson, N. Y.

Enlisted at Washington in the Ordnance Department, November 11, 1917; assigned to Columbia University for six weeks' instruction; transferred to Machine Gun Section, Ordnance Department, December 30, 1917, and detailed to the Machine Gun School at Springfield Armory, Massachusetts; appointed Sergeant, February 18, 1918; demonstrated the Browning Automatic Rifle before the military authorities at Washington; instructed officers at various camps in the South; made Ordnance Sergeant, March 2, 1918; recommended for commission as First Lieutenant, but papers were lost; in April, 1918, assigned as Instructor to the Machine Gun School, Springfield, Mass.; in May, assigned to the Technical Detachment of Ordnance, engaged in determining the ballistics of machine gun ammunition; camped for five months at a machine gun range near Blandford, Mass., engaged in ballistic work based on actual firing; second set of papers concerning commission held in Adjutant General's office by the signing of Armistice; transferred to the Small Arms Ballistic Station, Miami, Fla., December 25, 1918, for the purpose of determining the best bullet for the Browning Machine Gun; commissioned Second Lieutenant, February 20, 1919; received discharge April 28, 1919.

GEORGE JOEL GINSBERG, Suite 207, Commercial Bank and Trust Company Building, Alexandria, La.

Enlisted August 25, 1918, as Private in Judge-Advocate-General's Department; assigned to immediate active duty in Division Judge Advocate's Office, 12th Division Headquarters, Camp Devens; promoted to Sergeant, September 27; assistant to Major Barratt O'Hara, Assistant Divisional Judge Advocate, officer in charge of Fourth Liberty Loan at Camp Devens; recommended for Lieutenancy about the time of the Armistice, which stopped all promotions; transferred to Camp Beauregard; discharged January 21, 1919.

WILLIAM WESTON GLEERUP, 627 Mendota Court, Madison, Wis.

Entered second Reserve Officers' Training Camp, The Presidio of San Francisco, in August, 1917; enlisted in Signal Reserve Corps, Aviation Section, November 21, 1917; Cadet, School of Military Aeronautics, University of Texas, December 19, 1917, to February 19, 1918; wounded accidentally by a Lewis machine gun and in hospital for six days in January, 1918; flying training at Ellington Field; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Reserve Military Aviator, Air Service, Aeronautics, May 14, 1918, at Love Field; took machine gun course for two weeks in June at Dayton, Ohio; returned to Love Field, July 5; sent overseas August 29; trained for a month in France; was transferred to the Royal Air Forces at Northolt Aerodrome, Ruislip, England, for chasse training; returned to the United States on H. M. S. Lapland, December 4, 1918; assigned to Roosevelt Field and flew over Theodore Roosevelt's home January 7, 1919; ordered to the U. S. A. Hospital, Cooperstown, N. Y., January 7 to February 19, 1919; on special duty since then at Mitchel Field, discharging enlisted men and acting as Commanding Officer, 36th Balloon Company; expects to be assigned to duty with the Air Service in the Philippine Islands.

PAUL LEON GODCHAUX, JR., 1237 Jackson Avenue, New Orleans, La.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted as student officer at Fort Logan

VANDERBILT HALL
T. DIEDRICKSEN

H. Roots, May 10, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery (Heavy), August 11, 1917; assigned to Headquarters Company, 336th Field Artillery, Camp Pike, manning six-inch howitzers; discharged January 21, 1918, because of illness; served for two months with the United States Shipping Board, Division of Operations, in New Orleans.

LOUIS GODFRIED, 116 Davenport Avenue, New Haven, Conn.

Defective eyesight prevented enlistment; rejected by Draft Board three times.

WILLIAM ROBERTS GOODALL, JR., care the Whitaker Paper Company, 75 Spring Street, New York City.

First Sergeant, Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery E, 322d Field Artillery, Camp Sherman; sent overseas June 12, 1918; in the Argonne Offensive, September 26; in the Meuse-Verdun Sector, October 1; wounded and burned with mustard gas at Molleville Farm, October 22; Field Hospital No. 114; Base Hospital No. 28; ill with diphtheria, October 22 to December 6; Base Hospital 22 (Beau Desert), December 6 to December 25; returned to the United States in January, 1919; Base Hospital, Camp Sherman, until discharged, February 8, 1919; awarded citation by General Pershing for action at Verdun, March 27, 1919.

ABRAHAM BORIS GORENBERG, 222 Putnam Street, New Haven, Conn.

WILLIAM MIDDLEBROOK GOSS, 90 Pine Street, Waterbury, Conn.

JAMES GOULD, 235 South Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Enlisted in May, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant at the Officers' Training Camp, Fort Niagara; assigned to Headquarters Company, 312th Field Artillery, Camp Meade; promoted to First Lieutenant in the fall of 1917; sent overseas with the 79th Division.

LYTTLETON BOWEN PURNELL GOULD, 25 Nassau Street, New York City.

Enlisted February 25, 1918, as Seaman (2d Class), U. S. N. R. F., preparatory to entering Naval Aviation; reported for active duty March 28, 1918, with assignment to Company 18, U. S. Naval Aviation Detachment, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge; held position of Company Commander; transferred to U. S. Naval Air Station, Pensacola, June 18; commissioned Ensign, July 17, 1918; Discipline and Welfare Officer of Air Station, and Executive Officer for officers and student officers under training; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), January 1, 1919; placed on inactive duty January 16, 1919.

ALLAN BROWN GRAHAM, 605 Hiland Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enrolled as Seaman, U. S. N. R. F., April 3, 1917, at New Haven; reported on board U. S. S. Guinevere, July 12, 1917, attached to U. S. Patrol Squadron based at France; Guinevere grounded in a fog January 25, 1918; transferred to U. S. S. Courtney; returned on U. S. S. Leviathan, August 20, 1918, for assignment to destroyer, U. S. S. Breese, No. 122; placed on inactive list, U. S. N. R. F., December 28, 1918.

FREDERIC JAMES GRANT, 134 Woodlawn Avenue, Zanesville, Ohio.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted as Sergeant, June 11, 1917, at Omaha; attended Fort Omaha Balloon School; commissioned First Lieutenant, Balloon Division, Air Service, October 30, 1917; sent overseas December 7, with 2d Company, 1st Balloon Squadron; in February, 1918, sent to the Toul Sector; took part in the Seicheprey and Xivray engagements; in the Marne Sector, June to July; in the Aisne Offensive, July 19 to August 20; sent to the Balloon Training School near Bordeaux as Director of Instruction; commissioned Captain, October 15, and served as Commanding Officer of Provisional Balloon Group at this school until December 25, 1918; transferred to 102d Balloon Company, unattached; returned to the United States May 3, and received discharge May 16, 1919, at Camp Lee.

CHARLES OLIVER GRAY, JR., Tusculum, Greeneville, Tenn.

Y. M. C. A. secretary since July 1, 1918.

EDWARD RUTHERFORD GRAY, Tusculum, Greeneville, Tenn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Chairman, District Committee, Third Liberty Loan; Chairman, District Committee, Second Red Cross War Fund; member, District War Savings Stamps Committee; educational secretary, Y. M. C. A., Camp Gordon, July, August, and September, 1918; member, Fourth Liberty Loan District Committee; applied for entrance to, and was accepted for, the Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor, but failed to pass the physical examination.

DONALD ROSS GREEN, 1229 Northampton Street, Holyoke, Mass.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916, but transferred to Tobyhanna as Corporal, Battery C; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; sailed about September 8; assigned to 6th Field Artillery, 1st Field Artillery Brigade, 1st Division, 1st Army Corps, October 1, Camp Valdahon, France; Supply Officer for the battalion that sent first American shells into German lines, October 23, 1917; transferred from Supply Company to Headquarters Company; served as Artillery Liaison Officer to 28th Infantry at Cantigny; Artillery Liaison Officer to 16th Infantry during the attack on the Marne salient between Soissons and Château-Thierry, July 18 to July 25; returned to the United States, and was promoted to Captain, September 2, 1918; assigned to command Battery D, 28th Field Artillery, Camp Funston; discharged February 8, 1919.

OLIVER FRANCIS GREEN, 90 Highland Avenue, Winthrop, Mass.

Yale Naval Training Unit; enlisted as Boatswain's Mate (2d Class), U. S. N. R. F., April 22, 1917; called into service June 28, at Brooklyn Navy Yard; served on U. S. S. George Washington, July, 1917, to August, 1918, being promoted to Boatswain's Mate (1st Class), in December, 1917; Instructor, Yale Naval Training Unit, Madison, Conn., in August, 1918; at Pelham Bay in September, waiting to enter U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, having been commissioned Ensign, U. S. N., September 9, 1918, in New York City; attended 5th Reserve Officers' Class at the U. S. Naval Academy, beginning October, 1918; served on board the U. S. S. Florida, stationed at Guantanamo, Cuba, from January to June, 1919; received discharge June 20, 1919.

RICHARDSON LESTER GREENE, 130 Fairfield Street, St. Albans, Vt.

Battery D, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned August 15, 1917, Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery Officers' Reserve Corps; attached to 4th Field Artillery, Pine Camp; awaiting appointment as Provisional Second Lieutenant in Regular Army; transferred to Camp Shelby, October 26, 1917; appointed Provisional Second Lieutenant to rank from May 1, 1918; sent to Camp Logan, July 2; to Camp Scurry, September 6; transferred from the 4th Field Artillery and ordered to report at Field Artillery Replacement Depot, Camp Jackson, for overseas service, October 23; orders revoked because of the signing of the Armistice; on special duty with Military Police, Camp Jackson, until January 3, 1919; transferred to 58th Field Artillery, Camp Jackson; returned to Military Police on demobilization of 20th Field Artillery Brigade, in the latter part of January; same assignment in March, 1919; transferred to Columbia, S. C.; ordered to Camp Meade; sent overseas with replacement troops; assigned to Battery F, 76th Field Artillery; stationed at Kottenheim, Germany, with the Army of Occupation, July, 1919.

HENRY GRUSKY, 202 Broadway, Newburgh, N. Y.
Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg.

JOSEPH GAIUS HALSEY, 107 West River Street, Wilkes Barre, Pa.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted June 6, 1917, in Aviation Section, U. S. A., as Sergeant; commissioned First Lieutenant, at Balloon School, Fort Omaha, October 5, 1917; assigned to 26th Balloon Company, Aviation, Air Service, U. S. A. (observation balloon), Fort Sill; sent to Camp Morrison in June; embarked for France the first week of July, 1918; attended a balloon school near Bordeaux until September, 1918; at the time of Armistice in active service with the 69th Balloon Company, in the Toul Sector; near Bordeaux in April, 1919.

WILLIAM HANNA, Rye, N. Y.

Unable to enlist and rejected by the Draft Board because of physical disability; taught for a year in the West Hartford (Conn.) High School; teaching in the Rye Country School, Rye, N. Y.

PAUL HAYDN HANNUM, 13 East Seventeenth Street, Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Leon Springs; reported May 12, 1917; discharged two weeks later because of strained tendons.

LOUIS SAMUEL HARDIN, 5429 Woodlawn Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted January 11, 1918; attended Ordnance Supply School, University of Chicago; later at Camp Jackson; promoted to Sergeant, May 28, 1918, and transferred to Instrument Repair School, Frankford, Pa.; served as an instructor in general theory of fire control and fire control instruments for field artillery; promoted to Sergeant (1st Class); later received commission as Second Lieutenant; discharged January 4, 1919.

EDWARD ROLAND NOEL HARRIMAN, Arden, N. Y.

Commissioned First Lieutenant, Ordnance Department, with Inspection Division; on sick report from February to October, 1918, which prevented acceptance of resignation to enter Field Artillery Training Camp; honorably discharged from service, January 16, 1919, because of continued ill health.

JESSE SAMUEL HARRIS, 185 Franklin Street, New Haven, Conn.

Entered service November 23, 1917, as Private, Infantry; assigned to Company 8, 76th Division, Camp Devens; discharged January 13, 1918; enlisted in the Medical Reserve; attended Yale School of Medicine, February to June, 1918; called to active duty September 28 in the Medical Corps of the S. A. T. C. at Yale; made Sergeant in October; discharged December 23, 1918.

PERCIVAL GRAY HART, care Kullman, Salz & Company, 220 West Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to 332d Field Artillery, Camp Grant, September 1; attended School for Aerial Observers, Fort Sill, November 22, 1917, to February 1, 1918; recommissioned Second Lieutenant, Aviation Section, Signal Corps, January 29, 1918; sent overseas February 26; attended School for Aerial Observers at Tours, France, April 8 to May 14; attended Aerial Machine Gun School at Cazaux, France, May 16 to June 6; on Rheims front with Escadrille Salmson 40 (French), June 9 to July 26; assigned to 135th Aero Squadron (American), July 26, using de Haviland-4 planes, with Liberty motor; shot down August 16 by an Albatross D-5, wounding the pilot and damaging the engine; received official confirmation for the destruction of an enemy Fokker D-7 in aerial combat September 12; recommended for promotion October 10, but appointment not made because of the Armistice; made Chief Observer of the 135th Aero Squadron, October 13; received the Distinguished Service Cross, November 16, 1918, "for extraordinary heroism in action during the battle of the St. Mihiel salient, September 12 and 13, 1918. On September 12 he made three infantry liaison patrols and obtained valuable information of the location of our advancing line, which information he conveyed to organization commanders. Bad weather conditions necessitated flying at a very low altitude, but in spite of this and repeated attacks by superior numbers of enemy aircraft, he drove them off by his accurate fire, and accomplished his mission. On September 13 he unhesitatingly went to the assistance of three allied planes which were being attacked by a large patrol of the enemy and by his steady fire drove off the enemy patrol and enabled the three allied planes to return"; ninety-seven hours' time in the air over enemy lines; arrived from overseas January 7, 1919; discharged January 10, 1919.

EDWARD WILLIAMS HARTLEY, Marlborough Apartments, Everett, Wash.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; entered Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison, May 30, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15; attached to 325th Field Artillery (84th Division), Camp Zachary Taylor, August 30; transferred to 42d Division, Mineola, September 2; assigned to 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division (Rainbow Division), Camp Mills, September 8; sailed for France on U. S. S. President Lincoln, October 18, 1917; received training at Camp Coëtquidan, France, and at 1st Corps School (Artillery), Gondrecourt, France; served as Battery Officer, Battery F, 151st Field Artillery in following engagements: Lunéville Sector, Lorraine, February 21 to March 23, 1918; Baccarat Sector, Lorraine, March 31 to June 21; Esperance-Lonain Sector, Champagne, July 4 to July 14; Aisne-Marne Defensive, Champagne, July 15 to July 18; Aisne-Marne Offensive, July 24 to August 11; St. Mihiel Offensive, Woevre, September 12 to September 16; Essey-Pannes Sector, Woevre, September 16 to September 30; Meuse-Argonne Offensive, October 7 to November 1; Meuse-Argonne Offensive, November 5 to November 9; Army of Occupation, Germany, November 20, 1918, to March 31, 1919; returned to the United States, April 26; relieved from duty with 151st Field Artillery at Camp Merritt, May 2; received discharge at Camp Lewis, May 21, 1919.

AUGUSTINE HEALY, 200 East Delaware Place, Chicago, Ill.

Yale R. O. T. C.; commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, July 28, 1917; three months in Officers' Training School, four months in Artillery Regiment; overseas with 10th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps; promoted to First Lieutenant, Marine Corps; detached for service with the 346th Field Artillery; returned to the United States in April, 1919.

JAMES EDWARD HEFFERNAN, 23 Maple Street, Bristol, Conn.

Enlisted as Seaman (2d Class), U. S. N. R. F., in Newport, R. I., December 10, 1917; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., December, 1918; assigned to U. S. S. Massachusetts; transferred to U. S. S. Albany, and then to U. S. S. Gettysburg; received discharge February 13, 1919.

JAMES CALLENDER HEMINWAY, 38 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Corporal, Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; first and second Officers' Training camps, Plattsburg; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, National Army, November 27, 1917; assigned to Battery D, 307th Field Artillery, Camp Dix; sent to Radio School in France with Advance Detachment, 78th Division, May, 1918; returned to 307th Field Artillery; transferred to Headquarters Company as Regimental Telephone and Radio Officer; saw active service with the 78th Division in defense of the Toul Sector and in St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne offensives; at St. Remy, near Dijon, in December, 1918; promoted to Captain, February 24, 1919, and commanded Headquarters Company until demobilization, May 16, 1919.

HOWARD RALPH HENN, 2777 Lancashire Road, Cleveland Heights, Cleveland, Ohio.

Yale R. O. T. C.; rejected for enlistment four times; drafted May 26, 1917, and sent to Camp Gordon; discharged two days later because of physical disqualifications; worked on a farm, May to September, 1917.

JAMES HENRY HEYL, JR., Yale Club, New York City.

Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps, on detached service to attend the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University.

RAYMOND THOMAS JOSEPH HIGGINS, 228 Broadway, Norwich, Conn.

Enlisted April 25, 1918, at Camp Upton; entered fourth Officers' Training Camp, Camp Custer, May 15; transferred to Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor, June 29; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. A., August 31; assigned to 7th Regiment, Field Artillery Replacement Depot, Camp Taylor, August 31 to November 7; 46th Class, School of Fire, Fort Sill, November 7, 1918, to January 31, 1919; 3d Student Battery, Field Artillery Officers' School, Camp Taylor, February, 1919, studying for a commission in the Regular Army; in June, 1919, on duty as Assistant Recruiting Officer, Joplin, Mo.

EDWARD KNIGHT HILL, 333 Nelson Avenue, Peekskill, N. Y.

Squadron A, Cavalry, National Guard, New York, Machine Gun Troop, at Mexican border, June to December, 1916; rejoined Squadron A, which was ordered to Camp Wadsworth in October, 1917, and became the 105th Machine Gun Battalion, 27th Division; in May, 1918, as Sergeant, Company D, detailed for study in France; rejoined the 27th Division some time in the summer on the Flanders front; sent to the Army Candidate School at Langres, France, graduating with certificate December 31, 1918; cited in a general order issued by Major General John F. O'Ryan in France, January 26, 1919, "for leaving the trench of his company and placing aiming posts for the firing of the machine gun barrage, this under heavy enemy fire, on September 29, 1918, in the battle of the Hindenburg line, France"; returned to the United States in March, 1919; discharged April 1, 1919.

HERBERT WELLS HILL, Bunker, Wash.

Timber business with the Hill Logging Company, Bunker, Wash.

GEORGE BURTON HOLLISTER, 1887 Madison Road, East Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Battery D, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R.; sent overseas in October, 1917, unassigned, to take course at Fontainebleau; assigned to Battery D, 15th Field Artillery.

KENNETH LEEDS HOLMES-BROWN, 139 Dyer Street, Providence, R. I.

First Lieutenant, Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; first Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; attached to Headquarters Troop, 18th Cavalry, Provisional Field Artillery, Fort Ethan Allen, awaiting commission as Provisional Second Lieutenant, U. S. A.; commissioned Provisional Second Lieutenant, October 26; 18th Cavalry changed to 76th Field Artillery, in November, and transferred to Camp Shelby; assigned to Battery C, 4th Field Artillery, Camp Shelby, December, 1917; commissioned Provisional First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, May 29, 1918; moved with the 4th Field Artillery to Camp Logan in July; commanding Battery F, 4th Field Artillery, at Corpus Christi, September, 1918, until placed on the Detached Officers' List, January, 1919; ordered to School of Fire, Fort Sill, in March, 1919, to take a three months' course in the 53d Class; assigned to Headquarters Company, 4th Field Artillery, Camp Stanley, April, 1919.

JAMES MAYER HOLZMAN, Hotel Chatham, 33 East Forty-eighth Street, New York City.

Enlisted in the U. S. N. R. F., March 4, 1918; three months with Aide for Information, Brooklyn Navy Yard; three months with Naval Port Guards, Federal Rendezvous, Brooklyn; three months at Pelham Bay Naval Station; released December 15, 1918.

CLARK HOPKINS, 299 Lawrence Street, New Haven, Conn. (address for next year Balliol College, Oxford, England).

Yale R. O. T. C.; second Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, U. S. R., November 27, 1917; assigned to Camp Devens; ordered overseas in July, 1918; served with 76th Division in St. Amand (Cher), France; sick in hospital in France, October, 1918; returned to the United States as a patient, December 24, 1918; discharged January 16, 1919.

ALBERT JOSEPH HOWARD, 428 Poplar Street, New Haven, Conn.

Enlisted in the Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps, January 4, 1918; continued studies in the Yale School of Medicine; assigned to Company F, Yale S. A. T. C., September 26, 1918; served as a Private until discharged December 14, 1918.

WALDO HUTCHINS, JR., 544 Main Street, Geneva, N. Y.

Corporal, Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; entered service as a Private, Field Artillery, at Camp Dix, September 5, 1917; made Sergeant in September and First Sergeant in December, 1917; third Officers' Training Camp, Camp Dix, graduating as eligible for commission as Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery; sent overseas May 23, 1918, with assignment to Headquarters Company, 309th Field Artillery; attended Saumur Artillery School; received commission as Second Lieutenant in June; graduated at Saumur with recommendation as an Instructor, August 28; sent to the front and rejoined the 309th Field Artillery, September 10, 1918; transferred to the Brigade Headquarters as Liaison and Intelligence Officer; took part in the fighting in the St. Mihiel and Puvenelle sectors, and in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive until the Armistice; sent to Verdun, then to Les Lauines, near Dijon; received promotion to First Lieutenant in February, 1919; returned to the United States, May 10, and received discharge May 15, 1919, at Camp Dix.

CARLOS ICAZA, A., P. O. Box 532, Panama, Republic of Panama.

Yale School of Law, 1917-1919.

HENRY PORTER ISHAM, 1007 First National Bank Building, Chicago, Ill.

Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan, Ill.; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; detailed as Instructor to second camp, August 24 to November 24; assigned to Battery B, 331st Field Artillery, Camp Grant; School of Fire, Fort Sill, and then with company at Sparta, Wis.; promoted to Captain, August 1, 1918; sent overseas in September, in command of Battery D, 331st Field Artillery, 86th Division; returned to the United States, February 4, 1919; discharged February 20, 1919.

ELLERY SEDGWICK JAMES, 68 East Eighty-sixth Street, New York City.

Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison; commissioned Captain, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; detailed as Instructor to second Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison, August 24 to November 24; assigned to 324th Heavy Field Artillery, 83d Division, Camp Sherman, December 1, 1917; attended School of Fire, Fort Sill; sent overseas June 12, 1918, in Advance Detachment, 158th Field Artillery Brigade; attended Orientation School at Coëtquidan, Brittany; at the front, in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive, with the 29th Division, from September 24 until the Armistice was signed; assigned to 32d Division, Army of Occupation, stationed ten miles east of the Rhine; transferred to 133d Field Artillery, February 15, 1919; arrived Newport News, March 20; discharged April 1, 1919, at Camp Upton.

OLIVER BURR JENNINGS, Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, N. Y.

Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; enlisted June, 1917, as Gunner's Mate (2d Class), U. S. N. R. F.; Scout Patrol 455, U. S. S. Anado; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., September 19, 1917; attended second Reserve Officers' Class, U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis; commissioned Ensign (T), U. S. N., January, 1918, and assigned to the U. S. S. Louisiana; promoted to Ensign, U. S. N., and to Lieutenant (j. g.), for temporary service, from September 21, 1918; attached to staff of Commander, Cruiser and Transport Force; early in 1919 assigned to the U. S. S. George Washington; discharged July 12, 1919.

ROBERT JAMES JEWETT, 313 Summer Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Niagara; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Headquarters Company, 310th Field Artillery, Camp Meade.

ARTHUR AUGUST JOHN JOHNSON, 32 Willow Street, Waterbury, Conn.

First Lieutenant, Medical Corps, U. S. A.; served from June 18, 1918, until discharged, April 10, 1919.

FREDERIC AUGUSTUS JOHNSON, 3D, care Johnson Music Company, 6102 Penn Avenue, E. E., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; enlisted September 4, 1917; assigned September 5, to Camp Sherman; arrived overseas March 10, 1918; Private, Intelligence Section, Base Section No. 4; in April, 1918, assigned to G-2, Services of Supply, Paris; in May, 1919, assigned to Major R. Tyler, American Commission to Negotiate Peace, for service at Coblenz with the Inter-Allied Rhineland Commission, at Coblenz, Germany, in July, 1919; discharged September 10, 1919.

WOODRUFF JOHNSON, 103 Bryant Street, Rahway, N. J.

Yale R. O. T. C.; second Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Ordnance, November 27, 1917; stationed in Washington, D. C.; March 1 to April 13, 1918, Machine Gun School, Springfield Armory, Massachusetts, for instruction in airplane types of machine guns; sent overseas April 21; week's course of instruction on the armament of airplanes in Paris; assigned as Armament Installation Officer, Orly, No. 1 Field, June, 1918, to January 24, 1919; during closing months of the war had charge of Installation Department, arming about twenty-five airplanes daily before their departure for the front; recommended for promotion; returned to the United States, February 15; discharged February 21, 1919.

STODDARD PINTARD JOHNSTON, 146 East Thirty-eighth Street, New York City.

Provisional Second Lieutenant, Coast Artillery Corps, November, 1917; December 1, 1917, sent to Fort Monroe; promoted in February, 1918, to First Lieutenant; stationed at Fort Terry; in France in August, 1918; with Captain Horace C. Levinson, Coast Artillery Corps, at Fort Monroe, Fort Terry, and at Vayres, Gironde, in France; with Headquarters, 68th Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps; transferred on detached service, December, 1918, to Richelieu, Indre et Loire; reported at St. Aignan, France, in May, 1919; at Gièvres, in Department of Rents, Requisitions, and Claims; at Brest, France, in office of Troop Movement, October, 1919.

RAY WILLIAMS JONES, JR., 1114 Fifteenth Avenue, North, Seattle, Wash.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, The Presidio of San Francisco; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to 346th Field Artillery, Camp Lewis.

LOUIS ALPHONSE JULIANELLE, 59 Asylum Street, New Haven, Conn.

Physically disqualified for active service; student at the Yale School of Medicine, 1917-1919.

HENRY KATZ, 16 State Street, Hartford, Conn.

Enlisted December 17, 1917, in the Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps, as a Private; on detached service to continue study of medicine at Harvard Medical School.

SIDNEY GENIN KELLEY, 210 West Ninetieth Street, New York City.

Enlisted May 14, 1917; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to the 306th Field Artillery; stationed at Camp Upton, New York, August 29, 1917, to April 24, 1918; sent overseas April 24; promoted to First Lieutenant, July 30; returned to the United States, September 7; stationed with the 36th Field Artillery at Camp McClellan, September 24, 1918, until discharged February 9, 1919.

WILLIAM ALBERT KELLY, Hamden, Conn.

Rejected for both active and limited military service because of physical disability; placed in Class 5-H by the Draft Board; worked in the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, making gun tools, from June to October, 1918, and also did part time work while attending Yale School of Law.

BERNARD REILLY KENNEDY, 1349 Chapel Street, New Haven, Conn.

U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Class of 1918, graduated June 28, 1917; enlisted in New Haven as Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. A., August 9, 1917; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, from same date; promoted to Captain, July 11, 1918; assigned to Battery C, 4th Field Artillery; served at Fort Leavenworth, September 1 to November 15, 1917; Camp Shelby, November 20, 1917, to July 3, 1918; Camp Logan, July 3 to September 30, 1918; since October 1, 1918, stationed at U. S. A. General Hospital No. 12, Biltmore, N. C.

JAMES MORRIS KENT, 736 Dixwell Avenue, New Haven, Conn.

Enlisted as a Private, Medical Department, June 1, 1918, in New Haven; transferred to the Quartermaster Department, February 1, 1919; discharged May 29, 1919.

WILLIAM KENT, JR., Kentfield, Marin County, Calif.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, The Presidio of San Francisco, May 14 to August 16, and August 24 to November 27, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant (prospective Provisional Regular), November 27; assigned to Battery F, 11th Field Artillery, Fort Douglas; assigned to 3d Battalion Headquarters in March, 1918, and sent with one other officer from his battalion to Peoria, Ill., and to Kenosha, Wis., for special study of gas engines and motors; sent overseas July 14, 1918; in the Argonne-Meuse Offensive, October 20 to November 11, with 11th Regiment, 58th Field Artillery Brigade, 89th Division; promoted to First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, November 2, 1918; assigned as Munitions Officer the last ten days of the war; returned to the United States, and received discharge May 31, 1919.

CLARK OLER KIMBERLY, Hampton, Va.

Second Lieutenant, Battery D, Tobyhanna, 1916; first Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; assigned to 12th Field Artillery, Fort Myer, August 15, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. A., November, 1917; assigned to Battery D, 12th Field Artillery, St. Asophs; sailed for France, January 5, 1918, on the liner Olympic; regiment assigned to the 2d Division; continuous fighting in the operations northwest of Château-Thierry, May 30 to July 15; promoted to First Lieutenant, June 9; in action south of Soissons, July 18 to July 26; gassed July 28 and removed to Evacuation Hospital No. 5 at Vichy; rejoined regiment for St. Mihiel Offensive, September 11 to September 18; September 30 to October 30, Champagne Offensive (Blanc Mort); November 1 to November 11, Meuse-Argonne Offensive; awarded Croix de Guerre, October 9, 1918, with two citations as follows: "From the 6th to 11th of October, 1918, the above named officer by his energy and at great personal risk furnished the batteries of his regiment with ammunition in spite of violent enemy shell fire"; "This officer by his constant and faithful attention to duty in the face of the most trying hardships and exposure to both clement and hostile shell fire rendered valuable service to his country during the recent engagements with the enemy at Château-Thierry from June 1 to July 10, 1918"; with the Army of Occupation at Hönningen, near Coblenz; transferred to Headquarters Company, 2d Field Artillery Brigade, January 15, 1919; transferred to Battery B, 12th Field Artillery, April 15, 1919; returned to the United States, July 6, 1919; has applied for resignation.

GEORGE CLARK KINCAID, 941 Calle Henan, Manila, P. I. (present address, Palo Alto, Calif.).

LAWRENCE BURRELL KINPORTS, care of Gillespie, Kinports & Beard, 309 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Employed in the New York office of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, an essential industry.

EDWARD MILES KNOX, 1152 Yale Station, New Haven, Conn.

On July 5, 1917, started work with the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, New Haven; on time study and statistical work for a few months, then put on cartridge scheduling; in January, 1918, joined the Preparation Section of the Cartridge Department to facilitate and speed up production; in the autumn of 1918, when the twenty million expansion move in cartridges came on, transferred to the Manufacturing Engineers' Department; various applications to officers' training camps refused because of color blindness.

JOHN LAWRENCE KOEHNE, 30 North Shamokin Street, Shamokin, Pa.

With the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, New Haven, October, 1917, to September, 1918; detailed for work in psychological tests for employment basis in civilian capacity, by Surgeon-General's office; entered the U. S. Naval Reserve Force; called to active duty in November, 1918, and sent as Apprentice Seaman to Headquarters, 2d Naval District, Newport, R. I.; advanced to Yeoman (2d Class), and discharged in March, 1919.

NATHAN KROLL, 9 Wales Street, Dorchester, Mass.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, August 15, 1917; transferred in September from Infantry to Field Artillery; sailed September 28, 1917, with 51st Artillery Brigade; transferred to Aviation Section as Balloon Observer; sent to U. S. School of Aviation, France, attached to Brigade Headquarters, 51st Artillery Brigade; transferred from the training school into active service with the 7th Field Artillery, 1st Division, March 30, 1918, acting as Advance Supply Officer; marched under the gates of Verdun, November 11, 1918; after the Armistice with the Army of Occupation in Coblenz; still overseas in July, 1919.

PAUL CHI-TING KWEI, care Foreign Department, Y. M. C. A., 347 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Entered Y. M. C. A. overseas service, April, 1918; sailed for France, May 7, reaching Bordeaux, May 17; hut secretary for Chinese laborers in Gièvres, Loire, and Cher, May 24 to October 24; transferred to Beau Desert, Gironde; became director of Chinese work, Bordeaux region, January 22, 1919; released June 1; sailed from Brest, June 9 on S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam; reached the United States, June 19; discharged June 21, 1919.

ALAN EUGENE LAGERGREN, 200 South Oxford Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

DENISON DAVID LAMBERT, 163 Bradley Street, New Haven, Conn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; rejected for six branches of military service because of physical disability.

GILBERT SIMMONS LANCE, 365 Prairie Avenue, Kenosha, Wis.

Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan, Ill.; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; sent overseas; detailed to the 7th Field Artillery, 1st Division; cited for bravery under fire while on duty as Liaison Officer with the 28th Infantry in the operations around Cantigny, and slightly gassed May 29, 1918; promoted to First Lieutenant, July 30; assigned as Instructor to Headquarters Company, 40th Field Artillery, Camp Custer, Mich., September 7, 1919; discharged there February 1, 1919.

HENRY HUTTON LANDON, JR., 19 East Fifty-third Street, New York City.

Yale Batteries, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale Aero Unit No. 1, Palm Beach, March 24, 1917; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. Flying Corps, September 1, in New York City; sailed for France, and reported at U. S. Naval Air Station, Le Croisic, France, November 1, 1917; transferred to the U. S. Naval Air Station, Ile Tudy, France, April 4, 1918; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), March 23; transferred to Milan, Italy, for Caproni ferry service, June 1; promoted to Lieutenant (s. g.), October 20; reported at St. Inglevert, France, November 1, 1918; left Pauillac, France, February 4, 1919; duty abroad—seaplane patrol and Caproni night flying.

JOHN FITCH LANDON, 908 West End Avenue, New York City.

Enlisted as Hospital Apprentice (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F., Medical Reserve, December 15, 1917; furloughed to continue study of medicine at College of Physicians and Surgeons at Columbia University; released from active duty December 17, 1918.

FAIRFAX STUART LANDSTREET, JR., 563 Park Avenue, New York City.

Yale Batteries; Yale R. O. T. C.; commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. R., May 10, 1917; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; reported for duty with the 12th Field Artillery, August 27, 1917, at Camp St. Asaphs; commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. A., October 25, 1917, and First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. A., the same date; sent overseas January 11, 1918; attached to the 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, as Chief of Liaison during First Battle of Château-Thierry; gassed in the Soissons Sector, July 24; promoted to Captain, July 30; returned to the United States, September 7; detailed as Instructor at Camp Meade; commanded Battery B, 31st Field Artillery, until demobilized; resigned December 5, 1918.

CARLISLE RUSSELL LANE, Room 211, 203 Broadway, New York City.

Rejected for the army because of defective eyesight; engaged as engineering assistant, office of supervisor of traffic, New York Telephone Company.

FRANK THATCHER LANE, 73 South Water Street, New Haven, Conn.

Enlisted at New Haven, as a Private, Ordnance Corps, December 15, 1917; assigned to Winchester Repeating Arms Company as assistant inspector in small arms ammunition department, and detailed to ballistic work; advanced to Sergeant, December 19, 1917; in July, 1918, transferred to Officers' Training Camp, Aberdeen Proving Ground; completed prescribed course at Ordnance Engineering School; commissioned Second Lieutenant and assigned to duty at the post; discharged January 9, 1919.

WALTER BALDWIN LAWRENCE, 44 Woodland Avenue, Summit, N. J.

Yeoman, Yale Naval Training Unit; rejected in draft because of physical disability.

PAUL EDWARD LEARY, 1315 Main Street, Hartford, Conn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Winchester Repeating Arms Company, New Haven; entered service April 26, 1918, at Camp Devens; with the 301st Infantry, Camp Devens, May and June, 1918; transferred to the 103d Ordnance Company the end of June; transferred to the Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor, October 26; discharged November 29, 1918.

HAROLD SHAW LEBSKY, 7315 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

HOWARD GREELEY LEE, 654 Clinton Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

Entered service as a Private, Overseas Repair Section No. 1, Gas Defense Service, September 27, 1917; was at Allentown, Pa.; entered foreign service in France, November 14, 1917; left France, January 9, 1919; when discharged, January 30, 1919, at Camp Upton, was a Sergeant in the Chemical Warfare Service.

SHAO-CHANG LEE, 830 Stockton Street, San Francisco, Calif.

While in Teachers College, Columbia University, organized the Lecture Band which spoke every week in Chinatown, New York City, on the war issues; in September, 1918, became executive secretary, Chinese Branch of the San Francisco Y. M. C. A.

HARRY WILLIAM LEGORE, LeGore, Md.

Enlisted as Second Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, May 30, 1917; trained at Winthrop, Md., and at Quantico, Va.; promoted to First Lieutenant and assigned to Headquarters Company, 5th Regiment, Marine Corps, 2d Division; sent overseas August 20, 1917; in Marne Offensive and Defensive (Château-Thierry); at St. Mihiel; in Champagne and Meuse-Argonne operations; in Base Hospital No. 1 because of "trench feet" in April, 1918; promoted to Captain, July 2, 1918; returned to the United States, June 15, 1919; received discharge July 15, 1919.

ALBERT CONRAD LEISENRING, JR., 1856 Mintwood Place, Washington, D. C.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to command Battery A, 314th Field Artillery, Camp Lee, October 23; ordered to Camp Jackson as Instructor; ordered overseas July, 1918; assigned to Battery F, 7th Field Artillery, 1st Division; Saizerais Sector in August; St. Mihiel salient; Meuse-Argonne operations; fought continuously from October 1 to October 12 (the 1st Division has had three citations; Order 201 by General Pershing is devoted to this single command; the 7th Unit had the greatest number of fatalities of any of the Artillery units, being in the battles at the Meuse River and the Argonne Forest; after the Armistice the 1st Division left Abaucourt, near Verdun, and marched two hundred miles to Coblenz, being the first American force to cross the Rhine); in March, 1919, reported at the École des Mines, Paris, France; returned to the United States and was discharged.

MILTON MARSHALL LEMER, Camp Hill, Pa.

HORACE CLIFFORD LEVINSON, 4049 Lake Park Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Trained at Forts Monroe and Terry, and at Vayres, Gironde, France; Second Lieutenant, Coast Artillery Corps, October 26, 1917; promoted to First Lieutenant same date; stationed at Fort Monroe, Va., December 1, 1917, to March 27, 1918; promoted to Captain, and assigned to Headquarters Company, 68th Coast Artillery Corps, 1st Army; sent overseas August 9, 1918; after Armistice transferred to duty under Regulating Station H, convoying food and supplies from Liffol-le-Grand to Coblenz; discharged June 4, 1919.

RICHARD PERCY LIMBURG, 45 East Eighty-second Street, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg, in Artillery Section; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, N. A., August 15, 1917; promoted to First Lieutenant, June, 1918; promoted to Captain in July, 1918; sent overseas July 10, commanding Motor Truck Company 418; in Motor Supply Train 411 in France; returned to the United States and discharged July 15, 1919.

HENRY DICKINSON LINDSLEY, JR., care J. W. Lindsley & Company, 1313 Main Street, Dallas, Texas.

Trained at Mineola; qualified as Reserve Military Aviator; commissioned First Lieutenant, Air Service, August 20, 1917; assigned to Wilbur Wright Field as Instructor in flying; sailed for France, December 30, 1917; served at the front in the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse drives, attached to 93d Aero Squadron, 3d Pursuit Group, 1st Army; reported missing in action, but later returned to duty; returned to the United States, January 13, and received discharge January 29, 1919; awarded citation by General Pershing, April 19, 1919, "for exceptionally meritorious and conspicuous services with the 93d Aero Squadron."

JOSHUA OLIVER EMANUEL LINDSTROM, Augustana Theological Seminary, Rock Island, Ill.

Reported for military duty, January 18, 1918; assigned to the 11th Company, 3d Battalion, Depot Brigade, Camp Devens; disqualified for general service because of deformed foot due to infantile paralysis; discharged January 28, 1918; employed for six months by the Scovill Company of Waterbury, Conn., manufacturing ammunition.

LUCIEN APPLEBY LOORAM, 50 Broad Street, New York City.

Rejected for the Navy in May, 1917, because of insufficient weight; enlisted as Private (1st Class), Aviation Section, Signal Corps, August 22, 1917, at Mineola; trained at the U. S.

School of Military Aeronautics, Princeton University, December 1, 1917, to March 1, 1918; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Air Service, July 15, 1918; discharged February 20, 1919.

JAMES DANIEL LUCEY, 216 East Redwood Street, Baltimore, Md.

Enlisted as Quartermaster (3d Class), U. S. N. R. F., in Cleveland, Ohio, January 6, 1918; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., August 10; overseas on board U. S. S. Orizaba, August 31; on transport service August to December; transported U. S. press correspondents to Brest for Peace Conference in December; engaged in repatriation of French prisoners between Copenhagen, Rotterdam, and Cherbourg, December, 1918, to March, 1919, when discharged.

CHARLES FREDERICK LUTHY, Albuquerque, N. Mex.

Entered Officers' Training Camp, The Presidio of San Francisco, May 14, 1917; transferred to Aviation and was assigned to the School of Military Aeronautics, Berkeley, Calif.; resigned from Aviation Service and was honorably discharged August 14, 1917; enlisted as a Private at Camp Cody, March 4, 1918; assigned to Auxiliary Remount Depot No. 326, at that camp; appointed Sergeant (1st Class), June 19, with duties as Noncommissioned Officer in charge of gas instruction, and Assistant Instructor of cavalry drill; commissioned First Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, September 20, 1918; transferred to Auxiliary Remount Depot No. 324, at Camp MacArthur, with duties as Personnel Officer, Exchange Officer, Issuing and Receiving Officer, and assistant to the officer in command of the depot; transferred to Auxiliary Remount Depot No. 333, Camp Joseph E. Johnston, for assignment to Field Remount squadrons forming for embarkation overseas; squadrons delayed by quarantine; discharged December 6, 1918.

CALHOUN THEODORE LYFORD, care W. H. Lyford, 61 Broadway, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan,

Ill., May 14 to August 15, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, National Army; assigned to 311th Ammunition Train, Camp Grant, September 1 to December 2, 1917; Camp Joseph E. Johnston, December 22, 1917, to February 5, 1918; Camp Sheridan, Ala., February to June 28, 1918; promoted to First Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, National Army, March 20, 1918; embarked from Camp Upton with the 37th Division, June 28; in England, July 10; reached France, July 12; attached to Company D, 112th Supply Train, 87th Division; serving with the Supply and Ammunition trains at Verdun, in the Argonne, at the Meuse, and near Ghent in Belgium; transferred to the 339th Service Battalion, January, 1919, first serving at Verdun, and later at Brest; still stationed there in June, 1919.

DAVID BRAINERD LYMAN, 3D, 430 West 119th Street, New York City.

Yale Naval Training Unit; enlisted as Gunner's Mate (3d Class), U. S. N. R. F., at Newport, R. I., June 2, 1917; appointed Assistant Paymaster, U. S. N. R. F., June 7; sent to the Pay Officers' School, U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, June 16; sailed on the U. S. S. Louisville for overseas duty, August 7; on duty as Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., Pay Corps, Disbursing and Transportation Office, U. S. Naval Base No. 7, Brest, France, August 26, 1918, to February 17, 1919; returned to the United States on the H. M. T. Aquitania; released from active duty, April 8, 1919.

BERNARD EUGENE LYNCH, JR., 103 Livingston Avenue, New Brunswick, N. J.

Enlisted October 23, 1915, in the 10th Field Artillery, Connecticut National Guard; assigned to Battery D, Tobyhanna, 1916; discharged November 30, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery E, 303d Heavy Field Artillery, Camp Devens; Field Artillery Replacement Depot, Camp Jackson, May 1 to August 4; 11th Ammunition Train, 11th Division, Camp Meade, August 5 to December 14, 1918; on detached service with the Motor Transport Corps, on Motor Convoy Service, October 15 to November 7, 1918; mustered out of service at Camp Meade, December 14, 1918.

RALPH EDWARD McDONNELL, 1074 Chapel Street, New Haven, Conn.

Sanitary Detachment, Tobyhanna, 1916; discharged from 10th Field Artillery, Connecticut National Guard, December, 1916, to study medicine; enlisted in the Medical Department, U. S. N. R. F., December, 1916, and put on inactive duty; engaged in experimental work on the poisonous gases and gas masks for the United States Gas Investigation during the summer of 1917; ordered to the Yale School of Medicine to complete medical studies, 1917-1918; called to active duty in September; released to inactive duty December, 1918.

WILLARD STUART McKAY, 726 Kensington Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted as Private (1st Class), Aviation Section, Signal Enlisted Reserve Corps, June 16, 1917; graduated from U. S. School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University, in August, 1917; sailed in September; took flying training in Foggia, Italy; commissioned First Lieutenant, Air Service, Signal Corps, U. S. R., February 28, 1918; one of the forty-eight officers of the American Air Service in Italy who have been authorized to wear the Italian service ribbon.

WILLIAM LEE McKIM, Short Hills, N. J.

Corporal, Overseas Repair Section No. 1, Gas Defense Service.

THOMAS JOSEPH MacMAHON, 131 West Street, Holyoke, Mass.

Enlisted September 26, 1917; made Acting Corporal a few weeks later; advanced to Sergeant, Company F, 328th Infantry, January 19, 1918; overseas May 1; commissioned Second Lieutenant, July 18, and transferred to Company M, 139th Infantry, 35th Division; served in the Haute-Alsace Sector; division in reserve in the St. Mihiel Offensive and started the Argonne Drive, September 26; in action until October 2, 1918.

JOHN HUGH MacMILLAN, JR., 317 Clifton Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

Corporal, Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; first Officers' Training Camp, Fort Snelling; commissioned Captain, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Headquarters, 163d Artillery Brigade, Camp Dodge; detailed to School of Fire, Fort Sill, as student, November 1, 1917; returned to Camp Dodge, January 30, 1918; overseas, August 18; promoted to Major, Field Artillery, August 22; in Meuse-Argonne Offensive as Observer, October 10 to October 22; served as Adjutant of 163d Brigade; returned to the United States, January 9, and was discharged January 21, 1919, at Camp Dodge; now a Major, Field Artillery Section, Officers' Reserve Corps.

HENRY NEIL MALLON, 234 McGregor Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916; transferred to Corporal, Battery B, Tobyhanna; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison; commissioned Captain, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned as Instructor to the second Officers' Training Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison; transferred to Battery B, 323d Field Artillery, Camp Sherman, November, 1917; detailed to Fort Sill in January, 1918; assigned as Instructor to the School of Fire, Fort Sill, in April; promoted to Major, Field Artillery, July 30; detailed to 11th Field Artillery Brigade, Camp Meade, July to October; sailed for France about October 28, as Brigade Adjutant; detailed to Camp de Souge, attached to the 11th Field Artillery Brigade; returned to the United States, and received discharge March 15, 1919, at Camp Upton.

THEODORE CHRISTOPHER MARCEAU, JR., 624 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Enlisted as Seaman (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F., May 8, 1917; passed examinations, September 1, for commission as Ensign, U. S. N. R. F.; detailed to Annapolis, October 1, for four months' course; appointed Ensign (T), U. S. N., February 1, 1918; assigned to U. S. S. South Dakota; transferred June, 1918, to U. S. S. Ward; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), U. S. N., September 21, 1918.

IRVING KARL MARKS, 164 Rutledge Street, Charleston, S. C.

Because of defective eyesight and trouble with one knee, rejected for the R. O. T. C., Artillery, Naval Reserve, field clerkship, and Red Cross; in Washington, D. C., June to December 15, 1918, as a civilian in the Ordnance Department, Procurement Section, Packing Container Branch, buying paper, tin, and fiber containers for munitions.

LEONARD LYON MARSHALL, 574 Hawthorne Place, Chicago, Ill.

Headquarters Company, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan, Ill.; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery C, 332d Field Artillery, 86th Division, Camp Grant; promoted to First Lieutenant, February 24, 1918; went overseas September 9; spent most of the time near Bordeaux, France; returned to the United States; mustered out of service February 28, 1919.

DAN MATHER, JR., R. F. D. 2, Burlington Flats (Albany), N. Y.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916; transferred to Battery D, Tobyhanna; enlisted as Seaman, U. S. N. R. F., March 26, 1917, in New Haven; on board U. S. S. Abalone, Scout Patrol No. 208; Gunner's Mate (2d Class), U. S. S. Siwash, Scout Patrol No. 12, September, 1917; Quartermaster aboard U. S. S. Edith, carrying ammunition to France, until the Armistice, after that running to South American ports; released to inactive duty, June 19, 1919.

IRVING WILLIAM MAXWELL, 125 Chadwick Street, Portland, Maine.

Volunteered for service in the Quartermaster Corps in June, 1918; sent to Camp Joseph E. Johnston; discharged because of slight physical disability.

SAMUEL WILLIAMS MEEK, The Yale Club, 50 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted in U. S. Marine Corps; commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, May 21, 1917; Officers' Training School, Quantico; sent overseas, February, 1918, assigned to 6th Regiment, U. S. Marines, 2d Regular Division; promoted to First Lieutenant in July; promoted to Captain, July 2; wounded, September 15; invalided home, February 1, 1919; discharged April 3, 1919; on May 21, 1919, received Croix de Guerre with palm, the citation reading as follows: "At Bierzy, July 19, 1918, under violent bombardment, he effected a reconnaissance of positions so that his Company, which had been stopped by artillery and machine gun fire, could resume its advance. Remarkable for his bravery and disregard of danger."

PAUL ROBERT MEINHARD, 288 Birr Street, Rochester, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.

STANLEY WARREN METCALF, 86 South Street, Auburn, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; in Section 5, Morgan-Harjes Ambulance Unit, April to September, 1917; section attached to 66th Division of Chasseurs Alpine (Blue Devils) at Chemin des Dames during the summer of 1917; enlisted in Paris, receiving commission as Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, October 2, 1917; trained at Valdahon November 11, 1917, to March 10, 1918; assigned to Battery F, 17th Field Artillery, 2d Division, which went into action at the front in March, 1918; training in Verdun Sector, March to May; saw active service in Château-

Thierry, Soissons, St. Mihiel, Champagne, and Meuse-Argonne operations; with the French under General Gourand at Mont Blanc, Argonne; recommended for promotion in July after Battle of Soissons; commissioned First Lieutenant, September 17; with the Army of Occupation, stationed at Fort Ehrenbreitstein; discharged at St. Aignan, France, June 6, 1919; returned to the United States August 11, 1919.

GEORGE ARTHUR MEYER, 607 North Main Street, Ada, Ohio.

Enlisted in U. S. Army Ambulance Service, June 29, 1917; made Sergeant, September 11; arrived in France, April 6, 1918; transferred to Headquarters Troop, 3d Army Corps, as Sergeant, Interpreter, July 6; sent from Remiremont to Beauvais to establish Corps Headquarters at the time of the drive of July 18; in Paris, July 15, at the time of Big Bertha's first shot; under fire at Crépy; moved up to Château Chenoye in the Bois de Compiègne; in the Soissons salient on the eve of the attack of July 18; moved to Chelles, functioning for the 3d Corps, August 28 to November, 1918; transferred to the 40th Division Regimental Replacement Depot, handling replacements for the 1st Army, and returned prisoners of war; transferred from Headquarters Troop, 3d Army Corps, to Headquarters Company, 158th Infantry, November 15, 1918; returned to the United States; discharged May 1, 1919.

HAROLD MEYER, care of Meyer Brothers, Meridian, Miss.

Enlisted as a Private, June 6, 1918, at Camp Shelby; made Sergeant, Quartermaster Corps, Camp Shelby, in December, 1918; received discharge March 1, 1919.

HUMPHREY BENHAM MILES, 2617 Euclid Boulevard, Euclid Heights, Cleveland, Ohio.

Rejected for enlistment in two training camps; for twenty months employed by the Machine Products Company, making munitions.

HIRAM ALLEN MILLER, JR., 85 Erie Avenue, Newton Highlands, Mass.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., in 1917; severely wounded in action; reported First Lieutenant, Field Artillery Headquarters, France, in June, 1919.

WILLIAM FESTUS MORGAN, JR., Cooperstown, N. Y.

Went to France with the Norton-Harjes Ambulance Unit in July, 1917; released October 15, 1917; transferred to the American forces, serving with the French Army in the northern and northeastern part of France.

SETH WARNER MORRISON, JR., 32 Seventh East Street, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Yale R. O. T. C.; attended first Officers' Training Camp, The Presidio of San Francisco; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to 347th Field Artillery, Camp Lewis; appointed acting Battalion Adjutant in September, 1917; ordered to School of Fire, Fort Sill, and promoted to First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, January, 1918; graduated as Instructor, Field Artillery, in April; ordered to the Infantry School of Arms, Liaison Section, Fort Sill, in May; graduated as Division Instructor, May 24; assigned as Artillery Instructor, fourth Officers' Training Camp, Camp Lewis, in May; sent by request to Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor; ordered to report to his regiment June 18; assigned to Headquarters Company and entrained for overseas June 28; appointed acting Battalion Adjutant again in August; detailed for special training in Artillery with the French Army near front lines; at battle of St. Mihiel salient as an Artillery Observer; rejoined regiment in September; appointed Regimental Artillery Information (Intelligence) Officer in October; regiment moved up to the front near Verdun the last week in October; held as reserves until the Armistice was signed; had charge of handling all information, communiqués, and press dispatches from regimental and battalion radio service concerning progress of German envoys to meet French in negotiations for the Armistice (movements of envoys, stopping the firing, blowing up the bridge, etc.); appointed Artillery Regimental Billeting Officer during the advance in Luxemburg and Rhenish Prussia to Föhren, in November, 1918; detailed to 7th Corps Headquarters, Wittlich, Germany, as assistant to Colonel in charge of Corps civil affairs, January, 1919; released from detail and rejoined regiment at Föhren; returned to the United States on the Leviathan, April 2; discharged April 30, 1919.

ALDEN ARTHUR MUDGE, Afton, N. Y.

DUDLEY HERSEY MUDGE, 449 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, Minn.

Attended first Officers' Training Camp, Fort Snelling; transferred in July, 1917, to Aviation Ground School, Columbus, Ohio; graduated in September, 1917; accepted for air training in Italy; sailed September 18; orders changed; assigned to British Royal Flying Corps, cadet course at Oxford, then to special machine gun school; injured in an air accident in England, December 4, 1917; returned to active service in May, 1918; commissioned First Lieutenant, U. S. Air Service, Aeronautics; among "First Fifty Thousand" discharged January 15, 1919, at Garden City.

WILLIAM EVERETT MUELLER, 4 Millikin Place, Decatur, Ill.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted in U. S. N. R. F.; commissioned Ensign in summer of 1918; stationed as Instructor at U. S. Navy Steam Engineering School, Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken.

GEORGE MOSHER MURRAY, 205 West Ninth Street, Plainfield, N. J.

Enlisted at New Haven in April, 1917, as Seaman, U. S. N. R. F.; on duty at New Haven Base, May 18 to September 27; at Pelham Bay, September 27, 1917, to February 1, 1918; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., and assigned to third Reserve Officers' Class, U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, February 1, 1918; commissioned Ensign (T), U. S. N., June 8; Junior Officer on board U. S. S. New Hampshire, June 10 to September 1; appointed Instructor in the Hydrophone School, New London, Conn., after completing eight weeks' course in anti-submarine devices; mustered out of service December 16, 1918.

LAWRENCE NEWBOLD MURRAY, care National Commercial Bank, Albany, N. Y.

Headquarters Company, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to 301st Field Artillery, Camp Devens; commanded Battery B from November, 1917, to June, 1918; promoted to First Lieutenant, January 16, 1918; detailed to School of Fire, Fort Sill, April 12 to May 23; sent overseas with Advance School Detachment of 151st Field Artillery Brigade, June 28; landed in England; attended School at Camp Valdahon, France; trained at Camp de Souge at Bordeaux; sent to Versaignes where regiment was billeted to complete equipment before going to the front; still there when the Armistice was signed; returned to the United States, January 5; received discharge January 18, 1919.

CHARLES FARRADAY NEAVE, 133 East Sixty-second Street, New York City.

First Lieutenant, Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Leon Springs, in 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Reserve Corps, Second Lieutenant, Regular Army, and promoted to First Lieutenant, Regular Army, August, 1917; assigned to the 3d Field Artillery, and stationed at Fort Sam Houston; sent to Camp Doniphan with the 3d Field Artillery; sailed for overseas service, July 13, 1918; detached on leave and assigned as Field Artillery Instructor at Camp Valdahon, France, in November, 1918; assigned to the American Relief Administration, Mission for Poland, March 1, 1919; in Warsaw in July, 1919.

ASA BURTON NELSON, Derby Line, Vt.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, August 15, 1917; ordered to Camp Devens in October, 1917; temporarily assigned to 301st Ammunition Train; sent overseas December 27, 1917; for short time in Motor Transport Service, but transferred to Quartermaster Corps, April 5, 1918; promoted to First Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, October 31, 1918; stationed near Bordeaux, France, as Assistant Co-Ordinate Officer, and later as Co-Ordinate Officer, at Bassens Docks.

AUGUSTUS CARPENTER NEWELL, care of The Jefferson Coal Company, 401 Citizens Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

Enlisted in the U. S. N. R. F., November 5, 1917; worked in the Cable Censor's office as Chief Yeoman; February, 1918, transferred to Naval Aviation as Chief Machinist's Mate; gas engine course at Columbia University, specializing in Liberty motors; sailed for France, landing May 19, 1918; eight months' overseas duty, mostly with the Northern Bombing Group in France; at Pauillac, France, in May; at Milan, Italy, in June; at St. Inglevert, France, in July; at Eastleigh, England, in September; recommended for commission as Ensign just before the Armistice was signed; returned to the United States on the S. S. Leviathan in December, 1918; received discharge February 28, 1919.

GEORGE EDWARD NICHOLS, Newman, Ill.

Entered service in May, 1918; sent to Camp Gordon; transferred in July, 1918, to the Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, October 31; assigned to Field Artillery Replacement Depot, Camp Jackson; discharged December 28, 1918.

JULIUS MOSHER NOLTE, 1711 Wallace Avenue, Duluth, Minn.

Attended School for Pilots, Columbus, Ohio; reported Second Lieutenant, Air Service, at Carlstrom Field.

NOEL NOYES, 31 School Street, Bellows Falls, Vt.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916; transferred to Battery C, 10th Field Artillery, Connecticut National Guard, Tobyhanna; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Officers' Reserve Corps, August 15, 1917, and assigned to Fort Ethan Allen; commissioned Second Lieutenant (Provisional), U. S. A., September 26; attached to 18th U. S. Cavalry, Fort Ethan Allen, November 10; regiment converted into 76th Field Artillery, December 8; reassigned to 4th Field Artillery, Camp Shelby, December 8, 1917, to September 10, 1918; promoted to First Lieutenant, February 7, 1918; Mexican border service; transferred to Corpus Christi, Texas, September 10; at Camp Stanley, Leon Springs, from January 9 to February 20, 1919, when discharged.

KENNETH O'BRIEN, 729 Park Avenue, New York City.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916; transferred to Battery C, Tobyhanna; Yale R. O. T. C.; first Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery D, 306th Field Artillery, 7th Division, Camp Upton, October 1, 1917, to April, 1918; promoted to First Lieutenant, January 1, 1918; sent overseas in April; in Baccarat Sector, July 15 to August 10; in the Vesle-Aisne Offensive, August 15 to September 20; in the Argonne-Meuse Offensive, September 26 to October 20, and October 27 to November 11, 1918; promoted to Captain, March 1, 1919; returned to the United States, and received discharge May 12, 1919.

EDMUND OCUMPAUGH, 3D, 43 Elm Street, Wallingford, Conn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted as Coxswain, U. S. N. R. F., April 19, 1917, at New Haven; stationed at Base No. 3, Yale Boat House; promoted to Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., August 19, 1917; promoted to Ensign (T), U. S. N., February 1, 1918; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), for temporary service, August 15; overseas May 23, 1918, first on the U. S. S. Denver, then on the U. S. S. Druid, and then on the U. S. S. Bailey, Trans-Atlantic Convoy, Gibraltar, Mediterranean, with duty of fitting out these boats and placing them in commission; returned from overseas in January, 1919; to be released from active duty, July 15, 1919.

BENNETT OLIVER, 5522 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Enlisted May 1, 1917, at Fort Monroe, in Aviation Section, Signal Corps; trained at Newport News and at U. S. School of Military Aeronautics, Cornell University; sent overseas August 18, 1917; commissioned First Lieutenant, Aviation Section, Signal Corps, March 20, 1918, at Ayr, Scotland; proceeded to Royal Air Forces in the field, April 16; attached to 84th Squadron, Royal Air Forces, British Expeditionary Force, April 24; transferred to 148th American Squadron, as Flight Commander, attached British Expeditionary Force, June 29; proceeded on leave and to hospital in August; returned to 148th Squadron in October; moved to American Sector, November 6, 1918; officially credited with three enemy aircraft while with the 84th Squadron, Royal Air Forces (the 148th Squadron, from July 20 to end of October, 1918, was officially credited with seventy-two enemy aircraft, casualties four killed, two wounded, three prisoners); returned to the United States, January 26; received discharge February 3, 1919.

ALBERT WILLIAM OLSEN, 73 West Eleventh Street, New York City.

Mess Sergeant, Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted April 19, 1918; assigned to Battery A, 302d Field Artillery, Camp Devens; entered Officers' Training School, Camp Devens, May 15; transferred to Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor, June 30; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 17, graduating with the first class; retained as Instructor; promoted to First Lieutenant, October 23; discharged December 7, 1918.

FRANCIS SHERIDAN O'NEILL, 476 Elm Street, New Haven, Conn.

SPALDING WEST OVITT, 91 Fifth Street, Muskegon, Mich.

Enlisted June 3, 1917, as Student Sergeant, Balloon Service; at Fort Omaha, June 5, 1917, to January 3, 1918; commissioned First Lieutenant, Air Service, Signal Reserve Corps, September 13, 1917; sent overseas January 15, 1918; Commanding Officer, Balloon Company No. 6, November 3, 1917, to October 5, 1918; with French Artillery, Toul Sector, June 25 to August 30; with the 26th Division at St. Mihiel, September 13 to 21; with the 79th Division in the Argonne, the 82d Division at Montfaucon, and the 37th Division at Stenay, from September 24 to November 11; wounded and burned by a high explosive shell with mustard gas at Montfaucon on October 5; in hospital at Ippécourt and in Base Hospital No. 31 at Contrexéville until November 2, 1918; appointed editor-in-chief of the American E. F. Balloon Book; returned to the United States, May 23, 1919; received discharge June 14, 1919.

WALTER PAUL PAEPCKE, 140 East Pearson Street, Chicago, Ill.

Employed by the Chicago Mill and Lumber Company, making boxes for the government; enlisted in the U. S. N. R. F., in Chicago, May 31, 1918; assigned to the Great Lakes Naval Training Station; received commission as Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., March 1, 1919; discharged April 4, 1919.

JEHU DeWITT PAULSON, 802 Homewood Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Employed by the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, New Haven, and assisted in proper selection from the munitions employees for the draft; April, 1918, statistical draftsman, Ordnance Department, Washington, D. C.; resigned six weeks later when called by the draft, waived claims for deferred classification, and was inducted into the service, May 24, 1918, as a Private; overseas from July 9, 1918, to January 11, 1919; in the Argonne Drive in September; had influenza; was operated on for varicosity of left leg in October; in a hospital at Bordeaux until the Armistice was signed; discharged February 21, 1919.

FREDERICK ELLIOT PELONSKY, 8 Egremont Road, Brighton, Mass.

Enlisted April 2, 1917, in Red Cross Unit, Base Hospital No. 7; Private (1st Class), Medical Corps, May 28, 1917; called to Camp Devens for training in February, 1918; went across on the Leviathan, July 8; headquarters in Joué-les-Tours, France (in October, 1918, this hospital was cited for continually breaking the record for unloading convoy trains of wounded); returned to the United States, March 25, 1919; discharged April 5, 1919.

CHARLES PATTERSON PENNEY, 54 Hodge Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; transferred to Aviation Section, Signal Corps, August 4, 1917; graduated at Cornell Ground School, September 29, 1917; sailed for France, October 13; left France for Campo Ovest, Foggia, Italy, February 6, 1918; commissioned First Lieutenant, Air Service, Military Aviator; left Italy for France in June; assigned to 8th Aviation Instruction Center, France; trained with the British Royal Air Forces at Vendôme, France, during July and August; returned to Italy for Caproni instruction, September 1; returned to France after the Armistice was signed; sailed from Bordeaux, December 16; reached New York City, December 29; discharged December 31, 1918.

ARTHUR JUDSON PETRIE, 177 Willard Street, New Haven, Conn.

Enlisted as a Private, Infantry, Regular Army, at Fort Slocum, July 29, 1917; transferred to Aviation Section, Signal Corps; assigned to 59th Aero Squadron, San Antonio, August to October, 1917; on detached service as Cadet, Ground Officers' Training School, Kelly Field No. 2, October 6; 65th Aero Squadron, San Antonio, November to December; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Aviation Section, Signal Corps, December 29, 1917; transferred to Fort Sill, and detailed to School for Aerial Observers at Post Field as Assistant Aero Supply Officer; relieved May 13, 1918, and assigned to 81st Aero Squadron; relieved and placed in command of 80th Aero Squadron; appointed Post Fire Marshal and Assistant Personnel Adjutant in addition to other duties, July, 1918; completed training as Reserve Military Aviator; relieved of command of 80th Aero Squadron, March, 1919, and appointed Post Personnel Adjutant, Post Field.

ROBERT PAUL VICTOR PFLIEGER, care Paul Pflieger, Cotton Exchange, 15 William Street, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; entered Signal Corps, May 24, 1917, with rank of Sergeant (1st Class); sailed for France, May 28, 1917, on the S. S. Baltic, with General Pershing and staff; in Paris until September 1, acting as interpreter to General Russel, Chief Signal Officer; transferred to Chaumont; six months there in charge of a division of the Intelligence Section of the Signal Corps, translating and supervising the translations of technical and confidential pamphlets; took occasional trips to the Belgian and British fronts; in March, 1918, moved to Tours with the Chief Signal Officer; promoted to be a Master Signal Electrician in April; unable to secure commission for lack of so-called "final citizenship papers"; sent back to Paris to act as Liaison Agent between the purchasing office of the Signal Corps and various French offices; received "final citizenship papers" in September, 1918, but did not receive commission because of the Armistice; accompanied General Russel, Chief Signal Officer, to Metz, Treves, and Coblenz, reaching the latter town the first day of the American occupation and witnessing our first troops crossing the Rhine; acted as Liaison Agent between the Disbursing Office of the Signal Corps and various French offices from which supplies were purchased; took numerous trips to the Swiss border and to Normandy; was offered a chance to accompany a mission of investigation to Berlin and other large German cities in January, 1919, but declined in order to obtain discharge from the Army at the earliest date; recommended for certificate of merit; discharged at Gièvres, France, July 22, 1919.

T. DIEDRICHSEN

BALFOUR PHELAN, 5429 Enright Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

Private, American Ambulance Service, Section Sanitaire Unit 605; arrived in France in November, 1918; service with the French Army.

ROBERT EMMET PHELAN, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Boston, Mass.

DRYDEN LINSLEY PHELPS, 6 Dalton Street, Waterville, Maine.

Yale R. O. T. C.; at Camp Zachary Taylor for training as Chaplain, June 13, 1918; commissioned Chaplain (First Lieutenant) and assigned to the 2d Battalion, 119th Infantry, 30th Division; sent overseas July 21, 1918, and was ordered to the front immediately; with the 30th Division in the center of the wedge that cut the Hindenburg line, among the first to enter Belgium; hit in the knee by a piece of shrapnel; after the 30th Division returned home, retained as athletic director of eight thousand men at Spur Camp, near le Mans; in March, 1919, was twice cited as follows: "During the operations near Escaufourt, 10-12 October 1918, this Chaplain showed exceptional bravery and devotion to duty when, the aid post becoming congested, he voluntarily went alone through heavy enemy shell fire for a distance of three kilometres to secure ambulance conveyance. In the same engagement he volunteered as a stretcher bearer and he helped bear the wounded through heavy enemy shell fire to the ambulance loading point. His coolness under shell fire and his disregard for his own safety was an inspiration to all with whom he came in contact."

ALFRED NOROTON PHILLIPS, JR., 110 Glenbrook Road, Stamford, Conn.

Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery D, 303d Field Artillery, Camp Devens; at Camp Devens, August 20, 1917, to April 25, 1918; Field Artillery Replacement Depot, Camp Jackson, April 29 to May 15; Camp Sevier, May 16 to May 19; assigned to 115th Field Artillery,

May 20; at Camp Mills, June 3; sailed for France on S. S. Mauretania, June 4, having been commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, National Guard, just previous to sailing; promoted to First Lieutenant, July 30; returned to the United States, September 2, on board the S. S. Mongolia; attached to 32d Field Artillery at Camp Meade, September 9; assigned to 55th Field Artillery at Camp Bowie, September 30; proceeded to Camp Doniphan, Fort Sill, and commanded Battery F, 55th Field Artillery, until discharged December 5, 1918.

HOWARD NOBLE PHILLIPS, 509 Laurel Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

Debarred from active service by very defective eyesight; employed by the First-Bridgeport National Bank, working chiefly with the Liberty Loan issues.

STEPHANOS EVANGELOS PHOUTRIDES, 33 Grand Street, Waterbury, Conn.

Not accepted for military service.

WARREN WHEELER PICKETT, 49 Main Street, Winsted, Conn.

Entered service as a Private, April 27, 1918; assigned to Depot Brigade, Camp Upton; overseas June 22, 1918, as a Private, Battery E, 341st Field Artillery, 89th Division; made Corporal, August 21; served for two months in the Euvezin Sector; reported in Bitburg, Germany, in March, 1919; returned to the United States, May 22; discharged June 4, 1919.

BASIL HENRY PILLARD, 25 Court Street, New Britain, Conn.

Enlisted in Yale Batteries in November, 1915; discharged November, 1916; enlisted as Private in the Yale Mobile Hospital Unit (Base Hospital No. 39; later Mobile Hospital No. 39), in June, 1917; went overseas in August; returned to the United States in January; discharged at Camp Devens, January 28, 1919.

EDWARD STEVENSON PINNEY, 5 Gannett House, Cambridge, Mass.

Yale Battery; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; sent overseas immediately; two months' course at the French Artillery School at Fontainebleau; one month at the American First Corps School at Gondrecourt; assigned to Battery E, 7th Field Artillery, December 29, 1917; sent to the front, sector northwest of Toul, January 14, 1918; after two months and a half transferred to a point opposite Montdidier; withdrawn, July 9; sent back to the front, July 17, for five days' battle on the heights above Soissons; ordered home for assignment to a new division, August, 1918; arrived in the United States, September 11, 1918; promoted to First Lieutenant, and assigned to the Brigade Firing Center at West Point, Ky., as Instructor; mustered out of the service, December 10, 1918.

ARTHUR WILSON POPE, JR., Geneva, Ill.

Lieutenant, 3d Cavalry, U. S. A.

CHESTER ALFRED POSEY, 244 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Plattsburg, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, November 27, 1917; sent to Officers' Training Camp, Camp Stanley, Leon Springs, December, 1917; transferred to Camp Jackson, April, 1918, and assigned to Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, Field Artillery Replacement Depot; transferred to Camp Zachary Taylor, June, 1918, and assigned to the 11th Battalion, Field Artillery Replacement Depot; transferred to Camp Funston, and assigned to the command of Headquarters Company, 30th Field Artillery, August 10; commissioned First Lieutenant, October 11; promoted to Captain, November 5, 1918; discharged February 8, 1919.

HORATIO POTTER, 4021 Washington Boulevard, St. Louis, Mo.

Corporal, Battery D, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.;

Officers' Training Camp, Fort Riley; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917, and sent to France immediately; assigned to Battery E, 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division, which is reputed to have fired our first shot in the war; at the front, Arracourt Sector, during October, 1917; hard training all winter in Toul Sector, with local combats; went into line, in the Toul Sector, then in Montdidier salient, Picardy battle front, January 15, 1918; in four or five places in Lorraine, on the Meuse, the Moselle, the Somme, the Argonne, the Aisne, and at Verdun; promoted to Captain, Battery E, 6th Field Artillery, October 10; reached Sedan at the time of the Armistice; in January, 1919, in the 3d Army of Occupation at Coblenz bridgehead on the east side of the Rhine; studying at Trinity College, Cambridge University, England, March 1 to June 30; returned to the United States, and was discharged July 16, 1919.

ROBERT JAMES POWELL, 411 Canal Street, New York City.

Enlisted at Newport, R. I., May 7, 1917, as Machinist's Mate (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F., aboard U. S. S. Alcalda as First Assistant Engineer; approved for U. S. Naval Reserve Flying Corps; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., for Aviation Service, June 22, 1918; placed on inactive duty, January 3, 1919.

ARTHUR MARCH PROCTOR, 45 West Chestnut Street, Wakefield, Mass.

Enlisted July 3, 1917; called November 21, 1917, as Private, Base Hospital No. 1, 12th Regiment Armory, New York City; in France in December, 1918.

OSCAR SPECKBACHER PROCTOR, 2901 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Enlisted in the Navy, 1918; on inactive duty as medical student until October 16, 1918; Hospital Apprentice (1st Class), S. A. T. C.; on active duty, October 16 to December 20, 1918; released to inactive duty.

SPENCER ARMSTRONG PUMPELLY, Owego, N. Y.
Enlisted in the U. S. N. R. F., at Newport, R. I.

JAMES LEWIS QUACKENBUSH, JR., 362 Riverside Drive, New York City.

Entered service May 25, 1917, as a Private in the Medical Department; sailed July, 1917; boat sunk; returned to port; sailed again August 7, 1917, and encountered U-boats off Belle Isle, France; fight lasted one and one half hours; three submarines sunk by transport; in Base Hospital No. 8 in charge of records for several months; in the office of Attending Surgeon, Venereal Department, Paris, for several months; transferred to American Red Cross Military Hospital No. 9, Paris; Acting First Sergeant; advanced to Corporal, September 10, 1918; handled records for all sick and wounded at Convalescent Camp, District of Paris, at Nogent-sur-Marne, November 10, 1918, to January 29, 1919; spent a month at Base Hospital No. 8 at Savenay; returned to the United States, and received discharge March 24, 1919.

ROBERT LUTHER RANDOL, Ardmore, Okla.

Officers' Training Camp, Fort Logan H. Roots; commissioned Second Lieutenant, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Headquarters Company, 11th Field Artillery, Fort Douglas; commissioned Provisional Second Lieutenant, Regular Army, October 26; temporary First Lieutenant same date; in April, 1918, transferred and stationed for three months at Camp Doniphan; sent overseas July 14, 1918; stationed at Valdahon, France, August 20 to October 20, with Battery B, 11th Field Artillery; in the Camp Hospital with influenza at Valdahon in October (regiment detached from 6th Division, October 21, 1918, and hurried up to the firing line in the Meuse-Argonne Sector, to relieve the 155th Regiment Artillery Brigade; owing to the fact that the regiment was motorized with five-ton tractors and trucks, it arrived in position at Romagne, October 25, and saw active service until November 11, 1918, occupying Romagne, Rémonville, Belfort, and Lunéville); acted as Adjutant of 1st Battalion, 11th Field Artillery, during the last part of the Meuse-Argonne Offensive; ill with fever in Neuilly Hospital, Paris, in December; with Battery F, 11th Field Artillery, at Fontaine-en-Duesmois, France, December 17, 1918, to April 27, 1919; with Inter-Allied Pistol Try Out Squad at le Mans, France, May 4 to June 27, 1919; won fourth place in Regimental Pistol Competition, Villaines-en-Duesmois, April, 1919; eighth place in American Expeditionary Forces Competition, le Mans, May, 1919; thirty-third place in the final try-out for the Inter-Allied Pistol Team; returned to the United States, July 6, 1919.

JONATHAN STONE RAYMOND, 7 West Hill Place, Boston, Mass.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, National Army, February 28, 1918; assigned to Clothing and Equipage Division, Cotton Goods Branch, Quartermaster Corps; resignation accepted July 13, 1918; applied for admission to Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor; admitted, and assigned to 8th Training Battery; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, Officers' Reserve Corps, December 5, 1918.

ALPHONSO FRANCIS RAYNES, 348 West Fifty-seventh Street, New York City.

Plattsburg, 1916; enlisted February 19, 1918, Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps; on inactive duty while a student in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University.

ROBERT HENRY REID, 2807 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Joined Chicago Branch of Department of Justice; enlisted in Aviation Section, Signal Corps; rejected because of injured right arm; accepted for service, January, 1918; sent to Vancouver Barracks; assigned as Acting Supply Sergeant in a Motor Truck Squadron; appointed Chief Clerk of the cantonment with rank of Corporal, in February; transferred in March to 1st Provisional Regiment, Headquarters Company, as Sergeant; passed examination for commission as Second Lieutenant.

ROBERT GOODWYN RHETT, JR., 116 Broad Street, Charleston, S. C.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Oglethorpe; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; on duty with 81st Field Artillery, August 29 to November 29; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Coast Artillery Corps, October 26, 1917; on duty at Fort Monroe, December 1, 1917, to March 28, 1918; promoted to First Lieutenant, Coast Artillery Corps; on duty, Coast Defenses, New Orleans, April 15 to September 24, 1918; assigned to Battery E, 75th Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps, September 24; arrived in France, October 15; transferred to Headquarters Staff, Embarkation Reserve Camp, Montoir, France, January 27, 1919.

DICKINSON WOODRUFF RICHARDS, JR., 163 Irving Avenue, South Orange, N. J.

First Sergeant, Headquarters Company, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Coast Artillery Reserve Corps, August 15, 1917; assigned as Instructor at Fort Monroe; promoted to First Lieutenant, November 27, 1917; assigned to the 49th Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps, in September, 1918; overseas October 5, 1918, to March 14, 1919; discharged at Camp Grant, March 31, 1919.

PHILIP HAND RICHARDS, 1211 Magnolia Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, The Presidio of San Francisco; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to 347th Field Artillery, Camp Lewis, September 4; sent overseas with Battery C, 347th Field Artillery; in Germany with the 3d Army of Occupation; returned from foreign service April 2; received discharge April 29, 1919, at The Presidio of San Francisco.

ARLEIGH DYGERT RICHARDSON, JR., 70 John Street, Ilion, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., in May, 1917; detailed to Officers' Training School, Annapolis; appointed Ensign (T), U. S. N., February 1, 1918, and assigned to U. S. S. Connecticut; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), September 21, 1918.

WILLIAM THOMAS RICHENSTEEN, 36 Lincoln Avenue, Rockville Center, N. Y.

Enlisted May 25, 1917, U. S. N. R. F., as Machinist's Mate (2d Class); on active service at Bensonhurst, Brooklyn, September 29, 1917, to March, 1918; transferred to Scout Patrol No. 451; patrolled the submarine net in New York harbor until May 31, 1918; ordered to Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to patrol the St. Mary's River; transferred to the Officer Material School, Great Lakes, as Chief Machinist's Mate, September, 1918; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., Class 4, at Great Lakes, Ill., February 21, 1919, and assigned to shore duty there; released from active service May 21, 1919.

ELMER DUANE RILEY, Room 1156, Central Y. M. C. A., Brooklyn, N. Y.

First Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks, May 8 to July 31, 1917; enlisted, August 17, 1917, as Private, Light Field Artillery; transferred to National Army, September 1; assigned to Battery D, 301st Field Artillery, Camp Devens; advanced to Sergeant, September 5; assigned to third Officers' Training Camp, Camp Devens, January 5, 1918, graduating eligible for commission as Second Lieutenant; sent overseas April 16; attended Saumur Artillery School, May 15 to July 31; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, June 1, 1918; assigned to Battery D, 78th Field Artillery, August 3, 1918, to March 26, 1919; transferred to Headquarters Company, 128th Field Artillery; returned to the United States, April 19; received discharge April 25, 1919.

ROBERT ROBINSON, Hornell, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned Second Lieutenant, August 15, 1917; assigned to 48th Infantry.

WILLIAM AMES ROBINSON, 85 North Union Street, Aurora, Ill.

LAWRENCE FOWLER ROSSITER, 432 Field Point Road, Greenwich, Conn.

Corporal, Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; first Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. A., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery E, 302d Field Artillery, Camp Devens, September 1; sent overseas July 13, 1918; arrived in Winchester, England, the last of July; Gas School at Langres, France, in August; at Camp de Souge, France, in September and October; at the front in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive with Battery E, 302d Field Artillery, as part of the 151st Brigade, November 1; under fire until November 11, 1918, attached to the 9th Army Corps, 2d Army, 33d Division; placed on detached service to attend a British university, February 28, 1919; assigned to King's College, Cambridge University, March 18; completed course June 23; returned to the United States, July 13; received discharge July 15, 1919, at Camp Dix.

COOPER HANCOCK RUNYON, care Perth Amboy Dry Dock Company, Perth Amboy, N. J.

June 1 to December 1, 1918, Quartermaster on the S. S. Bremerton (which during that time made two round trips to France, carrying guns, ammunition, food, and railroad material to Europe), Army Transport Service, a branch of the Army Quartermaster Corps; not in uniform, having received appointment from steamship company, owing to inability to pass the Shipping Board eye tests.

WILLIS HOLCOMBE RYDER, Carmel, N. Y.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned Second

Lieutenant, Cavalry, U. S. A., October 26, 1917; assigned to 15th Field Artillery, Pine Camp, Watertown, N. Y.; later attached to Supply Company of this regiment at Camp Lee; promoted to First Lieutenant, Cavalry; sent to Newport News, December 25, 1917; sailed for overseas duty in March, 1918; arrived in France, April 4, reaching the Supply Company by April 18; assigned to Battery F, 15th Field Artillery, 2d Division, 1st American Army; reached the front at Troyon about April 22; in the line northwest of Château-Thierry near Bouresches; at Villers-Cotterets Forest near Soissons; in the St. Mihiel Drive and the final battles before the Armistice; promoted to Captain in September, 1918; in command of Battery F until November 27, 1918, leading his men as far as Luxemburg; taken ill and sent to a hospital; January 1, 1919, recuperating in Nice, France; in England taking a four months' course in one of the universities.

JAMES REED SANDERSON, La Selva, Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y.

Sergeant, Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned first to Battery E and then to Battery A, 301st Field Artillery, Camp Devens; sailed for overseas duty on the S. S. Justicia as a member of Advance Schools Detachment, 151st Field Artillery Brigade; landed at Liverpool, July 10, 1918; sent to Artillery Training Camp at Valdahon, France; after ten days moved to Camp de Souge, near Bordeaux, arriving August 6; regiment moved in for four weeks' course on September 8; ordered to the front October 15, but no transportation available until November 3, 1918; moved to railhead at Rimaucourt; billeted near Neufchâteau when the Armistice was signed; sailed from Brest on Nieuw Amsterdam, December 27, 1918; arrived New York with Headquarters Company, 301st Field Artillery, January 5, 1919; regiment mustered out at Camp Devens, January 18, 1919; assigned to duty as assistant to the Troop Movement Officer, Port of Embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., January 21, 1919; discharged February 26, 1919.

AARON ROOS SCHARFF, 600 North Union Street, Natchez, Miss.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Logan H. Roots; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery; assigned to Battery E, 335th Field Artillery, 87th Division, and stationed as Instructor at Camp Pike; sent overseas with Division, August 30, 1918; landed in England; sent to artillery camp at Châteauroux and kept there until Armistice was signed; transferred to a replacement camp; assigned to 91st Division; studying at the Sorbonne, Paris.

CARL VAIL SCHLAET, care The Texas Company, 17 Battery Place, New York City.

Enlisted as Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., March 24, 1917, at New Haven; in command of U. S. S. Abalone, Scout Patrol No. 208, March to August, 1917; in command U. S. S. Siwash, Scout Patrol No. 12, August to December, 1917; in command U. S. Submarine Chaser No. 329, December, 1917, to May, 1918; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), U. S. N. R. F.-2, February 12, 1918; Turret Officer on U. S. S. South Carolina, May to July, having an engagement with U-Boat 117, June 9; transferred and assigned as Ordnance Officer on U. S. S. Lamberton, Destroyer No. 119, July, 1918, to April, 1919; acting as ocean escort for fast troop convoys until the Armistice; released from active duty April 12, 1919.

JULES EDOUARD SCHNEIDER, JR., 4700 Lakeside Drive, Highland Park, Dallas, Texas.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Leon Springs; Private (1st Class), Base Hospital No. 26, Allerey, France.

HUGH SCOTT, 31 Westmoreland Place, St. Louis, Mo.

Battery D, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; entered Officers' Training Camp, Camp Funston, May 5, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15; assigned to Battery B, 340th Field Artillery, 89th Division, stationed at Camp Funston; sent overseas July 1, 1918; served with 26th Division in St. Mihiel Offensive; in the Euvezin

Sector; company mentioned four times in orders; in Army of Occupation, Germany, November 25, 1918, to May 7, 1919; discharged June 5, 1919.

HENRY HOLLOWAY SCUDDER, 306 West Eightieth Street, New York City.

Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery Reserve Corps, August 15, 1917; assigned to 308th Field Artillery, Camp Dix, August 29; in command of Battery C, 308th Field Artillery, November 1, 1917; promoted to Captain, Field Artillery, January 23, 1918; attended School of Fire, Fort Sill, Okla., in April and May; arrived overseas, June 8, 1918; returned to the United States, May 14; received discharge May 26, 1919.

ALDEN HUMPHREY SEABURY, First Lieutenant, 11th Cavalry, The Presidio, Monterey, Calif.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery B, 77th Field Artillery, at Fort Ethan Allen and at Camp Greene, August 29 to October 26; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Cavalry, U. S. A., October 26; assigned to the 19th Cavalry, 77th Field Artillery, Camp Greene; promoted to First Lieutenant, 19th Cavalry, November 5; transferred to the 4th Trench Mortar Battery of the 4th Division, Camp Greene, December 28; sent overseas May 22, 1918; in active service with the 4th Division in the Aisne-Marne Offensive, July 30 to August 4; assigned as Instructor, Army Trench Mortar School, Vitrey, France, August 25 to December 23; with 108th Battery, Trench Artillery, at Souilly, France, December 23, 1918, to February 1, 1919; Headquarters Troop, 7th Army Corps, Wittlich, Germany, February 1 to June, 1919; assigned to the 11th Cavalry and stationed at The Presidio of Monterey, Calif.

PAUL BEACH SESSIONS, 25 Bellevue Avenue, Bristol, Conn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery B, 302d Field Artillery, Camp Devens, August 29; went overseas about June 28, 1918, with Headquarters Company, 302d Field Artillery; trained with regiment near Bordeaux; ordered to the front near the St. Mihiel salient in October, but not in action; after November 11, 1918, retired to billets at Rupt-en-Woëvre; in December, sent back to Bordeaux to await sailing orders; in Bordeaux, February 5, 1919; in Pauillac Embarkation Camp, France, April, 1919.

FRANK PARSONS SHEPARD, JR., care of Guaranty Trust Company, 140 Broadway, New York City.

Plattsburg, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; first Officers' Training Camp, Fort Snelling; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery B, 338th Field Artillery, Camp Dodge; promoted to First Lieutenant, December 31, 1917; sent to School of Fire, Fort Sill, April 21, 1918; Instructor in Gunnery at Fort Sill, June 27 to October 17, 1918; transferred to Camp Kearny, and made Aide to Brigadier General H. D. Hand, 16th Field Artillery Brigade; discharged January 29, 1919.

JOHN RUTLEDGE SHEPLEY, 53 Portland Place, St. Louis, Mo.

Sergeant, Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Riley; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, October 26, 1917; promoted to First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, April 15, 1918; assigned to 78th Field Artillery, Camp Logan; transferred to 8th Field Artillery, Camp Wheeler, in December, 1917; took course in four wheel drive trucks at Racine, Wis.; attended Ordnance Motor Instructor School, Peoria, Ill., for course in tractors; promoted to Captain, Field Artillery, National Army, July 16; sailed with Battery F, 8th Field Artillery, for France, August, 1918; Adjutant of Inspector General's Office, American Embarkation

Center, in April and May, 1919; returned to the United States, June 2; discharged at Camp Meade, July 21, 1919.

NORMAN BISHOP SHEPPARD, 397 Lombard Street, New Haven, Conn.

Enlisted in the Chemical Warfare Service, April 1, 1918; stationed at American University, Washington, D. C., until discharged December 16, 1918.

GEORGE PARKER SHUTT, 87 Woodland Avenue, New Rochelle, N. Y.

Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery D, 305th Field Artillery, 77th Division, Camp Upton, August 31, 1917; overseas April, 1918; preparatory training in France at Camp de Souge, Bordeaux, and at the Gas School at Chaumont; saw action in the Vosges Mountains and on the Vesle River; promoted to First Lieutenant, and returned to the United States, September 7, 1918, as an Instructor; assigned to the 52d Field Artillery Brigade, and then to the 18th Field Artillery, Brigade Headquarters (General R. W. Briggs), 18th Division, Camp Travis; discharged there January 31, 1919.

HARRY SILVERSTONE, 976 East Main Street, Bridgeport, Conn.

Inducted for limited service, July 15, 1918, as a Private, Quartermaster Corps; ordered to Camp Meigs, D. C.; assigned as Instructor in the Subsistence Division of the Enlisted Men's Training School; discharged January 16, 1919.

BRUCE TIBBALS SIMONDS, 339 Norman Street, Bridgeport, Conn.

Secretary, School of Music; Samuel Simons Sanford Fellow 1918-1920; on concert tours for the benefit of the American Red Cross in 1917 and 1918.

KENNETH FARRAND SIMPSON, The Yale Club, 50 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York City.

Enrolled at Plattsburg, 1916; transferred to Battalion Sergeant Major, Headquarters Company, Tobyhanna; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Captain, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to 302d Field Artillery, Camp Devens, as Regimental Adjutant; sent overseas about June 27, 1918; stationed at Camp de Souge, commanding Battery D, until late in October when the regiment left for the front; went into action in the Meuse-Woëvre Offensive about a week or ten days before the signing of the Armistice; on duty with the Army Educational Commission in Paris; February 1, 1919, sent to the University of Aix-Marseille as Commanding Officer and Dean of the American School Detachment; returned to the United States, July 15; discharged August 15, 1919.

EMERSON PARSONS SMITH, 170 Brown Street, Providence, R. I.

Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery F, 302d Field Artillery, 76th Division, Camp Devens, August 29; sent to Fort Sill, May 8, 1918, for further training, but recalled in two weeks to go overseas; sailed July 14, landing at Southampton, England, and spending a week at Winchester; trained at the Artillery School at Camp de Souge for six weeks; at the front in the St. Mihiel salient, between Verdun and St. Mihiel, during the last six days of the war; his regiment the first to fire an all-American made and designed gun with all-American made ammunition; after the Armistice in Rupt-en-Woëvre in the St. Mihiel Sector; attended the University of Bordeaux, March 1 to June 30, 1919; returned to the United States, July 30; discharged August 15, 1919.

FRANK RAYMOND SMITH, 2220 Main Street, Stratford, Conn.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; enlisted December 11, 1917, as Hospital Apprentice (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F.; on leave to study medicine at Harvard Medical School.

MAURICE ROBERT SMITH, 3616 Holmes Street, Kansas City, Mo.

Enlisted June 11, 1917, at Fort Omaha, as a Sergeant, Aviation Section; attended Balloon School, Fort Omaha; commissioned First Lieutenant, Aviation Section, Signal Corps, Balloon Department, October 3; in charge of Balloon Shed, Fort Omaha, in October and November, 1917; placed in command of 5th Balloon Company, December 8, 1917; sent overseas January 31, 1918; commissioned Captain, 5th Balloon Company, August 1; saw service in the Lunéville, Toul, and Argonne-Meuse sectors; took part in the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse offensives, attached to the 1st Corps, 1st Army; recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross in the St. Mihiel Offensive; placed in command of twelve balloon companies in January, 1919; returned to the United States, May 3; received discharge May 9, 1919.

PHILIP LATHROP SMITH, 328 West Fifty-seventh Street, New York City.

GALEN SNOW, Inter-State Mortgage Trust Company, Greenfield, Mass.

Plattsburg, 1916; May 13 to August 15, 1917, Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned as senior Second Lieutenant, 304th Infantry, Camp Devens; sent overseas, July 23, 1918; transferred to Headquarters Troops, 6th Army Corps, August 3; in Toul Sector, September 19 to November 11, 1918; returned to the United States, March 28; discharged April 25, 1919.

IRVIN HENRY SOLT, Route 1, Northampton, Pa.

Took course in Radio Communication in the Signal Corps while enrolled in the Graduate School, 1917-1918; physically disqualified for enlistment in the Engineer Enlisted Reserve Corps; drafted May 1, 1918, and assigned as Private to Company A, 104th Field Signal Battalion, 29th Division, Camp McClellan; arrived in France, June 26; placed in charge of the divisional signal storage batteries; with the division in the Center Sector, Haute-Alsace, July 25 to September 20; took part in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive north of Verdun, October 8 to October 30, 1918; after the Armistice, attended the Sorbonne in Paris with the University Detachment.

OLIVER WADE SPENCER, Brighton Hotel, Washington, D. C.

Enlisted as Private, Infantry, June 14, 1917, at St. Louis; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, June 20, in the 5th Missouri (federalized as the 138th Infantry), Camp Doniphan, Fort Sill; Grenade Instructor, Company I; promoted to First Lieutenant, January 12, 1918; transferred to Company H, 138th Infantry, Camp Doniphan, Fort Sill, February 1; sent overseas May 2; saw service in Vosges Sector and Verdun Sector; attended Army Line School at Langres, France; in corps reserve at Amiens; September 10 to 25, convalescing from influenza in Hospital No. 5 at Vichy; in the Argonne Drive placed in charge of a battalion and took same into action; relieved after three weeks and made Regimental Operations Officer, October 25; promoted to Captain, October 30; slightly gassed November 5, at Verdun; in January, 1919, awarded Croix de Guerre with silver star, "for distinguished and exceptional gallantry at Hilsenfirst, France, sixth July, 1918, in successfully leading a raid on the enemy's lines"; Base Hospital No. 91, January 2, frontal sinusitis following influenza, following gas; evacuated to the United States, February 24, and sent to Walter Reed Hospital; assigned to duty with Casualty Division, Washington, D. C., March 10 to May 2; reassigned to 138th Infantry and mustered out at Camp Funston about May 10, 1919.

ROBERT FRANCIS SPLAINE, 2 Bradford Avenue, Fall River, Mass.

Unable to enter any branch of active service; from April to November, 1918, assisted actively in the construction of several destroyers in the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Quincy, Mass.; since November, 1918, working on merchant ships at Hog Island, Pa.

JOHN SHEPARD STANTON, JR., 329 Park Avenue, New York City.

Second Lieutenant, Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; stationed with Battery B, 302d Field Artillery, Camp Devens, August 30, 1917, to July 13, 1918; sailed from New York, July 14, landed at Liverpool, July 26, and crossed from Southampton to Havre about a week later; in training at Camp de Souge; sent to Tours, Chaumont, Bar-sur-Aube, Lure, Gérardmer, Lavaline, and St. Dié, for artillery information course; returned to Camp de Souge; left this camp October 30; reached Dugny, about seven miles southeast of Verdun, November 2, 1918; Liaison Officer at Rupt-en-Woëvre until January 5, 1919; returned to Camp de Souge to await transportation home; reported in Bordeaux, February 5, 1919; received discharge May 1, 1919.

HARVEY FARRINGTON STEVENSON, Croton-on-the-Hudson, N. Y.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery F, 307th Field Artillery, Camp Dix; overseas the last of May, 1918; Camp de Meucon, Vannes, Headquarters Company, 307th Field Artillery; transferred to Toul Sector in August, 1918; ten weeks at the front, from September 12, starting with the St. Mihiel Offensive, and going through the Argonne Forest operations north, nearly to Sedan; promoted to First Lieutenant, October 24, 1918; at camp at St. Remy, near Semur, France, as Radio and Telephone Officer, Headquarters Company, 307th Field Artillery, 78th Division; took architectural course at the Art Training Center, Bellevue, Paris, March 1 to June 15, 1919; discharged July 14, 1919.

CHARLES MORTON STEWART, 3D, care Gustav L. Stewart, 829 Park Avenue, New York City.

Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; went to Florida, March 28, 1917, with the Davison Group, to study aviation; returned home, June, 1917; enlisted in September as a Private, Field Artillery, Maryland National Guard; took examination for a Second Lieutenancy in the United States Army, July, 1917; Acting Corporal and Corporal, last of September; accepted commission as Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, October, 1917; was offered Lieutenancy in the Regular Army in October, 1917, but chose to remain with the Maryland Regiment; sent overseas, June 28, 1918, as Second Lieutenant, 110th Field Artillery, 29th Division; near Metz after the Armistice; promoted to First Lieutenant, April 28, 1919; discharged June 3, 1919.

ROBERT HENRY STEWART, JR., 3707 Gaston Avenue, Dallas, Texas.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Leon Springs; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Headquarters Company, 343d Field Artillery, Camp Travis, until January 22, 1918; detailed to Fort Sill for course at School of Fire; detailed to School for Aerial Observers, Post Field; detailed to School of Aerial Gunnery, Mt. Clemens, Mich.; assigned to 24th Aero Squadron, 1st Army Observation Group, December 4, 1918, to April 20, 1919, at Variscourt; discharged May 14, 1919.

GEORGE HOLZER STILLMAN, 2115 East Superior Street, Duluth, Minn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Snelling; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to Camp Dodge; transferred to 7th Field Artillery, Camp Robinson; left camp for overseas, October 24, and arrived in France, November 12, 1917; assigned to 1st Trench Mortar Battery, 1st Division, and sent for training to the Toul Sector; went on the line there with the first Americans in the trenches, January, 1918; in Battle of Cantigny, with the 1st Division, which was cited by General Pershing; in May attended a trench mortar school at Langres, returning to the line at Soissons; sent to a regimental gas officers' school and made Gas Officer of the battery; in the Battle of Château-Thierry; returned to the Toul Sector when the 1st American Army was formed; went over the top with the 26th Infantry, 1st Division, in the battle at the St. Mihiel salient, the mission being to capture Boche guns, turn them around and fire them; with the 1st Division in the advance northwest of Verdun, through the Argonne Forest; about a week before the Armistice, transferred to the 1st Ammunition Train, 1st Division; made Adjutant to the Colonel and recommended for promotion; went to Coblenz, Germany, with the 1st Division in the Army of Occupation; promoted to First Lieutenant.

ROBERT STONE STODDART, 100 William Street, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, August 15, 1917; assigned to 5th Training Battalion, Depot Brigade, Camp Lee; transferred to Company C, 313th Machine Gun Battalion, 159th Infantry Brigade; promoted to First Lieutenant, December 31, 1917; sent overseas May 26, 1918; attended a machine gun school near Calais; with his battalion August 1 to 12, 1918, in the Somme Offensive; in temporary service in the trenches near Arras, attached to the New Zealanders; moved to vicinity of Verdun and saw action in the Argonne Forest and valley of the Meuse, September 26 to 29, October 4 to 11, November 1 to 6, 1918; near Sedan when the Armistice was signed; promoted to Captain, March 20, 1919; returned to the United States, June 7; received discharge June 12, 1919.

CARROLL HOPKINS SUDLER, JR., 79 Cedar Street, Chicago, Ill.

Corporal, Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Sheridan; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; designated to proceed to France, September 8, to observe and receive further training behind the lines; assigned to Battery F, 5th Field Artillery, as Executive Officer, October 1, 1917; promoted to First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, July 23, 1918; eleven months at front with 1st Brigade of 1st Division under General Summerall; in Lunéville, Toul, and Montdidier sectors, and in Battle of Cantigny; returned to the United States in August, 1918, as Instructor in Artillery; assigned to Camp McClellan, September 1; promoted to Captain, Company E, 36th Field Artillery, October 23; received discharge February 8, 1919.

EARL WILLIAM SUTHERLAND, 200 West Seventieth Street, New York City.

Enlisted as a Private in the Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps, January 8, 1918; detailed to the Long Island College Hospital to complete course.

FREDERIC HALSEY TAYLOR, 325 Washington Street, Watertown, N. Y.

Enlisted in the Aviation Section, Signal Corps, November 19, 1917; attended Ground School at Cornell University until February 23, 1918; some time at Camp Dick; ordered to Kelly Field; finished training and commissioned Second Lieutenant, May 30; ordered to Gerstner Field for pursuit work the last of June; Instructor in aerial gunnery, July 18 to August 16; transferred to Dorr Field as Instructor in pursuit work; Instructor at Carlstrom Field, September 5, 1918, to January 3, 1919, with about two hundred hours flying time; discharged January 3, 1919.

HENRY CALHOUN TAYLOR, 103 East Seventy-fifth Street, New York City.

Enlisted in U. S. N. R. F., as Seaman, March 21, 1917; served as orderly to Commander Miller; at New York Navy Yard on Scout Patrol No. 179, U. S. S. Taniwha, and Scout Patrol No. 455, U. S. S. Anado; recommended for Ensign course at Columbia University; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., September 19, 1917; detailed to Annapolis, and commissioned Ensign (T), U. S. N., February 1, 1918; reported on board U. S. S. Olympia, February 22; sailed on ocean convoy trip, March 12; left for North Russia, April 28; made second in command of a Russian destroyer in June, 1918; member of a landing force, Junior Aide to Admiral McCully, U. S. N., and Military Observer, in Archangel, Russia; commissioned Ensign to be made Lieutenant (j. g.), for temporary service from September 21, 1918; sailed from Murmansk, Russia, January 3, 1919; arrived in New York, January 31, 1919, aboard the U. S. S. Plattsburg; unattached.

MALCOLM GARDNER TEWKSBURY, 5 Quinsan Gardens, Shanghai, China.

Y. M. C. A. secretary for Chinese Labor Companies of the 1st Army, British Expeditionary Force, located in the Arras-Lens-Béthune front, in work requiring a technical knowledge of the Chinese language and habits; overseas from December, 1917, to February 1, 1919.

REYNAL DE ST. MICHEL THEBAUD, White Plains, N. Y.

Attended the first and second Officers' Training Camps at Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, November 27, 1917; ordered to Camp Upton, N. Y., and assigned to several organizations; transferred June 12, 1918, to Field Artillery Replacement Depot, Camp Jackson, and assigned to the 10th Regiment, Field Artillery Replacement Depot; promoted to First Lieutenant, October 23, 1918, and placed in command of Battery F, 10th Regiment, Field Artillery Replacement Depot; mustered out of this battery and received discharge December 15, 1918.

ROBERT RUFFNER THEOBALD, care of Toledo Scale Company, Toledo, Ohio.

Enlisted May 14, 1917, in the Brooklyn Navy Yard as Coxswain, U. S. N. R. F.; promoted to Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., June 25, 1917; took training at Annapolis from July 5 to September 5; received commission as Ensign, U. S. N., September 15; sent overseas May 18, 1918; received promotion to Lieutenant (j. g.), U. S. N., July 1, and to Lieutenant (s. g.), U. S. N., September 15, 1918; returned to the United States and was discharged February 14, 1919.

BENJAMIN MORRIS THOMAS, 745 Lincoln Parkway, Chicago, Ill.

Enrolled in U. S. N. R. F., 1st Naval District, May 31, 1917; in active service at Portland, Maine, on Scout Patrol No. 625, July 9 to October 17, 1917, as Seaman; sent to Naval Cadet School, Harvard University, with rating of Chief Boatswain's Mate; graduated, February 11, 1918, and commissioned Ensign (deck duties), U. S. N. R. F.; assigned to duty afloat with Atlantic Fleet on U. S. S. New Jersey; detached from the Atlantic Fleet, May 29, and ordered to Manila, P. I., for duty at Asiatic Station; sailed July 5, and arrived Manila, July 9; ordered to proceed to China; sailed July 13 to Hongkong, Shanghai, Hankow, and I-chang; reported for duty aboard the U. S. S. Monocacy; in an engagement with Chinese (status unknown) while ascending the Yang-tse River, August 16; arrived Chung King, the most remote port occupied by the U. S. Navy, and an important treaty port and a base for American, British, French, and Japanese gunboats, August 18, 1918; detached from U. S. S. Monocacy, April 3, 1919; preceded by native Chinese junk four hundred miles down the Yang-tse-kiang River to I-chang, passing through the rapids and the Yang-tse gorges; shot in forearm, April 12; reported at Shanghai; ordered home by way of Manila and Hawaii; released from active duty June 26, 1919, at Great Lakes.

JOHN RANDOLPH THOMPSON, JR., 350 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

RALPH SHERMAN THOMPSON, 203 North Pacific Boulevard, Huntington Park, Los Angeles, Calif.

Enlisted as Private (1st Class), July 9, 1917; assigned to Ordnance School at San Antonio Arsenal; assigned to Camp Pike in September; made Corporal, October 1, 1917; advanced to Sergeant, January 16, 1918; advanced to Ordnance Sergeant, July 1; on detached service August 5 to August 30, at Springfield (Mass.) Armory; returned to Camp Pike as Ordnance Sergeant, 112th Ordnance Depot Company, September 5, 1918; discharged March 21, 1919, holding commission as Second Lieutenant, Ordnance Officers' Reserve Corps.

RAYMOND SISSON THOMPSON, 943 Highland Avenue, Fall River, Mass.

Yale R. O. T. C.

DANIEL THORN, 360 West 119th Street, New York City.

Battery D, Tobyhanna, 1916.

HARRY FRANCIS THORPE, 224 Hillside Avenue, Waterbury, Conn.

Enlisted in U. S. Ambulance Service, June, 1917; trained at Allentown, Pa.; went overseas with Section 585; transferred to Section 642; caught in German barrage on May 27, 1918, while serving with the 22d French Division, and captured on the extreme right end of the Chemin des Dames Sector; exposed by the Germans to the French defensive barrage, and forced to help rebuild a bridge under French gunfire; two days a prisoner of war at Camp Giessen; a month and a half at Darmstadt; transferred to Münster III; ill with the influenza for three weeks with no medicine; saved by food supplied by French prisoners; witnessed the so-called revolution in Münster; passed through Holland on November 26, 1918; returned to the United States via England; received discharge March 20, 1919.

EDWARD HAYNES THURSTON, care William H. Thurston, 18 Broadway, New York City.

Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to Battery D, 307th Field Artillery, Camp Dix; promoted to First Lieutenant, February, 1918; overseas May 27 to September 1, 1918; promoted to Captain, July, 1918; returned to the United States; served with Battery C, 49th Field Artillery, at Camp Bowie and at Fort Sill, September, 1918, until discharged December 9, 1918.

EDGAR TILTON, JR., 4511 West Pine Boulevard, St. Louis, Mo.

BERNARD TITCHE, JR., 1913 Napoleon Avenue, New Orleans, La.

Officers' Training Camp, Fort Logan H. Roots; commissioned First Lieutenant, Infantry, August 15, 1917, and assigned to Intelligence Service, Adjutant General's Office, Washington, D. C.; volunteered for foreign service; worked in the War College, General Staff, Washington, D. C.; transferred to First Lieutenant, Infantry, October, 1917; sent overseas, November 29, arriving December 11; served as First Lieutenant, Intelligence Officer, General Staff, General Headquarters; sent to Harrow-on-the-Hill, near London, May, 1918, and served at the Intelligence School for two months; returned to staff duties at General Headquarters; sent to Saumur Artillery School, France, October, 1918, and stationed there when the Armistice was signed; in December recalled to serve as Secretary, Second Section (Intelligence), General Staff, at advanced General Headquarters, Army of Occupation, Treves, Germany; also acting Aide-de-Camp at Treves to Brigadier General Preston Brown, Yale 1892, Chief of Staff; promoted to Captain, Field Artillery, with same assignment, May, 1919; returned to the United States in June; discharged July 15, 1919.

KENNETH MORRIS TOLLES, 146 South Main Street, South Norwalk, Conn.

HENRY BETHUNE TOMPKINS, care Trust Company of Georgia, Atlanta, Ga.

At Fort McPherson; sent overseas as First Lieutenant, Infantry, Headquarters Company, 5th Division; reported in Paris, December 23, 1918.

JOHN EDWARD TOOLE, 424 George Street, New Haven, Conn.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps, on detached service to complete course at Yale School of Medicine.

HEATON IVES TREADWAY, Red Lion Inn, Stockbridge, Mass.

Yale R. O. T. C.; June to December, 1917, served as inspector of artillery ammunition; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Ordnance, U. S. R., December 14, 1917; detailed as inspector to Bartlett-Hayward Company, Baltimore, Md., Gray & Davis, Inc., Cambridge, Mass., and the Waltham Watch Company, Waltham, Mass.; discharged March 18, 1919.

WALDO LEISS TUCKER, 82 Neptune Avenue, New Rochelle, N. Y.

Battery B, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned First Lieutenant, November 27, 1917; assigned to Battery C, 351st Field Artillery, Camp Meade; promoted to Captain, Field Artillery, May 19, 1918; sailed for overseas duty June 19; with Headquarters VIII, French Army, August 12 to September 1; from October 28 to the day of the Armistice at the front near Pont-à-Mousson, in the Marbache Sector, being in major operations and in the frontal attack on Corny, November 10 and 11, 1918; returned to the United States, February 16; received discharge March 19, 1919.

DONALD JOHN TURRILL, 1170 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; enlisted December 10, 1917, and sent to Fort Slocum; assigned to Headquarters Company, 308th Field Artillery, January 25, 1918; honorably discharged April 25, 1918, because of total dependency of mother caused by father's sudden death.

FRANCIS THREEPWOOD TWEDDELL, Great Neck, N. Y.

Squadron A, Cavalry, National Guard, New York, at Mexican border; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer; commissioned Captain, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; Instructor, second Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer, August 22 to November 22; assigned to 3d Truck Company, 305th Ammunition Train, Camp Lee, December 3; detailed as Instructor to third Officers' Training Camp, Camp Lee, January 5, 1918; returned to Company C, 305th Ammunition Train, April 29; commanding Company E since May 18; sent overseas May 26; landed at Bordeaux, June 9; on detached service with Remount Service, Services of Supply, June 19 to August 14; sent to Nampont-St. Martin to buy horses for the brigade; August 15 returned to the train at Camp Meucon; September 12 to November 11 in action at St. Mihiel and in the Meuse-Argonne Offensive; under shell fire for the first time at Fromeréville, the night of September 24; took part in the push of September 26 with the company as pioneers, making the first road through Béthincourt; joined the 315th Field Artillery at Montfaucon; put in charge of small arms ammunition dump, October 26; in Mouzay, south of Stenay, when action finished; November 15 to November 28, on detached service, Advance Detachment, 358th Infantry, 90th Division, Army of Occupation; returned to the United States, June 1; received discharge June 9, 1919.

HERMAN LEONARD UNDERHILL, Owego, Tioga County, N. Y.

U. S. Fuel Administration, November, 1917, to February, 1918, when entered the Air Service as a Private; advanced to Corporal and Sergeant; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Air Service, August 1, 1918; assigned to Aviation Concentration Camp, Handley-Page overseas casuals, Garden City, August 15; assigned to the Office of Director of Military Aeronautics, Personnel Section, Procurement Branch, Washington, D. C., January 1, 1919; discharged soon after this date.

ARTHUR KENNARD UNDERWOOD, 116 Winthrop Road, Brookline, Mass.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; enlisted August 25, 1917; assigned to Battery E, 308th Field Artillery, Camp Dix; assigned to third Officers' Training Camp, Camp Dix; graduated, April 20, 1918, eligible for commission as Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery; transferred to 10th Battalion, Field Artillery Replacement Depot, Camp Jackson, May 5; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, June 1; transferred to School of Fire, Fort Sill, July 1; graduated, September 6; transferred to Camp Lewis; assigned to 39th Field Artillery, 13th Division; discharged from service December 19, 1918.

ATWOOD VIOLETT, JR., Pelham Manor, N. Y.

Enlisted in the Navy in April, 1917; commissioned Ensign, U. S. N. R. F., December 26, 1917; assigned to one of the patrol boats at New London, February 2, 1918; transferred to U. S. S. New Jersey; sent back to New London in September, awaiting orders; Executive Officer and second in command on board a one hundred and ten foot submarine chaser bound for the Mediterranean in October, 1918; returned from the Azores early in 1919.

HAROLD FRANCIS VOLK, 4202 Swiss Avenue, Dallas, Texas.

Corporal, Battery D, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Leon Springs; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, N. A., August 15, 1917; assigned to staff of Brigadier General McGlachlin, Chief of Artillery, 90th Division; promoted to First Lieutenant, December 31, 1917; transferred to staff of Brigadier General Francis C. Marshall, commanding 165th Field Artillery Brigade, Camp Travis; overseas since June, 1918, commanding Headquarters Detachment of Brigade; reported at the Sorbonne, Paris, in March, 1919.

MARTIN GROSSMAN VORHAUS, 1195 Chapel Street, New Haven, Conn.

Commissioned Lieutenant (j. g.), Medical Corps, U. S. N. R. F., April 29, 1918; stationed at the Naval Hospital and School at Washington, D. C.; transferred in October, 1918, to the hospital at Pelham Bay, N. Y.; released from active service March 19, 1919.

JOHN HOWARD WAINWRIGHT, Box 59, Rye, N. Y.

FRANKLYN EDWARD WAITE, 40 South Hawk Street, Albany, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, August 15, 1917, and sent to Camp Dix, N. J.; assigned to Company K, 110th Infantry, Camp Hancock, September 10; promoted to First Lieutenant, March 26, 1918; transferred to Company I, 110th Infantry, 28th Division (Pennsylvania National Guard), sent overseas, May 16; landed at Dover, England, but soon sent to France; wounded in action, at the Ourcq River, July 30, by a bullet through the right leg, during the Aisne-Marne Offensive; in Base Hospital No. 26; returned to his company, September 23; made Adjutant of the 3d Battalion; promoted to Captain, October 26; in action again for three weeks in Meuse-Argonne Offensive; at Heudicourt when the Armistice was signed; in Luxemburg with the Army of Occupation; returned to the United States, April 29; discharged May 23, 1919.

MILTON SYLVESTER WALDMAN, 789 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Third Officers' Training Camp, Camp Devens.

DAVID NATHANIEL WALKER, JR., 271 Second Avenue, West Haven, Conn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted May 3, 1917, as Seaman, U. S. N. R. F., at Newport, R. I.; assigned to Personnel Office, Naval War College; promoted to Yeoman (3d Class), July 13, 1917; transferred to Naval Auxiliary Reserve, Class 3, October 13, 1917; assigned to S. S. Nueces as cadet for training, two months at Naval Auxiliary Reserve School, Pelham Bay Park; commissioned Ensign (D), January 26, 1918; assigned to Office of District Supervisor, Naval Overseas Transportation Service, New York; subsequently appointed Office Manager and Executive Officer, Naval Overseas Transportation Service; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), August 2, 1918; released to inactive duty March 15, 1919.

SAMUEL JOHNSON WALKER, JR., Telegraph Road, Lake Forest, Ill.

Enlisted in May, 1917, for five years; June and July, 1917, at Aviation Ground School, Cornell University; graduated among the ten highest of the squadron; sent abroad for further training in August, 1917; with the Royal Flying Corps in Oxford, Stamford, London, Colney, and Croydon, England; received commission as First Lieutenant in the Aviation Section, Signal Reserve Corps, May 13, 1918; left for active service with the British in France, October 26; flew to Brussels about the middle of December; overtaken by bad weather and machine crashed, but was not hurt; in France in February, 1919, awaiting transportation home; returned to the United States, and resigned commission.

SAMUEL SLOAN WALKER, Garrison, N. Y.

Enlisted March 23, 1917, in New London, as Electrician (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F.; trained at West Palm Beach, and then reported to Huntington, Long Island, in June, 1917; commissioned Ensign, U. S. Naval Aviation, September 1, 1917; sent to France, September 23; engaged in anti-submarine work along the coast of France for ten months; served in Italy and in northern France for eight months with the U. S. Naval Northern Bombing Group; promoted to Lieutenant (j. g.), March 23, 1918; promoted to Lieutenant, U. S. N. R. Flying Corps, October 1, 1918; returned to the United States early in February; ordered to inactive duty February 10, 1919.

MELVILLE WESTON FULLER WALLACE, 1800 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington, D. C.

Captain, Company L, 55th Infantry.

CHARLES BERNARD WALSH, 85 Bassett Street, New Britain, Conn.

Ensign, U. S. N. R. F.

RAY ROBB WALTER, Apartment 61, 114 Morningside Drive, New York City.

First Officers' Training Camp, Fort Niagara; commissioned First Lieutenant, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to the 311th Field Artillery, 79th Division, Camp Meade; transferred to the 42d Division, Mineola, August 30; assigned to the staff of General Charles P. Summerall, Headquarters, 67th Field Artillery Brigade, September 8, 1917; sailed with the advance party of the 42d Division on the U. S. S. Finland, September 23, for St. Nazaire, France; attended the Artillery School of Fire at Camp Coëtquidan, Brittany, November 10 to December 19, 1917; at Camp Valdahon, Department Doubs, for instruction in aerial observation with Escadrille Caudron 21, French Army, until February 4, 1918; at Gondrecourt, Department Meuse, Aeronautical School, for further instruction; attached to Escadrille Spad 54, French Army, Champagne Sector, March 26; at Cazaux, Department Gironde, for a course in aerial gunnery, April 28 to May 16; assigned to duty with the 12th Aero Squadron; transferred, June 25, to temporary duty with Escadrille Salmson-4, French Army; saw action at the Marne, and in the Vesle Offensive, Château-Thierry; assigned to the 50th Aero Squadron for duty as Liaison Officer, September 11, serving through the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives; assign to Headquarters, 1st Army Corps, Office of the Chief of Air Service, as Air Service Liaison Officer, October 28; in action in the Sedan Offensive, Grand-Pré, November 1 to November 11; assigned to Headquarters, 8th Army Corps, Montigny-sur-Aube, Côte-d'Or, as Operations Officer for the Corps Air Service Commander, December 4, 1918; as Air Service Liaison Officer, served with the following divisions during certain of their offensive operations: 42d, 4th, 77th, 78th, 82d, and 90th; detailed to attend the Université de Grenoble, Grenoble, Isère, February 26, 1919; discharged August 16, 1919.

LESTER WOODRUFF WARD, 319 Garfield Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted May 31, 1918, as Private, Sanitary Corps; detailed to the Gas Defense Plant, Long Island City; served as foreman in the Assembly Department, manufacturing gas masks; in August, the Sanitary Corps became a part of the Department of Chemical Warfare; in September made Corporal, and in November, 1918, Sergeant, Gas Defense Division; discharged January 2, 1919.

THOMAS HENRY WARD, Box 635, Manchester, Conn.

Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; attached to 26th Infantry, Fort Leavenworth; went to France, June, 1917, in the Pershing Expeditionary Forces as Second Lieutenant; drilled all summer under instruction of the famous Chasseurs Alpine (Blue Devils); promoted to First Lieutenant; entered the trenches in the fall, among the first companies to enter the trenches under the United States flag; transferred to the United States Air Service; promoted to Captain some months later; trained under a French count, at the school that the famous ace, Guynemer, attended; after the usual course of training at the various aviation centers, assigned to active duty; met General Joffre and retains a pipe presented by the General as a souvenir of the occasion; one of the aviators who entertained Secretary of War Baker with various formations in flying; placed in charge of a force of aviators assigned to go to England for new planes; wounded in an air battle on the return trip; awarded the Croix de Guerre; after recovery took part in final offensive; after the Armistice with the Army of Occupation; in March, 1919, Assistant Adjutant, Port of Brest, France; in June, 1919, reported to be at the Sorbonne, Paris, for a four months' course.

HAROLD WATSON, 645 West End Avenue, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Fort Myer, May, 1917; commissioned Second Lieutenant, August 15, 1917; assigned to Quartermaster Corps, N. A., Camp Lee; sailed for France, December 24, 1917, unassigned; landed at St. Nazaire, France, late in January, 1918; in March transferred to Tours, Headquarters, Services of Supply; transferred from Quartermaster Department to Motor Transport Corps; promoted to First Lieutenant, October 7, 1918; promoted to Captain, May 8, 1919; in Motor Transport Service at Tours, France, until August 18; discharged September 5, 1919.

JOHN LLOYD WEETER, Bransford Apartments, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Private, Yale Mobile Hospital Unit; trained at Allentown, Pa.; overseas in August, 1917; returned in January, 1919, and was discharged.

RALPH WEILER, Hotel Marie Antoinette, Broadway and Sixty-seventh Street, New York City.

Enlisted as Private, Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps, December 28, 1917; on detached service to continue study of medicine at College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University.

GEORGE MARTIN WEISS, 384 Whalley Avenue, New Haven, Conn.

HERBERT WILLIAMS WELLER, 350 Eighty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Entered employ of government as cost accountant, June 1, 1918, serving in the Signal Corps and later in the Bureau of Aircraft Production; enlisted as Private, U. S. Marine Corps, August 8; stationed at Paris Island, August 16 to October 15, 1918; assigned to Company C, 2d Separate Machine Gun Battalion, Quantico; discharged January 13, 1919.

CLAYTON JACOB WESTERMANN, 136 West Forty-fourth Street, New York City.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted as Pharmacist's Mate, U. S. N. R. F., June 16, 1917; U. S. Naval Hospital, Newport, R. I.; commissioned Ensign, October 14, 1918, and stationed in New London, Conn.; relieved from active duty December 9, 1918.

FREDERICK KING WEYERHAEUSER, 509 North Yakima Avenue, Tacoma, Wash.

In April, 1917, joined Louis Bennett, Jr., in attempting to start the West Virginia Flying Corps; enlisted as a Private in Aviation Section, Signal Reserve Corps, at San Francisco, June 9, 1917; attended School of Military Aeronautics at Berkeley, Calif., June 11 to August 11; ordered to Fort Wood; sailed on U. S. S. Mongolia, September 11; landed at Liverpool, October 2; crossed English Channel the next night; after five days in Paris sent to Italy; attended Flying School at Foggia, Italy, October, 1917, to June, 1918; commissioned First Lieutenant, Air Service, March 1, 1918; further instruction at Malapensa near Milano; sent to the front at Verona, July 15, attached to 6th Squadron, 11th Group, Caproni Bombing Squadron; general work on the Alps front during summer of 1918; took part in raids over the Piave as far as Isonzo in Battle of Vittorio-Veneto, October 25 to November 3; awarded Croce al Merito di Guerra for service on the Italian front, and received citation with crews of four other machines for raid on November 3, "partiti sul cadere del giorne con pessime condizioni atmosferiche per nebbia e nubi densi, per un importante azione di guerra, soli fra 25 equipaggi partiti raggiungevano il bersaglio e lo colpevano efficacemente, dando cosi prova di bella fermezza di sereno ardimento, e di profondo sentimento del dovere"; left Padua for France, November 15; returned to the United States, Christmas Day, 1918; discharged January 6, 1919, at Camp Mills.

MERLE WILLIAMS WHIPPLE, 274 Laurel Street, Hartford, Conn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted June 8, 1917, at New Haven, as Seaman (1st Class), U. S. N. R. F.; called to active service July 12; transferred to the Naval Intelligence Service and sent for special training to the Brooklyn Navy Yard, September 27; advanced to Yeoman (1st Class), November 1, 1917; transferred to the New Haven office; released to inactive duty December 9, 1918.

WALTER CLAYTON WHITE, JR., Butler, N. J.

Physically disqualified for enlistment in any branch of the service; rejected also by Draft Board examiners.

MELZAR MERICK WHITTLESEY, 38 Pomeroy Avenue, Pittsfield, Mass.

Yale R. O. T. C.; attended Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg and Fort Monroe, May 14 to August 15, 1917; commissioned First Lieutenant, Coast Artillery Corps; stationed at Boston, August 27, 1917, to March 10, 1918; sent to Austin, Texas, March 30, and later to San Antonio for training as an airplane pilot; received rank of Reserve Military Aviator, November 10; ordered to Rockwell Field in December, 1918.

AMOS NIVEN WILDER, Mt. Carmel, Conn.

With the American Ambulance, Paris service, November 3, 1916, to January 25, 1917; in the American Field Service, on the Argonne front, February 1 to June 27, 1917, and in the Monastir and Serbian Mountain Sector, July 5 to November 15, 1917; awarded Croix de Guerre with bronze star, divisional citation, for meritorious service in Monastir, Serbia, October 28, 1917; enlisted as a Private in the United States Army at Paris, November 26; served with Army Artillery Headquarters Detachment, 1st Army, December 3, 1917, to January 9, 1918; assigned to Battery A, 17th Field Artillery, January 9; made Corporal, March 9, 1918; Camp Valdahon, March 18, 1918; Côtes de Meuse, March 21 to May 14, 1918; Château-Thierry, June 2 to July 14; Soissons, July 18 to July 26; in Marbache Sector (Nancy), August 1 to August 27; evacuated for operation, and in hospital and replacement camps from August 27 to October 21; assigned to Headquarters, 17th Field Artillery; Champagne Sector, October 21 to October 27; in the Argonne, October 27 to November 11; with the Army of Occupation, November 17 to December 14, 1918; attending the University of Toulouse, in June, 1919.

JACK SCOTT WILEY, Bayside, N. Y.

Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Plattsburg; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, August 15, 1917, and assigned to 151st Depot Brigade, Camp Devens; promoted to First Lieutenant, April 4, 1918; appointed Instructor at Harvard R. O. T. C., summer of 1918; promoted to Captain, August 24; transferred to Camp Grant, September 1; commanding 5th Company, Infantry, 2d Battalion, Central Officers' Training School, Camp Grant; discharged from service at Camp Grant, December 17, 1918.

WILLIAM HENRY WILEY, 176 Collins Street, Hartford, Conn.

Battery C, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; received commission as First Lieutenant, Infantry, at Plattsburg, November, 1917; ordered overseas in January, 1918, unattached; attended 2d Corps Infantry School, January 15 to March; attached to Company B, 167th Infantry, 42d Division; in front line trenches nearly five months: on the Lorraine front, from March 25 to June 25; in the Battle of Châlons from July 14 to 18; Rouge Farm, crossing of Ourcq River, July 25 to August 8; in the St. Mihiel Drive; in the Battle of la Croix, September 12 to 25; division cited by General Pershing; near Sedan during the last days of the fighting; in Germany with the Army of Occupation for four months after the Armistice; returned to the United States in April; received discharge May 2, 1919.

JOHN HAROLD WILLIAMS, 311 York Street, New Haven, Conn.

Yale Naval Training Unit, April to June, 1917; enlisted as Private, June 27, 1917, in Yale Mobile Hospital Unit; trained in New Haven Hospital and Columbia War Hospital, New York City; sailed August 22, 1917, for France, in Base Hospital No. 39; made Sergeant, October 28, 1918; at the time of the Armistice in the St. Mihiel salient, twenty or thirty miles from Metz; discharged January 28, 1919, when the Unit was demobilized.

LAUREN LYMAN WILLIAMS, Steno Farms, R. F. D. 2, Mead, Wash.

Officers' Training Camp, The Presidio of San Francisco; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Infantry, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to 62d Infantry; commissioned Second

Lieutenant, Regular Army, October 26; promoted to First Lieutenant, November 5, 1917; stationed at Camp Fremont, January 6 to October 24, 1918; arrived Camp Mills, October 31; overseas orders canceled at the time of the signing of the Armistice; transferred to Camp Lee, November 24, 1918.

PERCY HUNTINGTON WILLIAMS, Glastonbury, Conn.

Battery A, Tobyhanna, 1916; enlisted in Troop B, 5th Militia Cavalry, in March, 1917; remained with the Unit when it was mustered into the Federal Service in June, 1917, and became the 101st Machine Gun Battalion, assigned to the 26th Division; made Corporal at Niantic in the summer; broke camp October 16, 1917, and sailed from Montreal on the Megantic, landing at Liverpool, October 26, and arriving at Havre, October 30, 1917; took up intensive training with a noted French battalion at Mont Neufchâteau; February 7, 1918, sent to Chemin des Dames for five weeks of active service under fire; sent to sector north of Toul, relieving the 1st Division until June; advanced to Sergeant in June, 1918; moved to Château-Thierry, July 1, and took part in the Second Battle of the Marne; held in reserve at St. Mihiel, then marched fourteen kilometers to Vigneulles, reaching it in time to cut off a part of the German retreat; battalion cited in Division orders for carrying guns and ammunition for twelve miles on their backs through the woods at night, the roads being impassable for trucks because of mine craters; Company B cited by the French in the spring; took part in the engagement on the heights of the Meuse where practically all the men of the battalion were more or less gassed; in July, 1918, took a week's course in a school near Paris for the study of gases; made noncommissioned Gas Officer of his company; after the Armistice, proceeded with his Unit to Louvieres, near Chaumont; returned to the United States, April 8; received discharge April 29, 1919.

HAROLD REED WILSON, 1030 Pierce Building, St. Louis, Mo.

Enlisted as a Private, U. S. Marine Corps, at Paris Island, June 16, 1918; after completing "Boot training" in Company

172, Battery 2, was sent to a noncommissioned officers' school for instruction; on field duty at Paris Island as a Drill Instructor, July 15 to September 8, 1918; made Corporal, September 7, and transferred to Company 286, Battalion 2; assigned to Company B, Bomb and Gas School, at Quantico, in October; stationed there as Instructor, November, 1918, to February, 1919; received discharge February 8, 1919.

MOUNTFORD SAMUEL WILSON, JR., Burlingame, Calif.

HENRY WADE WITZMANN, 1657 Peabody Avenue, Memphis, Tenn.

May 11, 1917, enrolled as Quartermaster (3d Class), U. S. N. R. F., at Newport, R. I.; transferred to Pelham Bay Station, November 23; stationed at the Federal Rendezvous in Brooklyn, January 10 to April 19, 1918; transferred to the Submarine Base at New London; finished the course August 1; attached to the U. S. S. G-4 till February 27, 1919; sent to England to bring back German submarines, attached to U-Boat No. 148; discharged August 5, 1919.

SHIN-PU WO, care China Electric Company, Ltd., 4 The Bund, Shanghai, China.

GE-ZAY WOOD, care Chinese Educational Mission, 2023 Kalorama Road, Washington, D. C.

WILLIAM EZRA WOODMAN, Elmwood Avenue, Rye, N. Y.

Enlisted in New York City, June 8, 1917, in the Aviation Section, Signal Corps; trained as a Cadet at the School of Military Aeronautics, Princeton University, July to October, 1917; at the U. S. Army Balloon School, Fort Omaha, October, 1917, to January, 1918; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Aviation Section, Signal Corps, January 17, 1918; organized the 42d Balloon Company, March 15; sailed June 29, and commanded this company overseas until September 10, 1918; for three months an Observer at the front; attached to the 82d Division in the St. Mihiel Drive, September 12 to 18, and to the 90th Division, 3d Corps, in the Meuse-Argonne Drive, September 26 to November 11, 1918; left Bordeaux, April 19, and reached Newport News, May 3, 1919; received discharge June 5, 1919.

WALTER MILLS WOODWARD, JR., 48 B Dove Street, Albany, N. Y.

Enlisted in New York Naval Militia in June, 1917; reported on board U. S. S. Covington.

KNIGHT WOOLLEY, 1 Sidney Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Enrolled for Plattsburg, 1916; transferred to Battery C, Tobyhanna; Yale R. O. T. C.; first Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned Captain, Field Artillery, August 15, 1917; assigned to 308th Field Artillery, Camp Dix; Commanding Officer, Battery D, 308th Field Artillery, 78th Division; transferred to School of Fire, Fort Sill; at end of ten weeks' course returned to Camp Dix; sailed for overseas duty with the officers of the 308th Field Artillery, May 7, 1918; in training for ten weeks at Camp de Meucon, Vannes; August 20, moved to the front as Operations Adjutant; in the defense of the Sasarey Sector near Pont-à-Mousson, August 29 to September 11; on the extreme right, next to the Moselle River, in the St. Mihiel engagement, September 11 to 24; in the Suippes to Moselle Drive, September 24 to October 4; the Argonne Offensive, October 4 to November 2; pursuit to Sedan, November 2 to November 11; in billets at Senailly, Côte-d'Or, December, 1918, to May, 1919; promoted to Major, Field Artillery, March 27, 1919; returned to the United States, May 12; discharged May 18, 1919.

HOLCOMB YORK, 500 Prospect Street, New Haven, Conn.

Yale R. O. T. C.; enlisted May 23, 1917, Brooklyn Navy Yard as Second Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps; Officers' Training School, Marine Barracks, Quantico, June 20 to October 20, 1917; transferred to Marine Barracks, Mare Island, November 1; transferred to Naval Air Station, San Diego, March 12, 1918; promoted to First Lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, July 1, San Diego; promoted to Captain, July 2; discharged April 23, 1919.

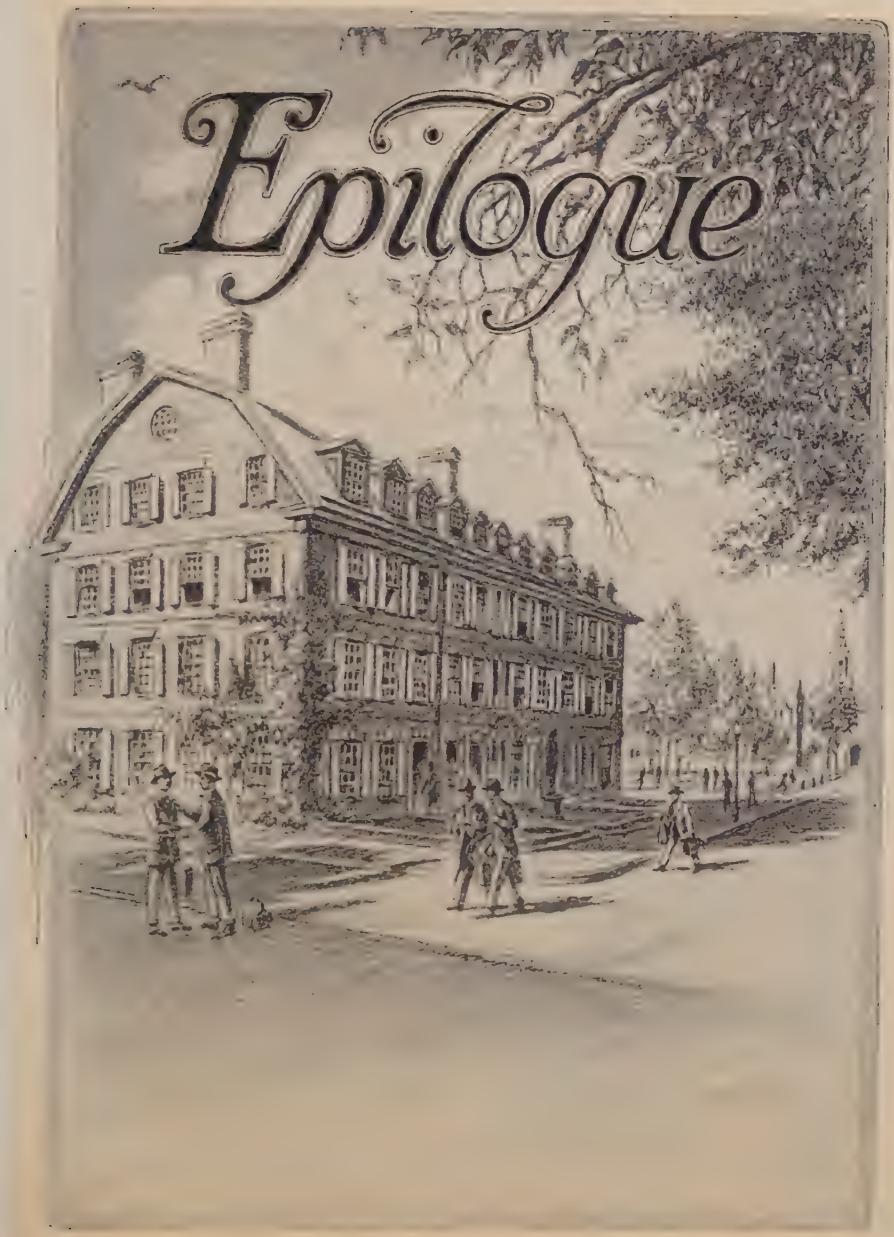
ARTHUR LATHROP ZERBEY, 97 North River Street, Wilkes Barre, Pa.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, Tobyhanna, 1916; Yale R. O. T. C.; Officers' Training Camp, Madison Barracks; commissioned Second Lieutenant, Field Artillery, U. S. R., August 15, 1917; assigned to 5th Battery, 1st Field Artillery, Fort Oglethorpe, as Assistant Instructor in Field Artillery; promoted to Captain, November 27, 1917; assigned as Assistant Instructor in Field Artillery at third Officers' Training Camp, Fort Oglethorpe; April 20 to July 12, 1918, at School of Fire, Fort Sill; assigned to Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor, July 22; commanded the 1st Light School Battery, the 4th and 10th Training batteries, and the 7th Training Battalion, from July 22 to October 15, 1918; Director of Fire Discipline and Matériel, Field Artillery, Central Officers' Training School, Camp Zachary Taylor; discharged February 3, 1919.

Epilogue



DEATH AND BURIAL OF OLIVER B. CUNNINGHAM

"O. B. had been anxious for quite a while to get back into battery work. The Colonel, unselfishly as he thought, finally gave his consent. O. B. was much pleased. I remember the tenor of our talk that night. He wanted to get into a battery; to tackle a harder job; to get more into the thick of the fighting. He told me he was going to ask the Colonel to allow him to do the infantry liaison work—the weakest point and most dangerous work of all. This work had been poorly done before, and O. B. wanted to try to produce the required results. I remember his great delight when he finally received the task.

"The very next day we started the three-day march before the St. Mihiel Drive. I traveled with the 1st Battalion and did not see O. B. again to speak with. He went out on liaison and I had my own work. We were in action only about a week, accomplishing our objectives with ease and speed. After our infantry had completed its 'mission,' it was relieved by a new brigade and O. B. was with them at the end. On the afternoon before, he had sent in a splendid report of conditions, with which, I remember, the Colonel was very much pleased, saying that he knew O. B. could get the right 'dope' back. Relief was effected the same night and I went 'out' with the guns of the 1st Battalion; the 2d were to follow. At daybreak a runner came in the Colonel's car telling me of the tragedy, and I hurried right back.

"The facts of the death are doubtless familiar to you. O. B. was sleeping with the infantry regimental staff in a small wooden shack between Thiaucourt and Jaulny. Orders had come about 2 A. M. calling for an attack, and all the officers were up and reading maps, when shells began creeping down the valley. Our Corporal tried to give the warning but was too late. A third shell hit the dugout, totally demolishing it and setting it on fire. All were killed. O. B. was apparently instantly killed by being hit in the head by a large fragment.

"His body was brought back on a caisson to our 'H' about two kilos south of Thiaucourt and made ready for burial. Shelling, by this time, was infrequent, so we were able to do things 'decently and in order.' The Colonel picked out the location of the grave, just off the main road by a prominent crossroad at the coördinates of which he has advised you. In Thiaucourt was found a monument yard, from which we took a large handsome stone cross, about four feet high, and another smaller one for a marker at the foot. The large stone was properly engraved by an Italian stonecutter in the regiment and erected at the head of the grave. A coffin was also made and a fence erected, made of heavy iron and wire. The spot and setting is a lovely one and many who pass there in years to come will stop and read and reverence.

"The service itself was, as you would wish it, simple, beautiful, and impressive. O. B. was our first officer to be killed in action; he was the Colonel's intimate friend and right hand; he was the admired of us all. We were stunned and grieved beyond words; for days, we were depressed; and we still continue to speak of him and to honor him.

"Oliver Cunningham, by his constant courtesy and faithfulness, his dignified yet winning manners, his unquestionable courage and bravery in the face often of great danger, won a high place in the esteem of his fellows. As his life was an inspiration to us when he was among us, so it is now an example to us as we cherish his memory. That he should have been taken when others of us less worthy have been spared is as inexplicable to us as it doubtless is to his own mother. But as Christian men, we can but bow down and say, 'Nevertheless, Thy will be done.' "

John B. McCormick,
Chaplain, 15th Field Artillery

DEATH OF CLEVELAND C. FROST

"I am a Greek teacher and an American soldier. I do not know very well English, but for the ever memorable First Lieutenant and my friend, Cleveland C. Frost, I shall try to write you a letter in English language with the help of my Greek-English dictionary. When we spoke two hours on the train he told me, with polite talk, 'Please, when you want to speak with me, must to know that you speak with your brother; I consider myself happy if I have in my company a Greek soldier who is descendant of old generous Spartans.' All we soldiers were very glad that we had a lieutenant worthy of the polite American nation.

"Now, permit please, to write you how died the hero. Cleveland C. Frost died as die any of the heroes and glorious American soldiers in the battles of France. He accepted the death without any hesitation in the bridge of captain but with joy.

"When I saw him he was dead, but the laughter from his cheerful face do not failed. The first bullet of the gun of the submarine found him in the left side of his chest, and in the place where he was lay was red with the blood of his body. I was the last soldier who left the Ticonderoga."

By a Ticonderoga Survivor

DEATH OF ROSWELL HAYES FULLER

Lieutenant Roswell Hayes Fuller, in the First Pursuit Group of the 93d Aero Squadron, fought through the St. Mihiel, where the aviators were of necessity greatly overworked, and where their losses were extremely heavy. Shortly after, and without time for rest from the nerve strain, they were moved up to Vaucouleurs near Verdun, and realized that they were in for another great drive.

On the day before the Argonne-Meuse attack, it became necessary for the American command to know by which of two roads the Germans were coming out of Metz. These roads ran side by side for a certain distance, and then diverged widely under cover, so that it was impossible to get the information by aerial photograph. The only way to secure it was to send aviators down low to see with the naked eye. Lieutenant Fuller and Lieutenant Rummell (since dead) were the first to volunteer, and made the journey of nearly one hundred miles over enemy territory. They secured their information, and when they were attacked both from the air and the ground, Lieutenant Fuller gave his companion a signal to fly for France with the news, and he himself engaged the entire formation. When last seen he was circling in a duel with three enemy planes, with others coming to the attack.

The War Department, without success, made every effort possible to discover his fate, and the Red Cross made a special search through every hospital and prison in Germany.

Mrs. Fuller, however, received a letter in August, 1919, from a lieutenant of Field Artillery in France. After passing through six different hands the letter finally reached Winnetka. The French lieutenant wrote that he had been recently stationed in Italy, and while there had met an Italian who was brigaded with the Austrians near Metz, and who, on September 30, 1918, had been present at the funeral of a young American aviator who was shot in battle by the Germans and buried by them with full military honors, in the cemetery at Brandeville. He also mentioned that his papers were turned over to the military authorities at that place, and that his name was Roswell H. Fuller.

The young lieutenant who went so far out of his way to do an act of great kindness wrote in concluding: "This letter may be of no special service, but if by any chance I should be of use in bringing new information to the friends of one who has made the supreme sacrifice for his country, I shall consider myself highly rewarded for this slight effort."

DEATH OF JOHN McHENRY, JR.

"John McHenry had been wounded on July 19, in the Grand Allied Offensive at Soissons, and returned to his outfit about the first of October. As he went over the top leading his platoon,

J. McHenry, Jr. S. W. Meek S. W. Burke

on the morning of October 3, he was struck and instantly killed by enemy fire. This was in the Champagne Offensive. He was with the 2d Battalion, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marines, 2d Regular Division."

Samuel Williams Meek

JOHN OVERTON'S FUNERAL

"In 'The Bloody Red Triangle' formed by the sector in between Château-Thierry, Rheims, and Soissons, the American Army suffered some of its most severe losses. At one point two thousand American soldiers lost their lives in half an hour. Few of those who gave up their lives in this bloody triangle of territory called forth more general sorrow than Lieutenant John W. Overton of the U. S.

John Overton's Grave

Marine Corps. Lieutenant Overton, or 'Johnny' Overton as he was more familiarly known, was a son of Nashville, Tennessee, parents. He was best known as a Yale student and Captain of the Yale Track Team, as a member of which he was a star athlete.

"Lieutenant Overton gave up his life in a brave charge, leading his men of the U. S. Marine Corps at a little crossroads near Vierzy in the drive on Soissons. He was first buried where he fell. After the signing of the Armistice the Marines who lost their lives in this dreadful charge were placed in a cemetery near Parcy-et-Tigny. The U. S. Government is now placing the bodies of the heroes who fell in this section in a permanent American cemetery near Missy-aux-Bois, about five kilometers from Soissons. This cemetery will contain more than two thousand American lads whose mortal remains will rest in French soil until the Resurrection morn.

"On May 16, 1919, it was the sacred privilege of a little group of friends to be present when Lieutenant Overton's body was removed from the temporary cemetery at Parcy-et-Tigny to the permanent cemetery at Missy-aux-Bois. Lieutenant Trigg, in charge of this detachment of the Graves Registration Service, gave every coöperation and facility in order that a proper funeral might be held for this gallant lad. This little company conducted the ceremony when the body was placed in its new resting place.

"The grave was covered with fresh flowers and garnered sheaves of new wheat. The service consisted of scripture reading and prayer, the latter not for him but for those left behind, and a song sung by Miss Mackey of Brooklyn."

Rev. S. W. McGill, Y. M. C. A.—A. E. F.

DEATH OF JOHN F. RICHARDS

"From the St. Mihiel Offensive we went directly into the Argonne, which was all work and no play. Everyone was over the lines every day and a good many broke down under the strain. But Dick continued to do wonderful work and was always cheerful. I was in charge of flying down there and had a mighty good chance to learn a lot about the characters of the men in the Squadron, with the strain they were under. Dick's was pure gold,—never an excuse, never a grouch.

"His last trip was an Artillery Surveillance Mission. His duty was to pick up enemy batteries and adjust our Artillery on them. After they had been out about an hour, the motor of the plane that was protecting them went bad and the pilot dove down in front of Dick and led him out. But when they got back to our balloon line, Dick turned back. Apparently he and Lieutenant Austin F. Hanscom, the observer, had located an important target and felt it their duty to return and direct our fire on it even if they had to go in alone. It was more than his orders called for, but it was absolutely in line with his work. He knew what was needed and intended to get it in spite of obstacles. A few minutes later he was hit by a shrapnel shell. His death must have been instantaneous.

"For a long time we had hoped that he was either a prisoner or wounded. We had had a report of a plane brought down by shrapnel, but could not find out what it was because it had fallen near the front lines in very rough country and was not visible from the air. We combed all the hospitals and dropped notes to the Boche asking for news. Finally, we stumbled into the chaplain who had conducted his funeral. The grave is quite a little back of where he fell in clear ground on a little ridge."

William G. Tytus, 1913,
Captain, 1st Aero Squadron

DEATH AND FUNERAL OF DUMARESQ SPENCER

"In a quiet little spot surrounded by evergreens, among heroes of the war of 1870 and of this one, Stuff has found his last resting place. Only men who have had the honor to give their lives for France and for the liberty of the world—only heroes—are buried there. As an officer—for his commission in the Navy had arrived in Paris—with full military honors and his last salute fired from the mitrailleuses of three aeroplanes as they circled and wheeled above, Stuff was buried. The ceremony, simple and sincere, the gentle words of the priest who praised, as only a Frenchman can, the deeds and ideals of a man who lived only to do kindnesses for others and who died to free the world from oppression, touched even the hardest heart and moistened the coldest eye. Stuff, cheerful, seeing the funny side of everything, and using the best of judgment, always had made many true friends among the personnel here in the escadrille. Everyone honored and respected him, from the officers to the mechanics, for truly he was a prince among princes, a man among men—a thorough gentleman.

"On January 22d, at three-thirty, Stuff left the ground to do some acrobatics and try out his machine gun. Stuff was a wonderful flyer. He made a number of fine vertical virages and renversements above the 'piste,' and then went over the lake near here to try out his mitrailleuse. We always practice shooting and sighting at a target on the lake when coming out of a maneuver. Stuff made a renversement which ended in a 'vrille.' He climbed back, made another renversement, and fell into a 'vrille' again, but did not come out. He was killed the instant he touched the ground, the hood of the machine striking him just below the eyebrows. Stuff never realized he was going to hit the ground,—in fact so quick was death that he did not know what had happened. To die the way he did is the quickest and sweetest—a man is so wrapped up working with the controls of the machine—he has concentrated all his thought on them to such an extent,—that when the wreck comes he does not know what has happened. We saw the machine fall about a mile from here and hastened to it. An ambulance arrived a few minutes later and carried Stuff to the hospital in Belfort, where some very nice nurses helped put him in a little chapel which was draped with French and later with American flags. For a day he lay in state dressed in his flying clothes. The next day, January 24th, I was present when he was gently placed in a lead coffin and covered with American and French flags. Huge wreaths from the officers and pilots of this escadrille, the personnel of the 'groupe de combat' to which we belong, the members of escadrille IV-157, the members of escadrille Spad 49, the Americans here, and from the family, were clustered about him. The peace in which he lay there in that quiet little chapel with two candles burning near his head was sublime, heavenly.

"The funeral took place the next day, January 25th, at ten o'clock in the morning. Every one of the officers and pilots of all the escadrilles near here who were not flying came to show his respect and gratitude for the noble sacrifice he had made for their beloved France. There was a short service in the little chapel and then an armed guard of twelve French poilus marched slowly beside the carriage—three in front, three behind, and three on each side. Preceding them a soldier carried a wooden cross with Stuff's name engraved on it, while directly behind him other soldiers carried the wreaths. The carriage was followed by two nurses. Russell Stearns, a very good friend of Stuff's, and I walked with the priest directly behind the nurses. Then followed the officers and pilots, a great many of them, in fact so many that they stretched behind for more than two city blocks. As we slowly moved through the streets every soldier stood at attention saluting, every civilian stopped and with hat in hand paid his solemn respect to the departed. Through the streets, under the huge fortifications of Belfort, out into the beautiful country moved the sad procession. Finally near the top of a hill, in front of a beautiful little spot,—made more beautiful by its age, and by the huge trees and vines which surrounded it, we stopped. The people gathered solemnly around the grave. Our Captain told of Stuff's marvelous courage, his fight with the Germans, and his kindness to all. The priest bade him enter the happy Eternal which Stuff's wonderful life so well deserved. Then with three aeroplanes firing a salute from above he was slowly and gently laid to rest—a hero surrounded by heroes—he lies in peace."

George C. Mosely, 1917 S.,
Lieutenant (j. g.), Naval Aviation

DEATH OF WILLIAM NOBLE WALLACE

"I will give you, first, the details of William Noble Wallace's death. He had been wounded on July 19, in the Allied Offensive at Soissons, and returned to his outfit on the eighth day of October. The morning of the 19th he had been ordered to make a reconnaissance, by his commander, of the German positions immediately in front of him. He executed this with great skill and daring, and he was returning to our battalion post of command when he was struck by an enemy shell and death was instantaneous. He was buried between Somme Py and St. Etienne. At the time of his death he was a First Lieutenant, his commission dating from July 1, 1918. We do not know whether he had received notification of his promotion or not. He was with the 3d Battalion, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marines, 2d Division, and acting in the capacity of Battalion Scout Officer at the time of his death."

William Noble Wallace

Samuel Williams Meek

Coming Up for an Attack

ST. MIHIEL FROM THE GENERAL HEADQUARTERS POINT OF VIEW

"On the afternoon of the eleventh (September), we found that certain maps which the First Army wanted very badly could not be printed at the Base Printing Plant, and that we must get the tracings back to General Headquarters and have a few copies struck off on the little press there. So I got into a side car and set out to get them. It was raining, and soon it got very dark. The machine had neither lights nor horn, and one cylinder was bad. However, I managed to get the tracings and get back without any serious accidents. I was very wet and very sleepy, and wanted nothing but to go home and sleep. When I got to the office, however, I found that Lieutenant Bolling, who was the only one on duty there, was expecting any minute to have Colonel Conger, the Chief of G-2A, walk in. Colonel Conger had been away for days, and now that he was back for information on what was going on, it behooved us to give him whatever he wanted. He had told Bolling he would be down at 9.45, but when 11.30 came with no sign of him, I decided to go and see what it was he wanted. He was most apologetic when he found we had been waiting (he is a very nice man besides being a most remarkable officer—I'll tell you about him some time), and came down at once. We gave him all the information we could, and then he sat at our own Colonel's desk, smoking and smiling and telling us stories of the Philippines. He seemed to have no regard for the time, which worried us a little until he remarked that he was going to start for First Army Headquarters at one. I gave him some papers to take up, took his baggage downstairs for him, and watched him drive away with another colonel and a couple of captains. It was too late to go back to my billet, so I spent what was left of the night in Bolling's room. When we came back to the office in the morning we learned that the First American Army had gone over the top. My maps were printed and I started up with them to First Army Headquarters. It was as different as possible from a few days before. There were no troops in the villages, and except for a few M. P.'s at the crossroads, and now and then a broken-down truck abandoned, no signs of the Army. The first thing I saw at Headquarters was Colonel Conger, still smoking and smiling, just as though he had not spent 90 per cent of the last week on the road. I saw nothing of the actual battle, but on the other hand I had the interest of watching its development as a whole on an enormous relief map. It did run beautifully according to plan. Of course the enemy was expecting an attack, but not for several days. The first day there was practically no fighting, and though the Germans did do some clever retreating (their retreats are really wonderful always), only a confirmed optimist like Ludendorff could have regarded it as a complete success from their point of view."

ALFRED R. BELLINGER

PAPER TAPE RECORDING THE INTENSITY VARIATIONS OF THE AMERICAN ARTILLERY FIRE AT ST. MIHIEL

The small waves denote the light guns—as 75's, the larger waves mark the heavies.

The regular waves down the center mark each one-fifth of a second, which gives an idea of the intensity of the bombardment in the first All-American Engagement.

S. W. MORRISON

FROM A FRENCH SCHOOL GIRL

"Monsieur:

"As your company for my family and for me, is very agreeable, we should will, to give our room, to you, and your friend.

"It's perhaps possible to do exchange with your friend, waited?

"I desire it, because every evening and every Sunday, we should have immense pleasure to speak with you, and to be in your charming society. My mother would, have much joy to you to coddle, how her children.

"Sunday afternoon I shall be happy and haughty to receive you because you are very gentle officier American.

"Excuse my style, but my knowledge English being very trifling, I am obliged much work, I ask little indulgence.

"My father depart to-morrow evening for Paris. I shall ask to my mother, the permission for to receive you. Certainly yes, I am very glade.

"Good evening and to-morrow.

GERMAINE"

Garnered by Alfred R. Bellinger.

WHEN GENERAL PERSHING WAS DECORATED

August 8, 1918.

"Day before yesterday I had the pleasure of seeing General Pershing decorated with the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor by President Poincaré. It was a fine show. The buildings of General Headquarters are very plain four-story concrete houses, forming three sides of an oblong, the fourth side being formed by two little buildings and the gates to the quadrangle. In front of the central building, under a double row of trees, were the officers of the French, British, Belgian, Italian, and Japanese missions, with many of the French officers of the neighborhood. On the two short sides were the officers and men of the Headquarters force—not in ranks, just standing as spectators. A detachment of Marines marched in and took their station in front of the gates, with a precision that was beautiful to see, and, when they were established, a detachment of French Infantry marched in beside them. Then there was a fanfare, and a line of automobiles drove in, the first having four stars on it and containing the Commander-in-Chief and the President, everyone saluting as they passed. They got out at the entrance of the central building and walked to the middle of the quadrangle, where the President made a short speech in English and hung the big red ribbon over the General's shoulder. But the great moment was when all the troops stood saluting while the band played the Marseillaise. All things considered, it was a very modest and quiet affair, but remarkable to me because it was the first I had seen of either of the two principals. The Commander-in-Chief looks like a real General, though I was a bit disappointed to find him conspicuously less than nine feet tall."

ALFRED R. BELLINGER

BIERWIRTH'S EXAMPLE HELPS LOAN DRIVE

Quoted from a letter from an American artillery officer (J. E. Bierwirth), not because there is anything unusual about the incident, but on the contrary because it is an everyday and every night incident in France.

"The hardest job I have had was Sunday when I had to pull a regiment of French Artillery up close to its position. It was a pull of about forty-five miles and was some hike. I was on the road thirty-two hours without eating or sleeping. However, it was my own fault, because I had the stuff to eat with me and the time to sleep, but just didn't do it as there seemed to be always something to do."

The government asks the same kind of service from the Army at home as it gets in full measure from the Army Over There.

GUY EMERSON,
Director of Publicity

AS WE ENDED. U. S. S. GUINEVERE, JANUARY 25, 1918

THE REAL RUSSIA

Moscow, November 15, 1917.

"I am quite safe in Moscow, and in the midst of civil war, living in a palace in No-Man's Land between the lines, with shrapnel dropping on the roof and an occasional bullet popping through the window. We have no bread, but cheese and apples, tea, coffee, potatoes, and a very few canned things, so that we can make good soup and live well. We have butter and sugar. There have been many casualties here, and a good many pools of blood are in our street. I have not been outdoors since I got to Moscow."

Moscow, November 20, 1917.

"One of our men is being sent back to New York. He was nearly killed last week by a shell and the house next to his burned down; and when he sent out to get permission to come out of his door in case his own house burned down it was refused him. He is going as our courier all the way home, giving me the chance to write you with some assurance of being able to get the letter through. Everything is peaceful now, the Government forces, which consisted mostly of students and young officers, having surrendered to the Bolshevik forces. We hear that Lenine in Petrograd has resigned and that at this moment there is actually no government. Strange to say there seems to be no looting and the streets are in every respect normal, now that most of the trolley wires are up again and some of the lighting system going. Banks were open yesterday and everyone was permitted to draw up to a thousand roubles, I believe. I am most of the time in the house and have surprisingly little chance to hear what is going on. We all feel that this is merely a lull and that more trouble is bound to come. I believe even the Bolsheviks themselves are anxious to get rid of the responsibility of government. We hear that Korniloff is operating outside the city with his Cossacks and will soon take it. I wonder if there is any truth in that. I hate to think of what the Bolsheviks might do to the Kremlin if they were besieged there. There is enough destruction everywhere. Moscow looks like pictures of invaded France in some places."

Moscow, November 21, 1917.

"I have just seen the Bolshevik procession in honor of their men killed in the fighting last week. If you saw the Russian Revolution pictures in New York you will know exactly how it looked, as this procession was an exact copy of the one in Petrograd in honor of the heroes of the first revolution. The coffins were carried in a long procession, accompanied by the soldiers and workmen armed, and by thousands of friends and relatives singing rather solemn church music. The great square in front of the Kremlin was a wonderful sight as the procession with its red coffins, red banners and wreaths, and hundreds of rifles wound slowly through the immense crowds and entered the gate of the Kremlin to deposit their dead on the sacred soil of the Red Square within. You know how the Kremlin wall looks with the church towers peeping over it. It was all decorated with great banners calling for peace and brotherly love and the rule of the proletariat.

"The banking situation is in chaos, as the powers that be in Petrograd have lent themselves ten million roubles, which they went to get, accompanied by soldiers and sailors and a brass band, according to men just returned from Petrograd, and this has so debilitated the resources of the bank that it cannot open, and the other banks cannot open either as they have no other clearing house. Orders have been issued in Moscow that no one can draw more than one hundred and fifty roubles a week from his bank account, and it seems that an attempt to put the wealth of the country on a communal basis has been made. (I don't even know whether you have to have a bank account to draw your one hundred fifty roubles.) There are all sorts of regulations. If you pay over a certain amount of rent you must contribute so many blankets to the community for each room, etc.

"There are sixteen men here to open a branch of the National City Bank. They were yesterday almost down to their last cent, and only by a special pull were they able to get two thousand roubles for their personal needs. They are of course regarded with suspicion, and don't know the first thing about the conduct of the war except that there is a steady great German advance in the direction of Minsk, and that there has been a great Italian catastrophe. We hear that our men have been in action already.

"The American colony is, I believe, taking measures for its safety in future trouble, and is on the whole, I understand, very gloomy. They don't know what is to become of their property and business under the present conditions.

"Ultimately, of course, Russia will pull herself together and with her inexhaustible wealth will be one of the great nations of the world. It is the immediate future that is so dark. If a general peace comes soon, there will be some chance of avoiding anarchy, I imagine. You in America probably know more about it than we do, but perhaps do not realize that peace is the only thing talked of here and that the people demand it and that the army will not fight any longer. They say there was heavier firing here all last week than at the Russian front."

Moscow, Thanksgiving Day.

"The past week has been one without events of any sort and has been easily the most uneventful of our trip thus far. I might perhaps modify this statement by telling of the funeral of the cadets and officers killed in the Bolshevik revolution which I saw also from the front line of the crowd and which impressed me a great deal more than the preceding Bolshevik funeral. There were about forty coffins carried in the procession. There were no political banners, and of course, being the vanquished side, no arms. The participants were students and young officers and many women. The student cap and uniform was everywhere evident. Many of the women themselves carried the coffins as well as the men, and their faces were terribly grief stricken. The whole crowd was deeply affected, and I, for one, wept considerably. In this procession there were religious observances, and the priests also marched, while the other was a purely civil function. The singing was here also very moving and reverent.

"I have been spending five hours a day on Russian, and sometimes think that it will not be impossible to make some progress. Last Sunday I went to the Trechekovski Gallery and saw that wonderful collection of Russian art. I was immensely impressed and was glad to go there with two very cultivated Russian students and get into a really refined and cultivated atmosphere again. Next Wednesday I expect to go to the Ballet and perhaps there will also be Opera.

"I am sitting in a room surrounded by mechanical and electrical devices of all sorts, supposedly directing a Russian mechanic in his own language to fix some apparatus of which I understand not a bit.

"The word from the front indicates very unfavorable conditions for our work, as the propaganda from German sources is finding a fertile field there and there is a feeling against us. Perhaps it is better not to speculate on political subjects even in a letter going all the way to New York by hand. On the whole I expect a peace here, but we know nothing of the general situation and have mighty unreliable information to base a judgment on. Orders that were in from the front for some of our men to go out to the work have been countermanded, both from Odessa and from Minsk.

"It is strange to me that with hundreds of irresponsible armed men and boys, and no authority whatever, the city should be completely quiet. They say that the Cossacks will not act now, but will content themselves with staying down in the South and cutting off Moscow from coal and provisions. It is also said that the Ukraine Government has withdrawn three hundred and sixty thousand men from the front.

"Today we are inviting the American colony to come to our palace for tea and singing, etc., but as the telephone and mail service is all wrong we are not sure that any one will turn up. The consul is sending a train full of women and men with families out next week as we expect more trouble soon. We cannot go into the Kremlin yet. I wonder whether I shall ever see it at all.

"Moscow is full of bread lines, for most of the staples are sold on cards. In peace times I could imagine no more pleasant place to live in than here, however."

Moscow, December 4, 1917.

"I hope to include the Ballet and a presentation of 'The Merchant of Venice' in this week's program, but am not sure of tickets. There is a newspaper man here who doesn't speak French. I have spoken every day since I have been in Russia and go with him sometimes to interpret, and so you have your conservative son taking tea at one in the morning with Salome and Portia and other charming ladies in the city of Moscow, and conversing about post-impressionistic art in the French and Russian languages."

Moscow, January 4, 1918.

"It is tragic in Russia,—not so much what we actually see,—there is little violence on the surface,—but because this great country is going to pieces and things will have to be so much worse before they can be better. The British Ambassador has left and the papers this morning say that the French are to follow. Francis seems determined to stay on. Uncle Sam is a friend of Russia, though Russia seems unwilling to admit it, and we can, of course, not consider the present government as representing Russia. I have so much to say to you about things here, but I don't dare to do so.

"Banks are all closed. People are called upon to appear with the keys to their strong boxes and show their possessions to the authorities, so-called. Prices are in the clouds, and industry has stopped. No one will work. There is no longer an army. They want immediate peace, and if they don't get it they will go home anyway as they are doing."

Harbin, July 3, 1918.

"You have no idea what doing business in Russia is like. One has simply to treat everyone as a child, reduce everything to writing, trust no one's word, and take lots of time. One can't do business by mail. You will wonder why a few moving pictures and five hundred words of telegram take two men's time. But when it takes thirty minutes to make a deposit in the bank, when you have to go to newspaper offices and find your own copy on their desks and stick it under their noses before they will see it, when it takes an hour to pay a stamp tax and your pamphlets lie for a week on the printer's desk all ready without being delivered to you, when every appointment is broken and you have to send a special messenger to get the receipt on every payment, when you have to explain that an ordinary check is not a ten days' draft and the money on it can be received at any time, when you have to go back of the desk in the tax office and add their own bill up for them, when the lights go out in the middle of the performance and you have to spend an hour pacifying the public, when the Chinese have to have certain kinds of money paid to them and the Russians another, when you have to stand over the typesetter at the printers and explain to him at length that he is expected to actually correct a mistake carefully marked on the proof, when it takes half an hour to buy a bar of soap, and three weeks to rent two rooms for a month, you will see that a great deal of time is wasted. Furthermore the town is divided into four distinct sections, each with a distinct population having no connection with the other. By the way, our street is completely flooded after every shower and you can't get out of the office on foot."

William A. Brown, Jr.

Mr. Cootie Can't Get at These Bald Tops. Workers in Yale Hospital Unit No. 39

DODGING BULLETS AND COOTIES

Somewhere in France, October 7, 1918.

"I delivered the message, and started back to look for some more of the Company, that had gotten separated. Passing the gap up had been bad, but going back was worse. The machine guns opened up terrifically, and right in the worst part my horse fell at a full run. I thought my last moment was right at hand; each bullet seemed to say, 'Davis,—Davis.' By some good luck I was pitched clear and got nothing more than a little wrench and a skinned leg, and the horse fared no worse. He had simply slipped on the treacherous wooden road. Right then they started to pump in the gas shells, but there was no use to bother with a gas mask for either horse or me, and we surely made some time out of the place.

"It was very far out for a Division P. C. and the Boche continually shelled hell out of it. They killed half of the horses, including my new mount, and bumped off quite a few of our men. The climax came when the message center got a direct hit. I was quite lucky in this case. There were nine of us in it, and only two came out unhurt; three killed and four wounded. I was asleep when it happened, right up against the wall on the floor, and the shell struck about three feet above my head. It was quite a few minutes before I knew whether or not I was hit. There was blood all over me, but I was not hurt. After that the General decided to move the P. C. for which everyone was heartily thankful.

"It is quite quiet over here, with very little shelling and not much to do, but the place, being an old Boche dugout, is infested with fleas and cooties. Your darling son is busy. This job is a wonder and I think I have made good at it. It is really a major's job, but officers were scarce, and they hauled me in. I have seen the drive from three divisional fronts and have gotten all sorts of dope. A newspaper reporter would have sold his soul for my opportunities. We are smashing them hard, and let me say right here that though an artilleryman myself, I have certainly got to hand it to the doughboys. They have indeed stood the gaff wonderfully, and are still at it. The Boches they have been up against are the pick of the whole Boche army. One division I was with had never been in action before, but they tore through those Boches with the bayonet like cyclones."

John L. Davis

A PRISONER OF WAR IN GERMANY

"I was transferred to Section 64 before my capture, which took place on the extreme right end of the Chemin des Dames. I was with the 22d French Division and there was only one other American with me the first week. Directly after the Germans got us the French put over a defensive barrage which we took in the open air while the Germans went below. We could see the infantry across the hill catching the fire directly. They were advancing over heaps of bodies as the black smoke of the high explosives flew up with the clods of earth. We finally started back over the hills, passing many groups of officers who were watching the advance with their glasses. We were told that the Kaiser was there but did not see him. Three days on the train with but two soups left us pretty weak. The next month and a half at Darmstadt after two days at Giessen were lean days. I lived on two cabbage soups a day and a piece of sawdust bread. My transfer to Münster brought me better luck, although I had the flu for three weeks and could get no medicine from the Germans. Some French prisoners who were receiving parcels of food from home took pity on me and this saved my life. I had lost over twenty pounds. For five months I never left a space smaller than the Yale Campus.

"We saw the revolution as it was enacted in Münster. It was farce pure and simple. The old general handed in his epaulettes and sword as though he were checking them. I passed through Holland on November 26th, arrived in England, and then the States."

HARRY F. THORPE

FROM DUMARESQ SPENCER TO HIS MOTHER

"We started off on our patrol with me hugging the Lieutenant's tail just as tight as I dared. You can imagine how hard it is to watch the 'terains,' keep your place in formation, and watch the German 'contreavions' all at the same time. Being up there for the first time with very little flying experience I was all for sticking right with the leader. We made the patrol once without incident. We saw some Germans, but they were well within their lines so we did not bother them. We turned around and were about halfway back when the Lieutenant's machine started rocking from side to side and up and down. This is the signal to get ready for an attack. I looked around and saw, well above us and to the left, three German machines surrounded by a lot of 'contreavions éclats.' The Lieutenant started climbing so as to get above them, and between them and the sun, but they evidently saw us coming, or had gone as far as they were supposed to, and turned back. We did not follow them. The Lieutenant afterward told me that we had done all that we were supposed to do, and so take it that we scored a technical victory at which I was greatly elated. We continued our patrol and pretty soon the Lieutenant started wriggling his tail again and started some wild maneuvering. I looked around but failed to see any Boche so thought he was just trying to find out what kind of pilot I was. I kept with him for a while and then he went up on one wing and into a terrific wing slip right straight down. I did my best to follow him but did not make a very good wing slip so went into a nose dive. By this time he had dropped at least one thousand meters and I had lost him. It seems that he had seen three Boche and had piqued to attack, but I did not see them anywhere. It is hard to realize how fast you are going all the time, especially when you drop like that. If you wing slip right it just flattens you against the side of the machine, you are going so fast.

"Well, I started back toward the lines and saw a machine flying alone. I thought it was the Lieutenant and headed straight for it. As I came up it appeared kind of black so I mounted above him just to play safe. He was swaying around and got the side of his fuselage in the sun. Then I saw the old black cross staring me in the face as plain as day with a nice silver background. By this time I knew that I had 'done made a mistake,' but there was nothing to do but attack. I took a couple of deep gulps, a firm hold on my 'marsh,' and tried to figure out the next move. He had seen me and was coming at me on a diagonal, but I was above, and when he was almost underneath I piqued on him and squeezed the trigger. I thought that I had him, for he was only one hundred meters off and my luminous bullets seemed to be going right for his head. But they didn't seem to faze him and the next thing I knew he had 'viraged' up and was piquing on me. I heard his 'mitrailleuse' go tack-tack-tack and sort of pulled my neck in, but nothing happened. I 'viraged' off so that I was above him again and piqued again on him, but with no better results. This time my 'mitrailleuse' jammed, and by the time I had reloaded it he was almost directly over me and in a beautiful position. So I went into a 'vire' and got away from him. I came out of it and started to climb again until I was about even with him. We passed each other again and exchanged a few shots. My 'mitrailleuse' jammed again. I also noticed three more Germans above us and a little way off who were coming up as fast as they could. Furthermore, one of the stays holding up my elevator was flapping in the wind, so I decided that it was high time for me to get back home.

"By this time we had worked well over the German lines and home looked a long way off, but I opened the motor wide, gave a few short prayers, and started to pull the stick into my stomach, with the four Germans well on my tail. They were faster than I, but I could climb faster. Furthermore, I think God was on my side, and from then on it was a case of 'get out of the way and let some one run who knows how.' They did not go very far over our lines, and, believe me, I was glad to see them call it off. I took one peek at my elevator, saw it was still there, and started a very gentle peak for our 'piste.' I got in all right and then found one 'mitrailleuse' hole in my wing. It was a great experience and I learned more about aerial fighting than a year of schooling could ever give me."

DUMARESQ SPENCER

STEM OF MONGOLIA. FIRST GUN TO SINK SUBMARINE

BALLADE OF THE DISAPPOINTED VOYAGEUR

Caparisoned in glory and O. D.
We marched aboard the martial railroad train
And, having reached the city by the sea,
Bravely we left our own beloved terrain.
We met the deep, with terror underlain,
Great-hearted and with most heroic mien,
But though full long we plowed the briny main
We did not see a single submarine.

The fair breeze blew, the furrow followed free,
Weird chorals rose from every rope and chain;
Shearwaters circled silent on our lee
And gulls skimmed by. So every warlike swain
Did on his life belt, as of battle fain.
We watched the sunlit flash, the moonlit sheen,
But all our vigilance and care was vain—
We did not see a single submarine.

Onward we sailed in tame security;
The zone where U-boats are supposed to reign
Was less exciting yet, if that could be.
The breezes died, and all was still again;
Nor clouds by night obscured the starry wain
Nor waves by day upheaved the ocean's green;
But though 'twas perfect weather to be slain
We did not see a single submarine.

L'Envoi

I know an officer should not complain
And yet, in spite of all that I have seen
I never can remember without pain
We did not see a single submarine.

Alfred R. Bellinger

ADVANCING WITH THE INDOMITABLE DOUGHBOY

September 18, 1918.

"The day before the attack, word came that ammunition for us had not arrived, so we were pretty disappointed. I had been put on another detail as Supply Officer when the order came which said that the officers and crews which were to have fired our guns should go over the top with the Infantry and turn Boche guns around and fire them. I got rid of my job somehow, and, with Lieutenant Sanford and fifteen men, went over the top with the second wave of the Infantry. Air orders came at five in the afternoon, and as the artillery preparation was to start at one in the morning and as we were a long way from the line, I had to hurry and get ready.

"This was my first experience in such kind of warfare, but I finally found myself with a regulation pack on my back with two days' rations, a raincoat, gas mask, pistol, and extra rounds of ammunition. Our leggings, shoes, and all were regulation, just like the doughboys. We started about eight o'clock by wagon for the front, but the roads were so jammed that we could not move fast enough, so we all piled off and hiked. We got up to the third line and found headquarters dugout. Here we received orders to join the 26th Infantry and stay with them and report to their Commanding Officer. His dugout was in the second line trenches so we went on. Just as we were going down into the second line, at one o'clock, the artillery opened up. We chased up and down trenches, pretty wet and muddy, found the Commanding Officer and reported. He told us to go over with the second wave, the bombers and moppers up, so we went back, got our men together in the trench, and waited.

"Daylight and five o'clock, the hour set for the jump off, finally came. It hardly seemed possible, as we waited in the trench, that we were really taking part in the first American Offensive and going over the top with the Infantry. We did not know how far or how long we were to be gone. We knew that the resistance would either be very strong or very weak; and it turned out to be the latter. After all it seemed pretty natural to stand there and wait to go over, in fact rather good to get up and move about when the time came. The first wave had gone and was well started when our wave got up out of the trenches and formed,—and we were on our way. We passed down through our first line trenches, then out into No Man's Land that has stood as such for the past four years.

TRENCHES

"It is quite a sensation to walk over ground that has been forbidden property for so long. There was no running or hurrying, as many people think. The Infantry goes forward walking in single file, some, in fact many, smoking cigarettes. You would think we were old hands at the game to see us. Our mission was to find Boche guns and turn them around, but we went for a couple of hours before we found one and then the firing mechanism had been removed so it was useless to us.

"After about three hours, as the first line was going slowly, we stopped and ate breakfast, all of us taking shelter in shell holes. We realized how simple it all was, and that the Boche had not waited to see us but had beaten it in the night and early morning when our artillery opened up. It was just a walk-away for us with practically no casualties. We had not gone long before the first Boche prisoners passed us going to the rear. As they passed they threw off their helmets, and some waving handkerchiefs and others with their hands well overhead kept on to the rear, and safety. What a jubilant lot they were,—perfectly happy; for them the war was ended. I saw one German calmly walking to the rear with no one guarding him or paying any particular attention to him. He knew the direction, and kept straight on.

"Toward noon we got to our final objective for the day, a town. Now we were practically in the first wave of Infantry and from a little rise of ground around the town watched the tanks maneuver and the doughboys surround it. Just as they were about to enter the town there came rapid gunfire from the church tower. The Boche were up in that and were trying to hold up the advance a little bit. The Infantry opened up, but as they were well protected in the tower it took a couple of shots from the heavier guns on the tank before they came scampering down and were taken prisoners. Four of the Boche were soon carrying one of their wounded to the rear.

Property of J. Harold Williams, 1917

"Before long we went into the town that I spoke of, and as our patrols had been sent on ahead we found some rooms and got comfortable for the night. It was the first town that we had gone into in which there were civilians who had been in Boche hands for four years. One old man fairly cried as we spoke a little French to him. The town was well Germanized, with signs of Kaiser Wilhelm, Strasse, etc., all over it. From there on our advance took on more the appearance of being in Germany itself. That night we went to bed at six o'clock, and the next morning were up at five to go on. We went on slowly and by noon were again at our final objective for the day and also for the attack. It was another town, and as we entered, the buildings which the Boche had set fire to that morning before he left, were still burning. How it makes you hate him to see that,—not being content with occupying the country, but for no reason at all burning the houses. I tell you that when we hit Germany proper, the wrath of the soldiers will be almost uncontrollable. They will want to upturn even that which grows."

GEORGE H. STILLMAN

FIRST AMERICAN IN LONGWY

"I had a very interesting experience. Was the first American, along with driver and a Signal Corps Major, in Longwy. The populace didn't know whether we were French, British, or American, but they knew we weren't German. They all flocked around the car, and wanted to shake hands. I nearly got kissed by both men and women. 'Vive l'Amerique.' "

FRANCIS T. TWEDDELL

ROSWELL FULLER PICTURES AN AIR BATTLE

"I had been out on two patrols and was just starting on the third when the Major asked me if I would like to undertake a special mission. Headquarters was anxious to obtain information about a large city and German base well behind the lines. They picked 'Les' Runnel and me for the job,—I guess because they could spare us more easily than any of the others.

"We made the trip—about seventy-five miles into Germany—without incident, except for our friends, the 'Archies.' We were circling over M—— when suddenly I heard the too familiar rat-tat-tat and saw a couple of incendiary bullets fly past me. I looked around and saw seven Fokkers on my trail.

"Those Boche played with me like a cat with a mouse. Five remained about two hundred meters above us, protecting the two who had me dead to rights. Every time they started to close in on me I would turn on the nearest one and let him have it. They were forcing me down all the time. I didn't see a chance for escape, but never gave up hope.

"I kept up this sort of running fight for about ten miles, finishing at an altitude of only seventy-five meters. I couldn't go any lower, and decided to commit suicide by mixing up with all seven of them, rather than be forced to land and be taken prisoner. I turned, but saw them leaving me. I don't know why, but I was certainly relieved."

ROSWELL H. FULLER

Trench Mortar Abandoned by Germans

CRAMMING IT DOWN THEIR THROATS

"My last job was shooting up 'Jerry' with his own guns from November 1st to 9th. I had all the fun of a battery commander and no worries as to horses, ammunition, etc. If the stuff was there we fired it, otherwise we hunted elsewhere."

Francis T. Tweddell

THE THICK OF THE FIGHTING

"The day before we left for this big push we had a most interesting fight between a fleet of German planes and a French observation balloon right over our heads. We saw five planes circle over our town, then put on, what we thought afterward, a sham fight. One of them, after many fancy stunts, headed right for the balloon. They were all painted with our colors except one. This one went near the balloon. One kept right on. The other four shot the balloon up with incendiary bullets. The observers jumped into their parachutes just as the outfit went up in a mass of flames.

"The next day we took our positions at various places to wait for camions that were to take us somewhere in France, when or for what purpose we did not know. Our turn to enbuss did not come till near midnight.

"We at last got under way after a few big sea bags had hit near by. Wilmer and I led in a touring car. We went at a good clip and nearly got ditched in a couple of new shell holes. Shells were falling fast by now, and as the tenth truck went under the bridge a big one landed near by with a crash, wounded the two drivers, killed two marines, and wounded five more. We did not know it at the time and did not notice anything wrong till we came to a crossroad, when we found we had only eleven cars all told. We found the rest of the convoy after a hunt, but even then were not told of the loss, and did not find it out till the next day.

"We were finally, after twelve hours' ride, dumped in a big field and after a few hours' rest started our march. It was hot as Hades and we had had nothing to eat since the day before. We at last entered a forest; troops seemed to converge on it from all points. We marched some six miles in the forest; a finer one I have never seen—deer would scamper ahead, and we could have eaten one raw. At ten that night, without food, we lay down in a pouring rain to sleep. Troops of all kinds passed up in the night—a shadowy stream, over a half million men. Some French officers told us that they had never seen such concentration since Verdun, if then.

"The next day, the 18th of July, we marched ahead through a jam of troops, trucks, etc., and came at last to a ration dump where we fell to and ate our heads off for the first time in nearly two days. When we left there the men had bread stuck on their bayonets. I lugged a ham. All were loaded down. Here I passed one of Wass's lieutenants with his hand wounded. He was pleased as Punch and told us the drive was on—the first we knew of it. I then passed a few men of Hunt's company bringing prisoners to the rear. They had a colonel and his staff. They were well dressed, clean and polished, but mighty glum looking.

"We finally stopped at the far end of the forest near a dressing station, where Holcomb again took command. This station had been a big, fine, stone farmhouse, but was now a complete ruin—wounded and dead lay all about. Joe Murray came up with his head all done up; his helmet had saved him. The lines had gone on ahead, so we were quite safe. Had a fine aero battle right over us. The stunts that those planes did cannot be described by me.

"Late in the afternoon we advanced again. Our route lay over an open field covered with dead. We lay down on a hillside for the night, near some captured German guns, and until dark I watched the cavalry, some four thousand, come up and take positions.

"At 3.30 the next morning Sitz woke me up and said we were to attack. The regiment was soon under way, and we picked our way under cover of a gas-infested valley to a town, where we got our final instructions, and left our packs. I wished Sumner good luck, and we parted.

"We formed up in a sunken road on two sides of a valley that was perpendicular to the enemy's front: Hughes right, Holcomb left, Sibley support. We now began to get a few wounded; one man, with ashen face, came charging to the rear with shell shock. He shook all over, foamed at the mouth, and could not speak. I put him under a tent, and he acted as if he had a fit.

"I heard Lieutenant Overton call to one of his friends to send a certain pin to his mother if he should get hit.

"At 8.30 we jumped off with a line of tanks in the lead. For two kilos the four lines of marines were as straight as a die, and their advance over the open plain in the bright sunlight was a picture I shall never forget. The fire got hotter and hotter, men fell, bullets sang, shells whizzed-banged, and the dust of battle got thick. Overton was hit by a big piece of shell and fell. Afterward I heard he was hit in the heart, so his death was without pain. He was buried last night and the pin found.

"A man near me was cut in two. Others when hit would stand, it seemed, an hour, then fall in a heap. I yelled to Wilmer that each gun in the barrage worked from right to left, then a rabbit ran ahead, and I watched him, wondering if he would get hit. You think of all kinds of things.

OVERTON AND MCHENRY READY FOR BATTLE, JULY 2, 1918

"About sixty Germans jumped up out of a trench and tried to surrender, but their machine guns opened up, we fired back, they ran, and our left company after them. That made a gap that had to be filled, so Sibley advanced one of his to do the job; then a shell lit in a machine gun crew of ours and cleaned it out completely.

"At 10.30 we dug in; the attack just died out. I found a hole or old trench, and when I was flat on my back I got some protection. Of the twenty company officers who went in, three came out, and one of these, Cates, was slightly wounded.

"From then on to about 8 P. M. life was a chance, and mighty uncomfortable. It was hot as a furnace, no water, and they had our range to a 'T.' Three men lying in a shallow trench near me were blown to bits. Well, we just lay there all through the hot afternoon. It was great—a shell would land near by and you would bounce in your hole.

"As twilight came we sent our water parties for the relief of the wounded. Then we wondered if we would get relieved. At 9 o'clock we got a message congratulating us, and saying the Algerians would take over at midnight. We then began to collect our wounded. Some had been evacuated during the day, but at that we soon had about twenty on the field near us. A man who had been blinded wanted me to hold his hand. Another, wounded in the back, wanted his head patted, and so it went. One man got up on his hands and knees. I asked him what he wanted. He said, 'Look at the full moon,'—then fell dead. I had him buried and all the rest I could find. All the time bullets sang and we prayed that shelling would not start while we had our wounded on top.

"To picture a fight, mix up a lot of hungry, dirty, tired, and bloody men with dust, noise, and smoke. Forget the clean swords, prancing horses, and flapping flags. At night, a gas-filled woods, falling trees and bright, blinding flashes—you can't see your neighbor—that is war."

Robert L. Denig,
Major, U. S. Marine Corps

WHAT THE GERMANS LEFT BEHIND

"You ought to see the souvenirs the boys have got—everything from German feather beds to German watches. I have been sleeping in a little coffin-shaped hole in the ground on a fine soft feather bed one of the boys got for me in a house in the village near where we are encamped at present. There is a fine château there which the Germans tried to set on fire when they left. When I got there the fire was just being put out. I went through the château and it is a relic all right. The Germans had attempted to ruin the furniture, etc., inside, but most of it was in good condition, even to a grand piano which I found in the music room. I sat down and played a Yale song upon it. About the time I had finished my tour of the château, our Brigadier General arrived to set up his headquarters there and I thought it about time to beat it.

"The Germans left this country very quickly and things were in a good deal of confusion. In another town I found a house evidently occupied by a German colonel. His stuff was all strewn over the room which showed a hasty exit. Next door was a German officers' bath with a real porcelain tub and running hot and cold water,—and the thing was working. I sure wanted to fire up the stove, turn on the hot water and take a hot bath, for I, incidentally, hadn't taken a bath for two weeks, but I had to go on.

"Our Division has been cited by General Pershing for its fine work in the last offensive. You probably know what that was by now. Some of our wounded men have come back but a great many will have to do noncombatant work behind the lines. I am expecting our old company commander, Lieutenant Morgan, back very soon now, and hope he comes, for he is better suited for the job by a great many years' experience in the Regular Army. We are working hard now rounding the men into shape again."

William H. Wiley

Frogs

RONDEAU

In gay Paree, where used to be
The very flower of mankind,
Where to have lived was to have dined
And all the world was fresh and free,
Ah, life was blithe and love was blind
In gay Paree!

Other significance to me
That name conveys. It brings to mind
The papers that they cannot find,
Reposing with the Q. M. G.
In gay Paree.

ALFRED R. BELLINGER

HOW IT ALL ENDED

"I shall certainly never forget the last hour of the war. The fighting was hot and heavy, and we were all at the gun positions. It was cold, but fortunately for us very foggy, as we were in an open place, with no protection from shell fire. Gas came over a little, but not much. Everyone had out his watch,—half an hour, quarter of an hour, five minutes, ten seconds, eleven o'clock,—and the cannon still kept on! We thought the Armistice had fallen through, but it was only that our watches were a bit ahead of the official time. When the silence did come a moment or so later, it seemed like death after the uproar we had been living in."

HUGH SCOTT

HOW THE HUNS RETREATED

September 29, 1918.

"The whole terrain is littered with materials left by the retreating Huns. All manner of equipment,—helmets, bandoliers of rifles and machine guns, ammunition, automatic rifles, pistols, knapsacks, boots, cast-off uniforms, and enormous shell dumps, testify to the speed with which they pulled out before our advancing troops. We had time to inspect one concrete pill box which had walls two feet thick with loopholes for machine guns. It was located in a commanding position at the head of a valley designed to sweep the entire adjacent country. Enough machine gun ammunition was stored there to wipe out an army corps.

"In some places frightful stenches arose and we came upon unburied and half buried men and horses lying where they had fallen. We spent some time in the front line trenches, observing the German lines through our glasses. We could see sentries pacing up and down, and work on new lines of defense was being pushed feverishly while our shells were dropping on their trenches.

A Good German

Photo by John W. Overton

"How aptly have those lines been called 'The Frontier of Civilization.' The Hun, after all, is nothing but a scientific brute. I do not think that many at home realize the narrow escapes we, for I speak not only of European civilization, but for us in the United States also, have had in the last four years."

Waldo Hutchins, Jr.

ARMISTICE DAY AT THE FRONT

France, November 11, 1918.

"Pardon me for not writing you each a letter, but my candle wouldn't last that long and I want to write you both on the day the war stopped. I am at the front, as you may have heard, and I will take a chance that the censorship regulations are off to say that we are between Verdun and St. Mihiel. This is supposed to be a fairly quiet sector, but it has been active enough. We have had quite a few mustard gas shells land around us, but nobody was hurt. Coming up from the échelon in a truck the other night we had to wait an hour until Jerry let up shelling a crossroad in a ruined town which we had to go through. Most of the shells come from howitzers I guess, because you can hear the gun go off and then a whining noise which comes nearer and nearer. You think it is going to hit you sure, but it bursts with a dull thud—that is, the gas shells do. The high explosive is very unlike a dull thud. Just after we got through the town mentioned above, they began dropping them over again. The mud is terrible here. Trucks just sort of sidle off the road into the ditch. We were stuck at least ten times on the way out. We couldn't show a light and it was very misty. The road ran through a big battle field. All the trees are just weird looking stumps and there are German and French graves on each side of the road—mostly German. Trenches, barbed wire, broken rifles, and all sorts of equipment are lying around. They say the fourth bloodiest battle of the war was fought there when the Boche tried to sweep over France in 1914. Every night up here, shells have been dropping over. There hasn't been much firing in the daytime. We could hear the put-put of the infantry machine guns down on the plain ahead of us. I am living in a nice German dugout. It is about 20 feet underground and in solid rock almost. The Boche made himself comfortable here. He had four years to do it, and had electric lights, stoves, and regular beds in the dugouts. He moved out in a hurry a short time ago and left a lot behind.

"I will tell you what the end of the war was like at the front and you can tell me in return what it was like back in the good old United States. I had the good fortune to fire the battery, that is—act as executive on the last night of the war. I was awakened at 1.30 and told to fire 120 rounds on a road which Jerry uses at night. It is all map firing here, as we can't observe on account of the mist. Soup kitchens had been seen on the road on other days, so maybe we got a few of them. I went to bed again at 5.15 and was routed out at 9 o'clock this A. M. by an orderly who said the Captain wanted to see me at his dugout. I went over, and he said the war was over, that we had been ordered not to fire any more and that hostilities would cease at 11 o'clock. I couldn't believe it. The infantry was having a hot time just then. We could hear them firing. Some artillery near us was going to it, and every once in a while a shell would come over from the other side. We sat down and listened for the end. It kept up until just before 11 o'clock and then everything gradually stopped. After 11.05 there wasn't a sound except some pistol shots from outfits near us who were celebrating. It was weird—this silence. All day it has been the same. An infantry lieutenant told us that the dirty Huns had fired gas, which sticks around for a week, at his outfit all the morn-

EXTRA! TIMES — LEADER

PEACE

War Ends, Peace Here

Germans Have Surrendered

THE PAPER PEACE

ing. Germans to the end. Don't worry, the A. E. F. gave the Boche twice as much trouble in this sector as he ever gave us. His infantry was all shot to pieces. They formed a company of 90 men out of three companies, so one of the prisoners said.

"Nobody is hilarious about the end. Everybody is all smiles. It doesn't seem possible that it is over. We have experienced everything but bloodshed. The mud is terrific. No cooties, but I haven't had a bath in two weeks. It rains about every day, too. I wear my socks until they are unmentionable and then throw them away. We don't know whether we are going to the Rhine or back to billets. Hope we are headed homeward soon.

"We were the first regiment on the front to fire an all-American made and designed gun with all-American made ammunition—every speck of it."

EMERSON P. SMITH

TROISIÈME ÉDITION

Le Petit Parisien

10 Cent. LE PLUS FORT TIRAGE DES JOURNAUX DU MONDE ENTIER 10 Cent.

MARDI 12

C'EST SIGNÉ !

(Officiel). — L'armistice a été signé lundi matin à 5 h. 40.
Les hostilités ont été suspendues à 11 heures.

LES CONDITIONS DE L'ARMISTICE

PARIS ACCUEILLE l'heureux événement dans un débordement d'enthousiasme

LA VICTOIRE. — Cessez le feu !

Deux traités tombent de par l'armistice

Le kaiser a fui en Hollande

FRANCE

« Pavoisez ! Illuminez ! »

MORT DE BAILLIN

The Real Peace

PRINTED IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA